

What Bones and Emotions Have in Common

Imagine what you would look like if you didn't have any bones. You'd be a glob because there would be no structure to your body. If you didn't have a skeletal system, what would change? You would not be able to climb steps, a mountain or go hand-to-hand to navigate monkey bars. You would be limited in movement and motion. You would not be able to raise your arms in worship.

Imagine what you would experience if you didn't have emotions. While that may sound good at times, you would miss so much. You'd be an emotional glob with no structure and no life. Why? Because emotions range from anger to joy, disappointment to delight, sadness to hope and anxiety to peace, to name a few. Emotions are part of God's design.

Both bones and emotions require proper nourishment to stay healthy. If they do not receive what they need to grow and become strong, we are likely to have ongoing issues.

The other thing that both bones and emotions have in common is that they can break. However, God designed both so they can also be reset and healed.

There is also a considerable difference in the healing journey. In the natural, some bones heal well while others can leave us with a limp or a limitation that we don't expect. Emotional wounding can be healed by God so that rather than a limp, we have a testimony.

There are many ways our emotions become wounded. It can be the pain of the school years—the teasing, name-calling and exclusion. It can be the trauma of an abusive childhood or marriage. The horror of rape. The memories of war. The heartache of losing a loved one. The devastation of a terminal illness diagnosis.

While some bone breaks heal without help, others must be set or cast, and some even require surgery. In the natural, we head off and seek medical attention. Emotional wounding and breakage are different. Many people are likely to hide, wear a mask and attempt to bury or cover up the pain.

We need to understand that Jesus warned us that we would encounter trials and tribulations as we go through life. However, He also told us to be courageous (see John 16:33). While many of us know the portion of the verse that talks about trials and tribulations, we tend to forget the second half of the verse where Jesus tells us to take courage because He has already overcome. What would change if we placed more emphasis on the last part of that verse? I believe that hope would thrive amid trials, and we would not break because our focus would be on the Lord.

The healing journey requires courage. It can be challenging to be vulnerable. It can also be a challenge to find a whole, healthy ministry to trust with our hearts.

There is no shame in seeking help. God has gifted both our mental health professionals and our emotional healing and deliverance communities. Within any industry or profession, we have some safe and trustworthy individuals who adhere to biblical principles and guidelines and those who do not.

James 1:5 states that if any of us asks God for wisdom, He will give it. Don't back off and sink into your pain; instead, grab onto God and step into your healing.

What do bones and emotions have in common? Both bones and emotions can heal. When we are talking about emotional healing, the issue becomes do you want to limp through life, or do you want to experience God's complete healing? You are created to walk in healing, experience emotional health and experience the fullness of who God has created you to be!

Radical Pastor: 'If You Show Up With a Mask, I'll Ask You to Leave'

Greg Locke, senior pastor of Global Vision Bible Church in Nashville, hasn't been timid about his thoughts on the government's position on lockdowns during the COVID-19 pandemic. He has repeatedly called COVID a hoax and has refused to comply with government mandates from public health officials.

This past Sunday, he took his defiance further and took aim at the wearing of masks during his services. The message was posted on Twitter by a leftist organization called Right Wing Watch.

"Don't believe this Delta variant nonsense. Stop it. If you start showing up with all of these masks and nonsense, I will ask you to leave," Locke told his congregation. "I am not playing this Democrat games up in this church. If you want to social distance ... don't come to this church. I'm done with it. I ain't playing these stupid games."

Locke previously tweeted: "The Left says I'm a merchant of death because I don't allow masks at our church. Yet, since Sunday, they've threatened to beat me, burn down our church, rape my wife and kids, murder me slowly, turn me into the FBI, IRS, local police and ban my account.

He further went on to say:

“Lockdowns do not stop the spread of a virus, but they do cause the mass spread of government propaganda and media hysteria.” {eoa}

The Power of a Praying Grandmother

Dr. Angela Powers' grandmother, Mamie, passed away more than 20 years ago. But the spirit-filled prayers of protection, perseverance and strength she poured out over her granddaughter's life remain a blessing not only over Powers and her ministry but over the men, women and children she impacts for the kingdom today.

As an ordained prophet of the New Era Apostleship Restitution Collaborative headed by Dr. Paula A. Price and the founder of the World Impact Institute, Powers mentors and develops prophets and intercessors, hosts gatherings for training and elevation in prayer and intercession as well as regional and municipal times of intensified extended corporate prayer.

She is the host of the FORCE Broadcast which airs weekly on Facebook, teaching and training praying people everywhere. She is also working to network a force of intercessors globally and to strategically deploy them municipally, regionally and nationally. Through the Power Prayer Zone Academy, she dispenses prayer education and prayer coaching. She also ministers itinerantly through the vehicle of AMP Ministries and is sought after to impact regions through her teaching, preaching and prayer.

Powers is the host of the Power Prayer Zone podcast on the Charisma Podcast Network and leads the 40-Day Master Shift Course, a 40-Day prayer journey that includes a daily downloadable prayer, a daily scripture guide and some additional mini-course prayer sessions.

Powers says none of that would be possible without the diligent Holy Spirit prayer covering Mamie placed over her from birth. It's the only way she's been able to overcome sickle cell anemia—a disease that should have taken her life by the age of 30, Powers says.

In fact, her grandmother's prayers are the only reason she didn't take her own life during childhood after displaying suicidal tendencies as early as age 6. And Spirit-filled prayers like those her grandmother prayed are the only reason she can get out of bed each morning, take care of her two special-needs sons and answer the tremendous calling God has thrust onto her.

"My grandmother's prayer and the foundation of her example still carry me through life today," Powers says. "I'm over 40 years old, and she laid a covering over me that has not lifted. Yes, I do have people now who are continually praying for me, but I can distinctly see the places where her prayer is still in operation for me.

"What my grandmother instilled in me through her model was a beautiful example of the reality of God's hand in our world and how much He longs for us to all be like that," she says.

“She instilled in me the beautiful example of Jehovah as a brooder who longs to brood over us, our neighborhoods and our schools. She was that example of the God who longs to brood over us.

“It is the reality of knowing that’s what God wants that shapes who I am and shapes what I do,” Powers adds. “It becomes an immense part of what I go after, to awaken people to that.”

Spirit-Filled Grandmother

Powers’ parents divorced when she was a baby. Her father lived in Iowa and her mother in Missouri. Powers began attending a school in her grandmother Mamie’s neighborhood in Kansas City, and because of that, she spent a great deal of her childhood in Mamie’s care.

Powers learned early on what Mamie was all about and the influence she would have over her life.

“Most of the days of my elementary school life, I slept at my grandmother’s house and went to school each morning from my grandmother’s house,” Powers says. “And so I would wake up early in the morning using the bathroom and things of that sort, and I could just hear her singing hymns. It would just be filling the kitchen where she was, and God would just be so real. His presence and His weight in that house and therefore His peace upon my grandmother’s house would just be so immense.

“It was the most beautiful and yet peculiar thing,” Powers says. “When you’re a child, you are really just learning about this reality of God. So [it was wonderful] to live with someone who [gave me] such a value of how she started her day, and how she pulled in her resources and her needs. We didn’t live in the best neighborhood. Our block was beautiful because there were a lot of African American families that were from the older generation. It was almost like an oasis in a desert.

So her prayer covering also spoke a lot into the safety of our home.”

Not surprisingly, it was Mamie, a missionary, who first introduced her granddaughter to church at First Baptist Church in Kansas City, Kansas.

“Because of her, you could say I was a church baby,” Powers says. “Because of her giving me that exposure to God’s Word in our church, she got me involved in something we called ‘The Welcome.’ Because she was a missionary, she trained me to go into the Bible for myself to find a Scripture that would help me to speak to visitors in our church.

“I realize now that the foundations of my capacity to teach and to preach—and to speak to people—came a lot from that grooming,” Powers says. “Because of her and that exposure that she gave, I did understand on some level what was unfolding when I would rise and hear her worshipping and praying in the morning.”

During this time in Powers’ early childhood, she began to experience physical pain. Doctors soon discovered and diagnosed her with sickle cell anemia, a chronic genetic disease that carries with it a short life-expectancy. In 1970, 30% of children born with sickle cell anemia were expected to die before their fifth birthday. And over 40 years ago, less than half of children born with the disease were expected to reach adulthood.

Mamie would instantly recognize those times when Angela began to experience pain, and she never hesitated to pray for her granddaughter, asking that the pain leave her body.

