Blockbuster Film 'The Harbingers of Things to Come' Now Available Through Faith Content Network

After a stunning success in theaters nationwide for two nights only on May 12 and May 19, 2022, The Harbingers of Things to Come from New York Times bestselling author Jonathan Cahn—author of The Harbinger, The Harbinger II—The Return, The Oracle, The Book of Mysteries and other critically acclaimed books—topped the charts as one of the top five films viewed across the nation and the third highest per screen average. The first showing alone saw the film rank No. 2 at the box office as the second-highest grossing film nationally. In total, the explosive motion picture saw almost 100,000 people in just two nights and grossed more than $1 million.

After such a triumph in the box office, The Harbingers of Things to Come is now available for hosting at churches, communities, groups and organizations nationwide, through ticketed streaming events from May 13–June 13, 2022, at The Faith Content Network. With a network of nearly 150,000 pastors and church leaders, the Faith Content Network is a collection of churches that present new, faith-driven, theatrical events available in tandem with their exclusive theatrical release.

This riveting feature film based on Cahn's bestselling and brilliant successes with The Harbinger series reveals the ancient mysteries that lie behind what is happening in America and the world today – and in the future.

End-Times Expert: The Economic Downslide Is Worse Than We Thought

The U.S. economy is slowing down more quickly than almost all of the experts had anticipated. As I detailed yesterday, U.S. consumers have been getting hit extremely hard by this economic slowdown, and at this point most Americans believe that a recession is coming.

But could it be possible that a recession has already begun? As you will see below, the numbers seem to indicate that such a scenario is quite likely. But whether we are already officially in a recession or not, the truth is that whatever we are experiencing now is nothing compared to the pain that is eventually coming down the road.

Do you remember how painful it was for our society when the first housing bubble spectacularly imploded back in 2008?

7 Ways True Shepherds Protect the Flock

Shepherds are called to oversee the flock that was purchased with the blood of Jesus (Acts 20:28-30). Part of that role involves guarding and protecting the flock against adversaries, wolves in sheep's clothing and other challenges.

This is why the shepherds have both a rod and a staff. The rod is to fight off wild animals who desire to devour the flock, and the staff is meant to gently tap the sheep to keep them on the correct course. The prototypical Old Testament shepherd is King David, who killed the bear, lion and Goliath while protecting both sheep and God's people (1 Sam. 17).

Hence, a shepherd's calling also involves being a warrior who protects the flock, not just feeding and comforting them.

Side Effects From Moderna Shot Force Green Beret Purple Heart Recipient Into Medical Retirement

Lt. Col. Peter Chambers, a medical doctor, is one of only six flight surgeons attached to the legendary “Green Beret” Special Forces. For 39 years, Dr. Chambers served fearlessly throughout multiple harrowing combat tours.

In Afghanistan, he survived a direct artillery hit to his Humvee and got an AK-47 round through his left arm that lodged in his ribcage after dragging the men from his shredded vehicle out of enemy fire.

As the only survivor of that dreadful attack, Chambers earned the Purple Heart and chose to return to full duty. His love for God and America drove him to continue his sacrificial service in the United States Army.

Chambers had every intention of continuing to serve his country and his fellow soldiers until he reached the 40-year mark of his career in 2023, at which time he would finally retire to civilian life. But Chambers will not reach that 40-year milestone because side effects from the Moderna shot did what neither an artillery shell nor a round to the chest could do.

The COVID “vaccine” permanently injured Chambers. He will now be medically retired this month, because of Biden’s illegal mandate.

Chambers has been diagnosed with “demyelination,” a side effect that the FDA and the shot makers themselves knew about but failed to tell the world until a recent court order forced the FDA to release the COVID shot safety testing documentation. “Demyelination” as a side effect is listed on page 9.

Each of the nerves in your body has a protective coating surrounding them. Much like the plastic coating on a lamp cord, the myelin sheath protects the nerve fibers. Just like a lamp cord, if this sheath is damaged or worn, the nerve fibers “spark,” creating intense, unmanageable pain throughout the body.

When demyelination hits the nerves and synapses in the brain, it can cause severe migraines as well as cognitive impairment. As demyelination continues, the body suffers unspeakable and often unmanageable constant pain. Demyelination victims often report that their feet, hands, arms and legs feel as though acid is burning through their every muscle.

Thanks to the documentation the courts forced the FDA to release, we now know that both the pharmaceutical companies and the FDA knew about this injury and other debilitating and life-threatening side effects from the shots. But they told no one, and instead allowed the shot mandates to go forward.

No wonder the FDA wanted to wait 75 years to release the data! Thankfully, a federal court has ordered the data released at the rate of 55,000 pages rather than 500 pages per month—as the FDA requested. On March 1, a Pfizer document listed 1,291 adverse injuries from its shot—including demyelination.

Chambers says he “trusted the science” and trusted his government’s “safe and effective” narrative when he was pressured to take the Moderna shot as per Joe Biden’s military shot mandate. Had Chambers known the shots were neither safe nor effective, or had he known about the aborted fetal cell link, he would not have succumbed to the pressure.

