

British Royal Family Holds Historic Event for the First Time in Centuries

The British Royal Family just broke a major tradition.

At the beginning of the month, the Royal Family said goodbye to one of their beloved relatives, Katharine of Kent. Now, the family has laid her to rest in their first Catholic funeral service they have held in centuries.

Katharine, the Duchess of Kent, passed away at the age of 92, and her funeral was held at the Westminster Cathedral in London, according to Catholic News Agency. While Katharine was brought up in the Anglican Church, she became a member of the Catholic Church in 1994. She previously described the change part of a “long-pondered personal decision” and saw Catholicism as a clear path to faith.

The Catholic News Agency reported that King Charles’ presence at the funeral was a historic moment, marking the first time that a reigning member of the British Royal Family was formally in attendance of a Catholic funeral within the United Kingdom since the time of the Reformation. While Charles was present, his wife, Camilla, did not attend the service as she was “recovering from acute sinusitis,” according to the BBC. She announced before the service that she would not be there, but that her “...thoughts and prayers will be with the Duke of Kent and all the family.”

The BBC also noted that Pope Leo XIV sent a message for the funeral, discussing Katharine's "dedication to official duties, patronage of charities and devoted care for vulnerable people." The pope also gave his condolences to the family.

Following the service, the casket of the duchess was moved to the Royal Family's burial spot at Frogmore, which is located on the grounds of the Windsor Estate.

Sam Altman Tells Tucker Carlson What He Really Thinks About God, AI and the Future of Humanity

Sam Altman, CEO of OpenAI, recently shared his personal views on God with Tucker Carlson.

Altman pointed back to his Jewish heritage, but says he does not take the Bible to be the literal Word of God. "I'm Jewish, and I would say I have like, a fairly traditional view of the world that way," says Altman. "I'm not like a literalist on the Bible, but I'm not someone who says I'm culturally Jewish."

He then expressed confusion about God, but noted that he believes there is something that must exist. "I think probably like most other people, I'm somewhat confused on this, but I believe there is something bigger going on than... can be explained by physics." He also said he does not feel as though our existence and the creation of the world is a "spontaneous accident."

"I don't think I have the answer," Altman says. "I don't know exactly what happened, but I think there is a mystery beyond my comprehension..."

Speaking further on the topic of whether or not AI can be alive in the same sense that people are alive, Altman insists that it is not alive. "They don't do anything unless you ask..."

They're like just sitting there kind of waiting. They don't have a sense of agency or autonomy," he explained.

Altman also described artificial intelligence as a purposeful tool. "They can do things that maybe don't seem alive, do seem smart," Altman says.

The discussion of AI naturally raises ethical questions, particularly as these systems influence human decisions. Some users, as Carlson points out, perceive AI as having a divine or spiritual dimension, but Altman rejects this notion: "There's nothing to me at all that feels divine about it or spiritual in any way."

From a Christian perspective, Altman's reflections serve as both a caution and a reminder. As believers, this should help us to remember that no machine can replace God's authority, wisdom or moral guidance. The rapid development and influence of AI also presents ethical challenges that require discernment. Christians are called to engage these technologies thoughtfully, exercising wisdom and prayerful consideration to ensure that our use of such tools aligns with God's truth and serves His purposes rather than being led astray by human ingenuity alone.

Why Charlie Kirk Is Being Hailed for His Prophetic Calling: 'He Was a Gift From God to Us'

It is undeniable: Charlie Kirk had a special calling on his life, and he ran his race well for the gospel of Jesus Christ. In the wake of his passing, Kirk is being remembered as someone who had a unique anointing upon his life.

In an interview on Newsmax, Benny Johnson was asked who he thought could replace Charlie Kirk, with even the suggestion that he may be the one to take up his mantle. However, Johnson made it clear that no one could ever replace Kirk.

"Charlie is one of one," Johnson said. "Let me tell you this: I was witness to a miracle, and perhaps this is the only time in my life I'll be able to say that. A true, proper miracle, which was Charlie Kirk's life."

Johnson noted that Kirk had a major calling on his life that could only have been given to him by God.

Right now, all eyes are on Sept. 23, 2025, as potential date for the rapture to occur, which coincides with the Feast of Trumpets or Rosh Hashanah. As Vlad Savchuk points out, we should not take in these rumors, but abide by biblical truth, first understanding the biblical feasts and why date-setting is inaccurate.

The Feast of Trumpets, or Rosh Hashanah, holds deep prophetic symbolism in Scripture. Paul wrote that “the trumpet of God will sound, and the dead in Christ will rise first. Then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up ... to meet the Lord in the air” (1 Thess. 4:16–17). It is no surprise, then, that believers draw a connection between this fall feast and the rapture of the church.

There is also biblical precedent for God fulfilling major redemptive events on Jewish feast days. Jesus was crucified on Passover, buried during the Feast of Unleavened Bread, and raised on the Feast of Firstfruits. Fifty days later, the Holy Spirit was poured out on Pentecost. Four feasts have already been fulfilled in Christ, and three remain: Trumpets, the Day of Atonement and Tabernacles. However, we cannot know the exact timing of when God will fulfill these feasts.

A Familiar Cycle of Predictions

This is not the first time such predictions have circulated. In 2017, 2020 and 2023, similar claims tied astronomical signs and calendar dates to the rapture. Each year passed without fulfillment. As Savchuk noted, “These ideas recycle every single year.”

The Problem With Date-Setting

The most pressing issue with these predictions is that they directly contradict Jesus' own words. In Matthew 24:36 He said, “But of that day and hour no one knows, not even the angels of heaven, but My Father only.” In Acts 1:7, He added,

“It is not for you to know times or seasons which the Father has put in His own authority.”

Scripture also reveals that certain prophetic events must take place before Christ's return. Paul warned in 2 Thessalonians 2:3 that the “man of lawlessness” must be revealed first. That has not yet happened, making any fixed date premature at best.

What Believers Should Do Instead

While the Feast of Trumpets may foreshadow the Lord's return, Christians are not called to speculate on dates. Instead, the New Testament gives clear instructions for how to live in light of Christ's soon coming:

- Fulfill the Great Commission. Jesus' final command was to make disciples of all nations (Matt. 28:19).
- Live ready. “The Son of Man is coming at an hour you do not expect” (Matt. 24:44).
- Walk in holiness. “Everyone who has this hope in Him purifies himself, just as He is pure” (1 John 3:3).
- Encourage one another. Paul reminded believers that the promise of Christ's return should bring comfort, not fear (1 Thess. 4:18).
- Stay steadfast. “Be steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord” (1 Cor. 15:58).

While we cannot date set the plans of God, one thing we do know is this: Christ is coming again. Our hope is not in a calendar date but in the promise of His return.

Christian Celebrities Take Bold Message to World After Charlie Kirk's Assassination

After Charlie Kirk was assassinated last week while speaking at Utah Valley University, the entire nation appears to have shifted overnight, with many becoming bolder about their faith in Jesus. Some of those include Christians who are planted in the darkest places of all: The arena of fame.

One of those faces include Orlando Magic's Jonathan Isaac, who is releasing his new sneakers, the Judah 2, according to Fox News. The shoes are planned to feature six different Bible verses.

Isaac, who has been outspoken about his faith, discussed how he became friends with Charlie Kirk over the years.

"It's tough to put into words," Isaac said. "Charlie had my back because I agreed with everything he had ever said or done. Some of the conversations we had was even me disagreeing with things he said. But we always had civil discourse, and he was always prepared to talk about why he thought what he thought. To me, that's a respectable man."

Just as Kirk sought to unite Christians, Isaac is hoping to do so with these shoes.

"One of our shoes, the Judah 2 Mighty Warrior, the verse is the Angel calling Gideon a mighty warrior when Gideon didn't think of himself as a mighty warrior to begin with," Isaac said.

In the wake of Charlie Kirk's assassination, a bold chorus is rising from athletes, actors and influencers who refuse to be silent about their faith. What was meant for fear has instead ignited courage, reminding a shaken nation that even in tragedy, God is raising up voices to declare His truth and hope to the world.

Jonathan Cahn Reveals the Dark Forces Behind Charlie Kirk's Assassination: Witchcraft and the Jezebel Spirit

The shocking assassination of Charlie Kirk on Sept. 10 has left the nation grappling with questions about evil, spiritual forces and the unseen battles shaping our times. In a new prophetic message, Jonathan Cahn revealed a startling connection between the attack and ancient spiritual forces that continue to move in America today.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

Cahn explained that just two days before the assassination, a woman representing the website, Jezebel, publicly admitted to paying witches to place a curse on Charlie Kirk. The witches reportedly performed rituals using Kirk's birth date and even set his photograph on fire to invoke their spells. "Trust the unseen," one witch told her, referring to the demonic forces at work.

While the physical act of violence was carried out by an individual, Cahn emphasized that the spiritual dimension cannot be ignored. "The realm of witchcraft is joined to the realm of the demonic," he said. These demonic forces, though unseen, can influence human actions and find willing vessels to carry out destruction. Kirk's final moments, he noted, were tragically linked to a demonic shooting, and his last word on earth was “violence,” pointing to the malevolent forces at play.

In the wake of Charlie Kirk’s shocking assassination, something remarkable is happening across America: people are flocking to church in numbers that pastors say they’ve never witnessed before. What the enemy meant for evil has ignited a powerful move of the Holy Spirit, shaking the very foundations of the church.

Reports are pouring in from congregations where attendance has suddenly exploded. In a video by Pastor Mark Driscoll, he described the unprecedented scene: “We had about 1,500 more people than seats. We had people walking half a mile to get to church... At some services we were three rows deep, standing room only.” Driscoll continued, “Pastors are seeing people flock to church and an entire young generation that admired and respected Charlie Kirk coming to church seeking answers...”

In an interview with CBN News, teaching pastor Sammy Lopez of Honor Church in Orlando captured the moment well: “What I’m watching and seeing all over social media is this ignition for a spiritual movement. Individuals that have never been to church are going to church. Individuals that have not been going for a while are going back. People that never owned a Bible are buying Bibles—because somewhere down the road in an interview that they saw with Charlie Kirk, they saw Charlie Kirk talk about the importance of knowing Scripture.”

Personal testimonies illustrate the depth of this awakening. CBN's Raj Nair shared a TikTok video from the online user "IsZomethingWrong" where a woman who had never opened a Bible said she was compelled to pick up her husband's after seeing Kirk's murder online. Her eyes fell on John 8:32: "Then you will know the truth, and the truth will set you free."

Pastor Lopez sees prophetic significance in this moment. Referring to Zechariah 13 and Matthew 26, he noted, "Strike the shepherd, the sheep will scatter. A shepherd has been struck, and the church is scattering. It's creating what we're seeing now—individuals going back to spirituality, or individuals that were never spiritual now asking questions about the supernatural."

From coast to coast, pastors are testifying that the door to the gospel has swung wide open. What began as tragedy is fueling revival. The church is overflowing, seekers are hungry and hearts are turning to the only true hope—Jesus Christ.

Why 2024 and 2025 Are the Years Kim Clement's Prophecies Are Being Fulfilled

In 2024 and 2025 we've seen an increase in the prophecies spoken by Kim Clement come to pass. Here are a few things Kim Clement prophesied about that we have seen happen within the 2024-2025 time span.

1. Clement prophesied that Donald Trump would be a two-term president.

In 2024, after the re-election of Donald Trump, Clement's prophecy re-emerged to the forefront of everyone's mind.

"God says, 'I will put at your helm for two terms a president that will pray, but he will not be a praying president when he starts. I will put him in office and then I will baptize him with the Holy Spirit and My power.'"

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

This prophecy is one that not only was fulfilled, but we continue to see it play out each day more and more as Trump becomes more serious and outspoken in his relationship with God.

2. Clement predicted the assassination attempt that would come against Donald Trump.

Clement gave eerie and specific details about what this would look like, including that the event would happen on a “Saturday night.”

“There shall be one assassination attempt that will endeavor to destroy the plans that I have for this night is a Saturday night...”

3. He prophesied that the enemy would do everything in his power to put a “witch in the White House.”

Clement urged Christians to pray for the man that God wanted to place in the White House, believing that the enemy would do everything he could to put a “witch” in the White House. This event played out twice for Trump as he ran against both Hilary Clinton in 2016 and Kamala Harris in 2024.

“God says, ‘Once you recognize the man that I have raised up, pray. For the enemy will do everything in his power to put a witch in the White House...’”

4. Jumping ahead to 2025, Clement’s prophetic vision involving a spiderweb came to life through a Ukrainian military operation.

Ukraine launched Operation Spiderweb earlier this year, which echoed Clement’s words that “The spider’s web is no match for a servant’s is not going to take a mighty army to bring him down... it shall take a servant to break the spider’s web and it will come down with not much effort...”

5. Clement saw a coming revival in the White House.

Since Trump's second term started, we have seen worship and prayer take precedence in the White House, and the Christian faith take center stage.

"...there shall arise men and women that shall pray in the White House, and they shall bring the latter rain into this nation and onto the earth," Clement prophesied.

6. We may be seeing the unfolding of Clement's "Esther" prophecy coming to pass.

One of the most mysterious and detailed prophecies that Clement gave was about a woman who would be like an Esther for America after a time of great tragedy. Since the assassination of Charlie Kirk, his platform, Turning Point USA, has exploded in popularity, and his widow, Erika Kirk, has vowed to carry on his legacy. Through this time of grief and mourning, the nation has supported Erika during her darkest moment.

"...they will say, 'We hated her, but now we love her.' For she shall take the oil of healing and she shall pour it upon the scars of those left and those right and of the new party that has come forth and emerged where they will say Christ will reign..."

As we see the fulfillment of Clement's prophecies coming to pass, it is a reminder of what Scripture tells us in Habakkuk 2:3 regarding insights for the future: "For the vision is yet for an appointed time; but it speaks of the end, and does not lie." Clement gave the word, and now is the appointed time for them to come to pass.

Interstellar Signal? Scientists Detect an Impossible Cosmic Explosion

We continue to see more strange signs in the sky take place, all of which point to the wonder and vastness of God's creation. One of the latest finds is something scientists consider to be impossible.

According to Futurism, astronomers detected a gamma ray burst that is defying all logic: it kept bursting multiple times in a day, almost as if the star was dying more than one death.

Astronomer Antonio Martin-Carrillo said, "This event is unlike any other seen in 50 years of GRB are catastrophic events, so they are expected to go off just once because the source that produced them does not survive the dramatic explosion."

After doing more research on the infrared camera known as the HAWK-I Very Large Telescope, it was discovered that this explosion likely happened outside the Milky Way, billions of light years away.

"...the fact that this object is extragalactic means that it is considerably more powerful," Martin-Carrillo noted.

Astronomer Andrew Levan also said that, "If this is a massive star, it is a collapse unlike anything we have ever witnessed before."

This latest discovery comes after we've seen an array of cosmic events this year: from planetary parades, blood moons, solar eruptions and meteor showers. These intriguing signs are also happening as the discussion of the asteroid Apophis has been re-introduced to cultural discussions, with its expected arrival to fly by earth in 2029.

As these wonders unfold in the heavens, we are reminded of Jesus' words: "There will be signs in the sun, moon and stars" (Lk. 21:25). The very skies are testifying to His majesty and warning of the days to come. Each cosmic event is not only a marvel of creation but also a prophetic signpost pointing us to Christ's soon return. The question is not whether the heavens will keep speaking—but whether we are listening.
