

Denzel Washington Puts Faith Above Fame: 'I Follow the Lord'

Transformation in the Christian life doesn't come primarily from large encounters at conferences or altars. Instead, it comes from daily, intentional moments spent with God. As Vlad Savchuk reminds us, "A thing that changes your life is not a large encounter with God at the altar. What's going to really change your life is the daily encounters that you have in your own bedroom." Here are four of those ways that you can practically walk with the Holy Spirit every day.

1. Schedule Your Priorities, Not Just Your Day

Many Christians live reactively, moving from Sunday to Sunday or conference to conference. The key is to put God first every day. Matthew 6:33 instructs us: "Seek first the kingdom of God, and all these things shall be added to you."

Savchuk emphasizes the importance of morning devotion: "If God is not first in our thoughts and efforts in the morning, he will be in the last place the remaining of the day."

By prioritizing God at the start of your day, you shape your mindset, decisions and actions for the hours that follow.

2. Wake Up Early and Spend Time in Prayer

Morning prayer sets the tone for the day and helps you avoid distraction and temptation. Savchuk shares his story of beginning early morning prayer as a teen. "I started to go as a 16-year-old. I asked my pastor for the keys. I opened the church, turned on a little of music. And my prayer life, my hosting the Holy Spirit, started by building an early prayer."

Even if you're not naturally an early riser, a small adjustment can make a big difference. "Set your alarm 30 minutes earlier and start that today. You go and you spend time with the Holy Spirit. You go and you spend time in God's word. You go and you spend time in worship."

3. Go to Prayer to Be With God, Not to Find Him

God is already present; prayer is about relationship, not searching. Savchuk explains: "Don't go to prayer to find God. Go to prayer to be with Him."

He further references Exodus 24:12 to show that God desires our presence, saying that we should "just be there."

Approaching prayer with this mindset transforms it from duty into delight. You are offering your presence to God, just as a loved one delights in spending time with you.

4. Let Your Daily Life Reflect Your Encounter With God

How you live your day-to-day life and how you spend time with God are inseparable.

“How you live your day shapes how you encounter God,” Savchuk says. And how you experience God shapes how you live your day.”

Consistent encounters with the Holy Spirit help guard against temptation, guide your decisions and cultivate holiness, wisdom and joy.

Communing with the Holy Spirit is ultimately about relationship, not rules. By prioritizing time with God, rising early, entering prayer with the right mindset and letting your life reflect your encounters with Christ, you can develop intimacy with the Holy Spirit that transforms both your spiritual life and your daily decisions.

Dinesh D’Souza Explains Why Democrats and MSNBC Are Losing Ground

As the High Holy Days approach, prophetic voice Amanda Grace is urging believers to remain alert and prayerful. In a recent broadcast, she warned that significant spiritual battles are unfolding in America and abroad.

Grace noted that September brings not only the Jewish High Holy Days but also another blood moon—this one visible over Asia and Europe. Given the volatile state of global affairs, she urged viewers to pay close attention to the timing of these events. “There is something moving about within this nation and with the Holy Land,” Grace said, calling certain dates “target dates” to watch. She highlighted August 29 due to its numeric connection to 9/11, with warnings to intercede ahead of time.

Adding urgency to these warnings, Grace recalled a vivid dream from October 2023 that came strongly back to mind in recent days. In the dream, President Donald Trump appeared on a golf course with an injured leg, looking frazzled and unwell. At the time, the dream was interpreted as a call to pray for his health and safety, but she now believes it may also point to a broader strategy of the enemy to physically harm Trump.

Right after Grace shared this dream, news broke that a New York woman had been arrested for threatening to kill Trump in a disturbing social media post. The 50-year-old allegedly posted about her willingness to “sacrificially kill” the president. She reportedly traveled to Washington, D.C., with the intent to act on her threats if an opportunity arose.

Grace emphasized that this was more than a random outburst. “That’s a spirit talking,” she said, pointing to the phrase “sacrificial kill” as evidence of deeper spiritual forces at work. According to her interpretation, demonic powers are seeking a “big sacrifice” in this season to empower dark agendas leading into the 2026 midterms and 2028 presidential election.

“This isn’t just trying to go after somebody. They are looking for a sacrifice,” Grace warned, urging Christians to intercede specifically against these schemes. She also pointed to high-level “spiritual altars” in cities like Washington, D.C., and New York, which she believes the kingdom of darkness is using as footholds to influence nations.

With the convergence of the High Holy Days, blood moon, and what she sees as an increase in spiritual warfare, Grace’s message was clear: “We have to intercede and pray for their safety. The kingdom of darkness is out in this season looking to accomplish that.”

The recent reports of California’s plague case, alongside viral images of rabbits, squirrels and deer with strange tumors and growths, paint a troubling picture of nature seemingly going awry. From a biblical perspective, such events echo the warnings found in Scripture about pestilence, disease and the upheaval of creation in the last days, signaling that the world may be moving closer to conditions described in the end times.

Jonathan Cahn: Avatars and Ancient Spiritual Forces Shaping America

Jonathan Cahn's new book, "The Avatar," is a profound exploration of the spiritual forces shaping today's world, blending biblical prophecy, global encounters and modern political insight. Known for connecting Scripture to contemporary events, Cahn shared exclusive insights into this latest book with Charisma Media founder and CEO Stephen Strang on the Strang Report Podcast.

Cahn explains how an "avatar," is "a vessel or manifestation or image of a god... it's all over the world." While rooted in Hindu tradition, the idea appears across cultures: humans can unknowingly become living embodiments of spiritual forces. Cahn asks a startling question: "Could there be an avatar on the stage?"

Cahn's insights are drawn not only from Scripture but from his personal experiences in nations steeped in spiritual activity. In India, he recounts a harrowing encounter on a foggy road between Agra and Delhi, where overturned vehicles mirrored the trickster god Krishna's mythology. Later, when he sounded the shofar in front of 70,000 people, and said, "it was like a mass exorcism—people screaming, and the spirits fled," he recalls. Across Africa and Brazil, he observed the same patterns: "They believe that the gods possess people, and the people become avatars—living, moving gods themselves."

Cahn emphasizes that these global encounters are not merely curiosities—they serve as warnings for the West. Citing Jesus' teaching that a cleansed space left empty allows the spirit to return with greater power, Cahn warns: "Any nation or civilization that empties itself of God—the gods are coming back. The spirits are coming back." He points to cultural milestones, like the Olympic opening ceremony's controversial depiction of the Last Supper replaced with pagan imagery, as evidence of a broader spiritual shift.