Chambers’ myelin sheath is now so severely worn that weather-related pressure changes and even being around 5G cell towers or networks can cause vertigo and make him dizzy.

Chambers testified in our landmark class action lawsuit (Navy SEAL 1 v. Austin) defending our brave military members against Biden’s unlawful shot mandates. Liberty Counsel has filed for class certification to protect not only Chambers, but also every member of the United States military. I will write more about this as soon as I can.

The truth about the shots is getting out, thanks to lawsuits like the one Liberty Counsel is conducting on behalf of military members. Even many people who have previously been in favor of vaccines or who have had the COVID shot themselves now understand that the world has been duped.

With understanding comes responsibility. We must stop the unbelievable tyranny of shot mandates and Vaccine Passports so no one else winds up with every nerve in their body feeling as though it is on fire.

As we remember our fallen heroes, we must not let their sacrifices be in vain. Please, take a stand now to defend the freedom of the men and women who defend freedom—some of whom made the ultimate sacrifice.

Please help Liberty Counsel stand against the unconstitutional shot mandates. Freedom is never more than one generation from extinction. {eoa}

Fired Teacher Refuses to Use Preferred Pronouns, Takes Case to Virginia Supreme Court

In the fall of 2018, Peter Vlaming, a high school French teacher, was fired for refusing to use male pronouns when referring to a female student who identified as male.

Vlaming filed a lawsuit against the West Point School Board and was dismissed by a King William County Circuit Court in Virginia, but he appealed to the Virginia Supreme Court. On March 3, Virginia's highest court agreed to hear his case.

The high court is still deliberating the case.

Vlaming now claims he tried to accommodate the student by using her new preferred first name. When he was confronted by the girl about how she heard Vlaming wasn't using her preferred pronouns when referring to her outside of class, Vlaming replied, "Well, let's stop there. Let's get some things straight. First of all, I like you. And I like who you are and the things that make you who you are. I'm glad you're in French class."

Vlaming complimented her on her wit, charm and humor, and said, "We're not supposed to say this, but you're one of my favorite students." The student and her mother felt satisfied with the conversation. In an effort to be transparent, Vlaming says that he talked to his assistant principal about the conversation "the very next day."

When he briefed his assistant principal, he "explained the conversation in detail" and he explained his position: "I respect the student's rights to adopt this new identity. I respect the right of her family to believe the same. But I can only follow them so far. I cannot in good conscience refer to a girl as a boy."

The conversation with the assistant principal escalated until the school board told him he had to use male pronouns for the student "no matter who was present, even if it was just another colleague behind closed doors." The school board officially reprimanded Vlaming and told him that this was the first step toward him getting terminated.

On Halloween in 2021, Vlaming used virtual reality headsets to show his students the underground catacombs in France. During the exercise, the student who identified as a male almost ran into a wall, and Vlaming yelled, "Don't let her hit the wall!" Within days, the school board asked him to sign an ultimatum to use the student's preferred pronouns even behind closed doors.

Vlaming said that he could not do so in good conscience, and, after a four-hour hearing, the school board voted 5-0 for Vlaming's termination.

The day after the decision was made, Vlaming's students staged a walkout. Wyatt Pedersen, one of his students, said, "The walkout was more than half the school."

Vlaming has also received official support from Virginia Attorney General Jason Miyares, a Republican.

Alliance Defending Freedom's Senior Counsel Chris Shandavel, who argued the petition for appeal on Vlaming's behalf, says, “Peter was passionate about the subject he taught, he was well-liked by his students and he did his best to accommodate their needs and requests. But Peter could not in good conscience speak messages that he does not believe to be true.

“We’re pleased the Virginia Supreme Court agreed to hear this important case and are hopeful the court will agree the school board violated Peter’s rights under the Virginia Constitution and state law.” {eoa}

Retired Pentecostal Pastor: We Can’t Bring Them Back, But

Our nation – once again – grieves heavily at the senseless loss of life at the hands of an emotionally-twisted and hate-filled individual.

Within the last three weeks, we have lost six elderly people at an ethnic fellowship at a church in Southern California, 10 individuals shopping at a grocery store in Buffalo, New York, and 19 grade-school children and their two teachers in Uvalde, Texas.

The adults had lived for decades, while the children were yet in their first. Regardless of their age, they were each ripped from their families and friends and the full potential of their God-given purpose and future. We can’t bring them back.

Having lost their loved ones in these terrible tragedies, their grieving family members must be wondering if they will ever see and recognize them again in heaven.

The Reassuring Words of Jesus

Only a few days after the death and entombment of his friend Lazarus, Jesus spoke to reassure his sister Martha:

“Jesus said to her, I am [Myself] the Resurrection and the Life. Whoever believes in (adheres to, trusts in, and relies on) Me, although he may die, yet he shall live” (John 11:23-25, The Amplified Bible, Classic).

We need to adhere to, trust in and rely on Jesus as Savior in our lifetimes. Innocent children were always loved and accepted by Jesus during the years of His earthly ministry. He directed His disciples to “... Allow the little ones to come to Me, and do not forbid or restrain or hinder them, for of such [as these] is the kingdom of heaven” (Matt. 19:14, AMPC).