“She would lay hands on me, and the pain would dissipate,” Powers says. “The pain would just go away. That wasn’t wasted on me. I took that model into the entirety of my life. I know God hears us when we pray, and it’s by that faith that I live every day.”

“Sickle cell was the assignment of premature death, and the indictment was that I was not supposed to have kids,” Powers said. “With the duress your body is in, then neither you nor they are supposed to survive. But I knew, through my grandmother’s prayers over me, that the overriding potency of His blood would prevail. Jesus wanted me here, and I needed to be here.” Today, she has two sons whom she bathes in prayer every day, on her knees for God’s protection and wisdom, just as her grandmother prayed for her.

Powerful Prayer Ministry

Later in her life, many others realized the same thing Powers did: God wanted and needed her on this earth to deliver His Word and help others realize their importance in Christ.

Powers realized at age 19 that she had special calling on her life, and in college at Drake University, she began attending a Bible study. During the Bible study, she and her friends held regular prayer sessions, which grew in length every day.

During this time, Powers had regular encounters with the Holy Ghost and matured in the spiritual gifts God had given her.

“When that happens, because He is a prophetic spirit, He begins to really open up your faculties for hearing His concerns and for hearing God’s issues,” Powers says. “That’s when that process began to cultivate, which ultimately led me to a point where I was so drawn into hearing God’s voice, communing with God, knowing what His issues were, His dreams, His visions, knowing things that were getting ready to happen on the planet, knowing about how things were shifting with the church. .... It was like then I knew I needed training ... I knew this was more than just a ministry calling.”

“This is when the Lord brought me across the path of Dr. Price, and I began to find out about the training programs that she had,” Powers says. “And there was an angel watching over me. I had called into a show she had for some counsel about something prophetic that had happened. At the end, there was some advertising and discussing the fact that they have these mentorship, training programs. An angel of the Lord told me I needed this training, and I said, 'Yes, I'm going to do this.'

"That was the beginning of my journey with Dr. Price with her amazing learning systems that have groomed me as a prophet," Powers says. "And now as the assistant chief prophet of her global prophetic company, and the supervisory prophet over her global intercessors and over the intercessors of her congregation, that training really gave me those missing puzzle pieces I didn't have before. Once I identified I was a prophet, God began to give me the tools for how to carry out that mandate."

Widely recognized as a strong international voice in apostolic and prophetic ministry, Price knew immediately that God would use Powers in a mighty way for His kingdom purposes.

"When I first met her, I said, 'Oh, yeah, she's a natural-born prophet,'" Price says. "I said, 'She's really going to be something.' Angela is a phenomenal woman, and we have such extraordinary hopes for this woman. Her strength, her drive, her skills and her perseverance are impressive. She is a phenomenal intercessor, and she's starting to get a lot of requests to help train intercessors. Angela has become this type of woman under extreme duress.

"I have trained a lot of people over the years, and I have heard just about every excuse about why someone can't go on or why you can't expect that person to deliver," Price says. "Angela delivers over and above every time. She has been with us; she's been through our training.

"Angela exhibits all of the qualities and traits of one who has been born and has been bathed and baptized in it," Price says. "And then you know she is one who has been taken under the wing of the Holy Spirit. When you are listening to Angela, with her leadership and leadership skills, her talents, her ability to work her staff, and she keeps her peace, it's incredible. Not a lot of people in the prophetic can keep their peace. She exhibits the maturity we need.

"I have a lot of hope for Angela's future," Price adds. "I am definitely convinced that she is a gift, and it's a mirror to the body of Christ. My perception of Angela—as a leader, as a trainer—is that the world needs to look out, because she's one of the best I've seen in a long time."

God-Mandated Role

Powers will continue to be grateful for her grandmother's intercession over her life. She knows full well that her life would have turned out much differently or that she might even be dead had she not had such a godly, Spirit-filled woman constantly praying over her.

It's why she takes her role as intercessor, teacher and disciple seriously. She's well aware of the perils young people face in this chaotic, ungodly world, and without an intercessor like the one she had, many will struggle, suffer the wrath of the enemy and face an eternal death sentence.

"We are living in a climate and a time where there are so many things being opened up, so much occultism—the music, the movies, the entertainment—and everything is evil," Powers says. "You even try to go and get a delicious meal and it's named after something that is really dedicated to hell. The climate has become so infiltrated with so many voices and so many spirits that the first thing we've got to do is to train our youth to distinguish the voice of God. They can't have a voice until they know the voice of God. They've been carried off by other voices and other agendas.

"The church needs to build its stamina again and stand before God in intercession, because the darkness is taking its agenda very seriously,” she adds. “We need mothers and grandmothers to intercede for this next generation. If we’re to pray with all kinds of prayer, then that means that we also have to be able to stand before God, stand before His holiness and cry out for things that He cries out for.” {eoa}

Joyce Meyer: How Forgiveness Leads to Promotion

Most people would say they have goals and want to make progress in life. It’s a natural desire, and there’s nothing wrong with wanting promotion in various areas. But we need to realize that anytime we ask God to promote us, or use us in greater ways, we’re going to have to go through a time of testing and preparation to get there.

It’s important to understand that God will never tempt us with anything evil. But He will allow—and even sometimes arrange—for things to happen in our lives that will challenge us and help us develop the character we need to successfully handle greater privileges and responsibilities.

James 1:2-3 (AMPC) says, “Consider it wholly joyful, my brethren, whenever you are enveloped in or encounter trials of any sort or fall into various temptations. Be assured and understand that the trial and proving of your faith bring out endurance and steadfastness and patience.” When we go through trials with a good attitude, trusting God to use them for our good, then they will work things out of us—immature behaviors and ungodly mindsets—and cause us to grow in our faith.

There are different kinds of tests that get us to the point where we learn how to do things God's way. One of the most common is the forgiveness test.

Forgiving people who hurt you, disappoint you, do something you don't like or even betray you is not easy. It's one of the most challenging things we have to learn to do as Christians because it can seem so unfair to just let someone get away with the injustice they've done.

I understand this very well because I felt that way when the Lord spoke to my heart about forgiving my father for the years of abuse he had put me through. But I came to realize that holding on to my anger was really just continuing to hurt me. I needed to be more concerned about myself and my relationship with God, rather than trying to make him sorry for what he had done.

The truth is when you choose to forgive people, you're doing yourself a favor. In Matthew 5:8 (NIV), Jesus says, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they will see God." And Proverbs 4:23 says, "Above all else, guard your heart, for everything you do flows from it."

It's so important for us to keep our hearts right with God. When we do, we can hear Him more clearly, be a lot more sensitive to His presence and enjoy close fellowship with Him. And there is nothing we need more than the presence of God in our lives!

God is the source of every good thing, and Psalm 16:11 (NKJV) says, "In Your presence is fullness of joy; at Your right hand are pleasures forevermore."

If we are not pure in heart, we're sacrificing an intimate relationship with God because we'd rather harbor anger, bitterness and resentment toward others in our hearts.

Everyone experiences offenses at times, and when we do, we have to be determined to do something about it with God's help. The Bible says in Proverbs 4:23 that you need to guard your heart. So when you recognize that you're offended by something, you need to quickly take action, doing what God tells you to do, by His grace, to overcome it.

Mark 11:25 (AMPC) says, "Whenever you stand praying, if you have anything against anyone, forgive him and let it drop (leave it, let it go), in order that your Father Who is in heaven may also forgive you your [own] failings and shortcomings and let them drop." This verse is saying that if we choose to hold on to unforgiveness, then God can't forgive us of our sins, and our intimacy with Him will suffer.

The best thing we can do when we need to forgive someone is pray for them, make the decision to forgive and "let it drop (leave it, let it go)." That means you stop talking about what they did, stop thinking about it and rehearsing it over and over and over in your mind.

The quicker you decide to let offenses go, the easier it will be; however, if there is a hurt that has been in your heart for a long time, it may take some time for you to get totally free of it. But you can do it—by God's grace—if you won't give up!

Jesus gave His life so we can have relationship with God, not religion. I want to encourage you to choose a pure heart, free of unforgiveness, so you can have a personal, intimate relationship with God that will fill you with His joy and prepare you to fulfill His good plan for your life!

How This Child Taught Her Mother That Spiritual Sight Is Not Just for Adults

“She’s me on steroids.”

Many parents say words like this about their children. But not all their children can see in the spirit like Rebecca Greenwood’s oldest daughter, Kendall, now 30. Greenwood, of Christian Harvest International, tells Dr. Steve Greene on a recent episode of the Greenelines podcast, that she wants to encourage other parents whose children see and hear in the spirit realm.

“We will often hear it by things like, ‘I saw something scary in my dreams’ or ‘There’s something scary in my room,’” Greenwood says. “Or even young children will say, ‘Mommy, Daddy, I’m seeing an angel; I saw Jesus.’”

Greenwood wants to encourage others about “how to parent your children through these giftings, from a young age to where they can grow up as adults very mature, full of faith within the giftings that the Lord has given them.” One vehicle she uses to do that is her own podcast, Victorious Prophetic Warfare, also on the Charisma Podcast Network.

She learned these lessons through raising her children, including Kendall, whom she says began to see in the spirit at an early age. One day, at age 4, Greenwood sent her to clean her room.

“She comes back about five minutes later, and oh, she is upset,” Greenwood says. “She is sassy. She’s got her hand on her hip, and she is tapping her foot.”

“Mama, you want to know something?” Kendall asked her.

“Sure, baby.”

“Mama, there was one of those bad, evil things that you and Daddy don’t like—a bad, evil thing in my room.”

“Now, I didn’t like that a demon was in my baby’s room talking to her,” Greenwood says. “So I wanted to hear what it said.”

“Mama, it told me not to clean my room.”

“Well, what did you do?”

“Mama, I stomped on its head, and I said, ‘No! In Jesus’ name.’ And Mama, that demon disappeared.”

Spirit-Filled Pastor: At What Point Does the Church Take a Stand?

At what point does the church take a stand? Thank God for people like John MacArthur, Rob McCoy, Jack Hibbs, Ken Graves and others who are fanning the flames of boldness.

I believe that if some churches don't require wearing masks, they won't open at all, especially once flu season arrives as those who have the flu will then be suspected as having COVID. The agenda is crystal-clear to those who are looking through the right lens—a biblical lens.

But what about submitting to authorities? In America, the Constitution—which our elected representatives are to defend and administer—is our governing document. The context of submitting to authorities in 1 Peter and Romans 13 is that the government would punish those who do wrong and commend those who do right, as well as uphold the Constitution (in America's case).

Many of our politicians and government officials are actually doing the complete opposite—and defying the Constitution in many ways. {eoa}

Harvest to Host Virtual Women's Conference Featuring All-Star Lineup

Harvest's Women's Ministry will host its 2021 Women's Conference online via Harvest at Home beginning this Friday, July 30-31, featuring speakers Cathe Laurie, Jackie Hill Perry and Christine Caine.

This two-day virtual conference will include sessions Friday at 5 p.m. and Saturday at 9 a.m. PST with worship music and a message.

"I know the Women's Conference is a great time of instruction and spiritual refreshment for the women in our community, and I'm looking forward to hearing all about the powerful ways God uses these speakers to encourage women throughout the conference this year," said Greg Laurie, pastor of Harvest Christian Fellowship.

"My wife, Cathe, brings bold wisdom to everything she does," Laurie said. "Having women of faith by her side like Jackie Hill Perry and Christine Caine to address identity, drifting in our faith, and what it means to be a part of the church will make the experience that much more powerful."

The conference is free to join online and no registration is required. Attendees will have the opportunity to connect and share with one another through an interactive chat feature.

Mike Lindell Predicts 'Greatest Uniting of Our Country' in Speech at ReAwaken America's Anaheim Stop

Clay Clark knew his first event, held April 21, 2021 in Tulsa, Oklahoma, then called the Health and Freedom Conference, would have a big impact. His plan all along has been to awaken the American people to the truth about many issues currently plaguing America and, by extension, people around the world. Yet even he admits he is taken back over the rapid and exponential reception.

Not only do ticket sales and attendance despite a loss of some creature comforts provide evidence for the success of the tour, but the number of well-known speakers contacting Clark requesting to be part of his tour is unexpectedly telling.

The most recent stop for what is now called Clay Clark's ReAwaken America Tour starring Gen. Michael Flynn was Anaheim, California, held at Influence Church July 17-18. Despite the high temperatures of 85°F Saturday and 91°F Sunday, an estimated total number of 2,900 people attended, the majority seated in an 11,000-square-foot outdoor tent. The air conditioning, however, was outpaced by the outdoor temperatures. A row of port-a-potties lined the edge of the parking lot, with a few food trucks that ran out of food the first day parked on the street. But none of this deterred the people from returning on Sunday.

Pastor Phill Hotsenpiller opened the event with prayer, followed by the national anthem sung by Aiya Attaway Kelley. Born with Filipino citizenship in Okinawa, Japan, Kelley later became a U.S. citizen. During an interview, Kelley said, "Knowing where I came from and where I could be today, I know what a privilege and gift it is to be a U.S. citizen, the freest country in the world."

Presenters at Saturday's event included Drs. Richard Bartlett, Simone Gold of Frontline Doctors, Mark Sherwood and Rob Marsh, who provided proof of the false projections of deaths due to COVID-19; how effective fear strategies are on human beings; how the PCR Tests were falsely calibrated to inflate the number of false positive COVID-19 cases; how 100% effective and affordable treatments are being withheld and that vaccines contain SM-102, luciferase and nano-technology filled RNA-modifying technology.

But perhaps the first day's most hope-filled message came from Mike Lindell, founder and CEO of My Pillow Inc. and a leading voice in the effort to assure election integrity. Lindell provided events leading up to his personal decision to investigate the November 2020 election, stating, "God's hands have been all over this." He shared how God had told him before he established his pillow, bedding and slipper manufacturing company that My Pillow would be a platform for something much bigger, which seems to be the case today.

Lindell cited several miraculous interventions by God, beginning with the unexpected presidential win of Donald J. Trump in 2016. Then, specific to the 2020 elections, Lindell shared a string of events that have allowed people to discover the truth that would otherwise be entirely unknown. Presetting the voting machines, officials willing to examine for potential election tampering, the greed of the Senate runoff in Georgia bringing in two more Democrats to office, the many positive course corrections President Trump enacted allowing the American people a blissful December 2019, according to Lindell, all serve to wake Americans up to realize something is not quite right.

On Jan. 9, 2021, Lindell said he knew the only way the election could have been corrupted was through the voting machines, specifically cyberattacks from other countries, which he asserts came under China's lead. Through extensive personal research, Lindell claims he discovered cyberevidence known as "packet capture," a method to intercept a data packet that is crossing a specific point in a data network. Once a packet is captured in real time, it is stored for a period of time so it can be analyzed. Lindell claims to have evidence to provide truth concerning all the elections of 2021, not just the presidential election.

"August 10th, 11th and 12th will be historic dates in world history" Lindell declared. That's when he will hold his Cyber Symposium in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, which will be televised over the full 72 hours for the world to see. This event will be attended by 100-150 cyber experts, each who must have Certified Information Systems Security Professional credentials, which validate the individual as able to effectively design, implement and manage a best-in-class cybersecurity program. These experts will examine the packet capture evidence. Cyber experts, media, politicians currently in office, attorney generals, election auditors—all will be invited to the symposium to interact with the panel of cyber experts. Lindell asked the audience to get the word out so the whole world can watch this 72-hour marathon broadcast and learn what really happened in this last election.

Lindell told the audience there is precedent for responding to election fraud. It's called "quo warranto," which is a writ or a legal action requiring a person to show by what warrant an office or franchise is held, claimed or by demanding to know by what authority or right it is doing what it is doing. Lindell claims there have been many elections where the evidence was challenged, and when proven as fraudulent, the true winner was put into office, but this has never happened at the presidential level before.

Lindell, who will livestream the Cyber Symposium on his Frank Speech site, said, "This will be the greatest uniting of our country in history, and we will once again be one nation under God. It will be the biggest revival for Jesus in history."

Reports of some of the other presenters such as Gen. Michael Flynn, Robert Kennedy, Patrick Byrne Jr., Thomas Renz with "Momma" Bears, Kimberly Reicks and Emily Peterson, and Roger Stone, will be published in subsequent articles.

Prophetic Insight: Apostolic and Prophetic Eagles Arise

I recently had an open vision of many eagles flying over America. In the vision, as the eagles soared through the air, they would take the roofs off of the buildings they flew over. As these roofs were removed, some buildings exploded with the fire of God, and others were simply exposed. Some of the buildings were homes where individuals and families lived, and others were churches, businesses or government buildings.

As soon as the Lord gave me this vision, He began to reveal to me the prophetic significance of this vision. Many times the Lord will use eagles to represent those who operate with an apostolic or prophetic anointing. Apostolic people have a governmental anointing, not just to lead within the body of Christ but also in whatever they may do. Those with a prophetic gifting are often only thought of within the context of prophesying among and to other believers. However, the prophetic gifting is also to be used to impact and influence the culture!

Just like an eagle, apostles and prophets see things from a higher perspective and have more vision and insight than others may have. The Lord uses those with an apostolic and prophetic grace to bring revelation, give direction and bring clarity to anyone they may come in contact with. We are about to see the apostolic and prophetic eagles arise!

Just as the eagles removed the roofs in the vision, in this season, the apostolic and prophetic eagles are rising to release an open heaven over individuals, ministries and businesses. They are also being released to expose any corruption or religious bondage that has people confused and bound. God's kingdom is advancing in America! We will see justice and righteousness established, and America will turn back to God.

Just as some buildings erupted with the fire and power of God as the roofs were removed in the vision, many ministries and hubs will soon see the fire and move of God that has been happening within their walls begin to spread into their cities and regions. An open heaven is coming to those who want to see and advance the kingdom of God!

As the apostolic and prophetic eagles are being released, there is also an increase of angelic activity in this season. The Lord is releasing His angelic army to take territory for the kingdom of God. The small pockets of God's presence have been cultivated by individuals and ministries will begin to spread like wildfire to impact the land. There are new levels of anointing and an increase in clarity coming to many in the body of Christ. Get ready for the Lord to move in your churches, your families and your cities and regions. We are about to see heaven open over America and an outpouring of God's spirit like never before! {eoa}

What Bones and Emotions Have in Common

Imagine what you would look like if you didn't have any bones. You'd be a glob because there would be no structure to your body. If you didn't have a skeletal system, what would change? You would not be able to climb steps, a mountain or go hand-to-hand to navigate monkey bars. You would be limited in movement and motion. You would not be able to raise your arms in worship.

Imagine what you would experience if you didn't have emotions? While that may sound good at times, you would miss so much. You'd be an emotional glob with no structure and no life. Why? Because emotions range from anger to joy, disappointment to delight, sadness to hope and anxiety to peace, to name a few. Emotions are part of God's design.

Both bones and emotions require proper nourishment to stay healthy. If they do not receive what they need to grow and become strong, we are likely to have ongoing issues.

The other thing that both bones and emotions have in common is that they can break. However, God designed both so they can also be reset and healed.

There is also a considerable difference in the healing journey. In the natural, some bones heal well while others can leave us with a limp or a limitation that we don't expect. Emotional wounding can be healed by God so that rather than a limp, we have a testimony.

There are many ways our emotions become wounded. It can be the pain of the school years—the teasing, name-calling and exclusion. It can be the trauma of an abusive childhood or marriage. The horror of rape. The memories of war. The heartache of losing a loved one. The devastation of a terminal illness diagnosis.

While some bone breaks heal without help, others must be set or cast, and some even require surgery. In the natural, we head off and seek medical attention. Emotional wounding and breakage are different. Many people are likely to hide, wear a mask and attempt to bury or cover up the pain.

We need to understand that Jesus warned us that we would encounter trials and tribulations as we go through life. However, He also told us to be courageous (see John 16:33). While many of us know the portion of the verse that talks about trials and tribulations, we tend to forget the second half of the verse where Jesus tells us to take courage because He has already overcome. What would change if we placed more emphasis on the last part of that verse? I believe that hope would thrive amid trials, and we would not break because our focus would be on the Lord.

The healing journey requires courage. It can be challenging to be vulnerable. It can also be a challenge to find a whole, healthy ministry to trust with our hearts.

There is no shame in seeking help. God has gifted both our mental health professionals and our emotional healing and deliverance communities. Within any industry or profession, we have some safe and trustworthy individuals who adhere to biblical principles and guidelines and those who do not.

James 1:5 states that if any of us asks God for wisdom, He will give it. Don't back off and sink into your pain; instead, grab onto God and step into your healing.

What do bones and emotions have in common? Both bones and emotions can heal. When we are talking about emotional healing, the issue becomes do you want to limp through life, or do you want to experience God's complete healing? You are created to walk in healing, experience emotional health and experience the fullness of who God has created you to be!
