

Is This the War That Triggers the End Times? Rabbi Connects Israel Strike to Scripture

"I see it right now," Z says. "I stand against nuclear activity right now in the name of Jesus. We bind you right now, in Jesus' name. For the silver lining shall come in the form of revival and reformation."

Z then prophesied about an alliance that would provide a major breakthrough for "the lion." This prophecy strikingly came right around at the same time as "Operation Rising Lion" commenced when Israel struck Iran.

"...in this information is coming a different form of alliance. And in this alliance will come a breakthrough, for the lion has roared," Z says.

"Do not fear the war," Z prophesies. "Do not fear the intimidation, do not fear the smoke, do not fear their cries."

Z also shared how the wicked may be aligning themselves together, but that the place of the Lord will triumph over all darkness.

"Victory will shine in the house of the righteous. Though the wicked align themselves, they will not prevail. Their punishment will not be stopped. But the posterity of the righteous will endure and be delivered forever.”

Another shocking word came to Z that is connected to the fate of another nation’s leader: Ukraine.

“I say unto you, Zelenskyy, your days are short.”

In a world increasingly marked by unrest, fear, and spiritual confusion, prophetic voices like Joseph Z are sounding the alarm while calling the faithful to stand firm. As wars rage and alliances form, Z’s message serves as a powerful reminder that God is neither absent nor silent.

Amid the darkness, revival, reformation and victory remain possible—for those who walk in righteousness and do not waver in faith.

Foul-Mouthed Nation? Surprising Study Reveals How Often Americans Use Profanity

The language use of our nation is truly in dire condition.

In a report by Study Finds, it was uncovered that “Americans use vulgar language online more than any other English-speaking country, at a rate of roughly 1 in every 2,800 words.”

What's intriguing about this study is that it was noted just how contrary this use of vulgarity truly is when compared to the Christian roots of the nation. In a research study from Lingua, it was noted that "The United States, often associated with protestant puritanism, Christian fervor and prudishness, show the highest rates of vulgarity."

What has happened to our nation?

Have we really moved so far away from our heritage as a culture that honors honesty and integrity that we no longer can even hold a conversation without swearing?

In his book, Tough Topics, author Kelly K provides great insight into this topic, especially for Christians who are struggling to know whether or not swearing is a sin.

"...if we won't be using profanity in heaven for all eternity, why would we think it's fine to use those words here?" K writes. "It's difficult to imagine any kind of profane or inappropriate language in a place where everything is holy and pure."

If we are to dwell on what is true, good, noble, pure and holy, why even dwell on something debatable in its goodness?

K continues:

Ephesians 4:29, says, "Don't use foul or abusive language.

Let everything you say be good and helpful, so that your words will be an encouragement to those who hear them” (NLT). Now, this verse is incredibly important because it gives us a litmus test for the words we use. When we choose to use curse words or any kind of profanity, we should ask ourselves, “Are these words good and helpful? Are they encouraging to those around me?” The core principle here is that our words should always be uplifting, especially within the body of Christ. By their very nature, curse words and foul language are the opposite of uplifting; they are negative, filthy, and often degrading.

So, let us put away this use of derogatory speech, and instead, as Christians, we can shift the culture away from poor speech simply by following what our Lord has already asked us to do by focusing on the good and pleasing things He has in store for us.

Is This the Beginning of World War III? What You Need to Know Now

Could there be a deeper, more prophetic meaning to the Israeli airstrikes on Iran than we might realize?

In the midst of a month that has been heating up with great contentions nationally and internationally, Israel launched a military operation against Iran on June 13, 2025. The offensive, named Operation Rising Lion, came not only with geopolitical weight but also profound prophetic implications.

According to Amanda Grace, the operation's name and timing are no accident—it is a direct confrontation between spiritual pride and divine authority.

The operation's name, Rising Lion, intensifies the prophetic symbolism. A group of lions is called a "pride," making this not just a military maneuver, but a spiritual one. "Operation Pride of Lions begins to take grip," Grace emphasized, tying it to the Lion of Judah—Jesus Christ—and reminding listeners that the enemy too "roams about like a lion seeking whom he may devour" (1 Pet. 5:8).

Prophetic insight from as far back as April 2024 had foreshadowed these events. "When Ben stops, Judah begins," was a phrase Grace spoke about Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu. With this phrase, the prophetic word indicated that when man's leadership pauses, divine leadership—represented by Judah and the Lion of Judah—would begin to move.

Israel's move against Iran appears to fulfill several of Grace's prophetic words, including a Jan. 28, 2025, message declaring: "Iran is about to have another curtain torn and stockpiles exposed." That same word was fulfilled this week as strikes targeted nuclear and missile infrastructure deep within Iran. Another prophetic word from March spoke of “fire being rained down” and “the back of Iran being broken.” The intensity of Israel’s precision strikes seem to match that imagery, aligning physical warfare with a deeper spiritual conflict.

The timeline leading to this event is also notable. From the June 1st attack on Jews in Boulder, Colorado, to protests breaking out in Los Angeles and Trump Tower in the following days, the month has been filled with unrest. “This is a very real spiritual war with very real physical consequences,” Grace warned.

A call was also made to the people of Israel: “Shut down your pride parades in Tel Aviv. Stop the filth in the streets. If you want Almighty God to rise up and be your protector, consecrate yourselves before the Lord.” The message was clear—spiritual purity and national protection are deeply connected.

As the world watches Operation Rising Lion unfold, it may not only mark a new phase in military escalation but also signal a prophetic turning point for nations. The Lion of Judah has risen—and the pride is on the hunt.

Mark Driscoll's Father's Day Challenge: How Are You Leading Your Family?

Rick Warren is attempting to bridge the gap between the evangelical and Catholic communities.

At a recent evangelization conference near Rome, the themes of unity and collaboration took center stage as leaders from across the Christian spectrum began a decade-long conversation aimed at the year 2033—marking 2,000 years since the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Among the voices calling for greater cooperation was Pastor Rick Warren, who shared why he believes Christian unity is essential for the future of evangelism.

“Because no single denomination can complete the Great Commission on their own,” Warren explained during an interview with EWTN’s Andreas Donhauser. With 2.5 billion people worldwide identifying as followers of Jesus, Warren emphasized the urgent need to work together to reach the rest of the world. “1.3 billion are Catholic,” he noted. “It’s about half of the Christian church. And so this is what I call the sleeping giant.”

Warren’s presence at a Catholic conference might raise eyebrows among some evangelical and Catholic communities. But he dismissed fears of rivalry or theological overreach, pointing instead to the prayer of Jesus in John 17. “Jesus prayed, ‘I pray that they will be one so that the world may know... so that the world may believe.’”

While acknowledging that structural and doctrinal unity across all Christian traditions may be unlikely, Warren passionately argued for a unity of purpose: evangelization. “We’re never going to have cultural unity. We’re never going to have structural unity... but we can all agree on one thing—every Christian understands we’re called to go.”

This shared mission is building toward what Warren called “the 2000th birthday of the church.” Pentecost Sunday in 2033—June 5—will commemorate two millennia since the Holy Spirit birthed the Christian church. Around the world, Christian leaders are already beginning to ask: how can we honor and celebrate this milestone?

Warren said that hope—more than anything—is what the world needs. “It’s the last thing to lose. When you lose hope, it’s over.”

Beyond denominational lines and doctrinal differences, a global mission is unfolding—one rooted in shared faith and a deep urgency to bring the hope of Christ to a world in desperate need. Perhaps there truly will be a demonstration that unity is found in a collective surrender to the mission of Christ.