What Happens to Believers’ and Children’s Bodies After Death?

In the midst of our human grief and sorrow, it is natural to question, “What kind of a body will a resurrected person have?” This is a common inquiry of thoughtful people who have seen human bodies maimed or massacred in life and diseased or decaying in death.

The believers in the church at Corinth had these questions, too. Paul reminded the questioning Corinthians that he himself had preached these truths to their congregation, during his time with them (1 Cor. 15:1-4).

In verses 12-20, Paul’s teaching about the resurrection of the believer’s natural body was contrary to those of the pagan intellectuals, in the secular culture in Corinth. Their mindset allowed for an afterlife for the spirit of man but not for the body. For them, the body was corrupt and subject to disease and decay. The thought of living forever in a resurrected, glorified body was foreign to them.

Will We Recognize Loved Ones in Heaven?

King David lost his newborn child, for whose healing he had fasted and prayed extensively (2 Sam. 12:13-23). Then he recognized that though he could not bring the child back, he could prepare to "go to him." Loved ones who remain on earth can spiritually prepare, in the remaining days or years of their lives, to rejoin their redeemed and forgiven loved ones in a life of consciousness and recognition beyond the grave.

When initially writing to the Thessalonians about the Lord's appearing and the resurrection of the saints who have died, Paul wrote, "Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. And thus we shall always be with the Lord" (1 Thess. 4:17).

Similarly, Jesus promised that He would go away to prepare a place for us in heaven and He would come again and receive us unto Himself so that where He is we shall be also (John 14:1-3). He offered this declaration of hope to counter the natural grief over the separation between departed and living loved ones. As "sons of light and sons of the day" (1 Thess. 5:4-11), we should be correctly informed about this important resolution to our heavenly quest.

In verse 18 of 1 Thessalonians 4, Paul directs us to "comfort one another with these words." The comfort comes from the prospect of recognition and reunion of believing loved ones in heaven. Paul's promise that past and present believers (and—I believe—innocent children) will all be "together" (vv. 15-17) with the Lord forever implies that we shall recognize each other and renew fellowship with innocents and believers we have known, in that great "meeting in the air."

The Divine Mystery

In verse 51, of 1 Corinthians chapter 15, Paul declares a “mystery” or divine secret: at our Lord’s return, we all will be changed and exchange our earthly, natural bodies for heavenly, spiritual bodies! The dead in Christ will be resurrected with new heavenly bodies and the living believers will be raptured or suddenly and fundamentally changed and transformed into their new, heavenly bodies (15:42-44).

Christ’s resurrection guarantees our future. We can look with confident assurance toward the day of His “coming” (parousia, 15:23) at His second advent (vv. 23-25; 1 Thess. 4:13-18). Death was defeated at Christ’s Resurrection and at His “coming” it will be destroyed (Rev. 20:14). Death is the last enemy to be conquered, in Christ’s total triumph (1 Cor. 15:25-26).

From then on, our risen Lord (the glorified Messiah) will take up a permanent residence with His glorified people, with their new, spiritual bodies (vv. 45-49), prepared for their eternal future where “God will wipe away every tear from their eyes; there shall be no more death, nor sorrow, nor crying” and “there shall be no more pain” (Rev. 21:4).

Let those truths bring comfort and direction for our futures.

Like King David, we can’t bring our departed loved ones back but we can prepare to go to them! {eoa}

10 Days of Pentecost 2023: This Pentecost, Welcome All of Holy Spirit's Gifts

A few years ago I was invited to speak at a conference in California. During one of my messages, the Lord showed me that a woman in the auditorium was struggling with infertility. When I made the announcement, a young woman in the back of the room burst into tears.

I didn't know this woman had endured three miscarriages or that she was depressed because she feared never having a baby. She came to the front of the auditorium with her mother by her side, and I briefly prayed for her. There was nothing sensational about that moment; all I remember was asking Jesus to break the spirit of barrenness.

A year later I returned to that city, and when the pastor picked me up at the airport he said: "I forgot to tell you that a woman in my church wants to talk to you. She said last year you prayed for her to have a baby!" I learned that this woman went home from the conference and got pregnant a month later. She now had the baby, a girl named Esperanza, and she wanted me to meet her.

That was not the first or last time I've received a "word of knowledge" while ministering. It is one of the nine supernatural gifts of the Holy Spirit mentioned in Paul's first letter to the Corinthians. But I've often wondered what would have happened if I had ignored the Holy Spirit's promptings during that conference in California. Would Esperanza's mother have received her miracle?

One simple word of knowledge changed that family. But what if I had let fear stop me from flowing in the miraculous? What if I had just decided to stick to my notes, preach a nice sermon and play it safe?

I'm afraid that's what many of us are doing today. We say we believe the Bible, but when it comes to the Holy Spirit's gifts, we are either too timid to step out in faith, or we don't believe we need miracles anymore.

If we really want to be a people of Pentecost, the spiritual gifts mentioned in 1 Corinthians 12:8-10 should be manifested regularly through our lives. Few Christians today have even heard of these gifts; fewer have seen them in operation. We need a refresher course in the ways the Holy Spirit works:
