

Hidden Truth About Painful Healing No One Talks About

Why does it sometimes feel like healing hurts even more than the initial pain of a traumatic event?

In an interview with Henry Fernandez Ministries, author Jonathan Miller described how a physical injury helped him understand the power of why addressing spiritual wounds appropriately is critical for our walk with God.

“When I was 19,” Miller says, “I was doing construction, manual labor, and I had a big saw in my hand, and I cut my hand open. I had about 15 stitches.”

Instead of properly resting his hand, Miller went straight back to work. However, his injury was far from fixed.

“I woke up with my hand infected,” says Miller. “The swelling was so bad it went all the way up to my elbow. I had to go back to the emergency room. They took a scrub brush and scrubbed that wound.”

For Miller, this helped give him the concept for his upcoming book, Healing Hurts.

“And that really is where the concept for the book title came from. Because it actually hurt more to have them clean that wound out than the original injury did. So, healing does hurt. If you don't deal with the wound properly when it happens, it will become infected. And had I not caught the infection, that hand would have become disabled, possibly even amputated, which means I would be sabotaged to this day in my functionality."

As Jonathan Miller's story powerfully illustrates, untreated wounds fester, and the process of cleaning them out is uncomfortable, even agonizing. But that pain has purpose. It prevents long-term damage, restores true functionality and ultimately brings lasting wholeness. Healing may hurt, but it's the only path to freedom.

Researchers Locate Another 'City' Beneath the Giza Pyramids

There really is something greater and more mysterious to the Giza pyramids than we originally thought.

According to the Jerusalem Post, the same team who discovered structures below the Pyramid of Khafre now say they have uncovered "shafts and chambers" under the Pyramid of Menkaure.

In an interview with the Daily Mail, Filippo Biondi from the University of Strathclyde said that current scans indicate a "90% probability" that the same pillars under Khafre are also under Menkaure. As the Post noted, this makes it even more plausible that these pyramids are actually planted right on top of a “single, colossal subterranean complex some 2,000 feet below the desert surface.”

This fascinating discovery also demonstrates a realistic probability that there is a network of tunnels connecting other structures below the surface, according to Biondi.

Now the real question to these findings: Where did these structures come from, and who built them? From a biblical perspective, one possible explanation has long been hidden in plain sight: the Nephilim.

Genesis 6:4 tells us that, “There were giants in the earth in those days... mighty men which were of old, men of renown.” The Book of Enoch describes these beings as the hybrid offspring of rebellious angels and human women, beings of immense strength and forbidden knowledge.

What if the Great Pyramids weren’t merely tombs for pharaohs—but markers built atop ancient ruins predating even Egyptian civilization?

This unfolding mystery challenges the timeline of human history and echoes Jesus’ words in Matthew 24:37: “As it was in the days of Noah, so it will be at the coming of the Son of Man.” In Noah’s day, the Nephilim filled the earth with violence and corruption. Is it possible we're uncovering their ancient strongholds now—at the end of the age?

The deeper we dig, the more the sands of Egypt may begin to whisper truths from a forgotten age—one that points not just to history, but to prophecy.

Forgotten Oral Roberts Prophecy Is Coming to Life

There is a remarkable and powerful phenomenon occurring in the world today—many devout Muslims are experiencing visions and dreams of Jesus.

These events reveal a significant spiritual movement that is pointing Muslims toward Christ as the only one who can save them from their sins.

In a recent video by Perry Stone, he discusses why these miraculous signs and wonders mean so much to a people who have been hostile against the idea of Christ as the true Messiah.

“I can tell you that in my own life of visiting Israel that I have prayed over people who were Muslim, and the Lord would have me speak in Farsi,” Stone says. “Farsi is the Persian dialect that the Iranians speak. I don’t know Farsi. But I told one man he was sick, he had a heart problem and if he would believe on Christ, God would heal him. I said that through the Holy Spirit, and it was a sign to this who lives in Jerusalem and he was a Muslim.”

Despite the rejection of Jesus as the Son of God by Muslims, many especially in regions like the Middle East and Indonesia are reporting striking dreams and visions of a man dressed in white, with olive skin, piercing eyes and long hair, who identifies himself as Jesus. These visions often come in moments of sickness or deep spiritual searching and include answers to the questions these individuals have about life, purpose, and salvation.

The methods God uses to reveal Jesus to people include miracles and supernatural encounters, which transcend cultural and religious barriers, and what is happening now is part of that wondrous move of God.

“If you’re unsure if He is the Messiah, there’s one way you can find out. One of course is to study Scripture, but the other way is to seek God earnestly and ask Him to reveal who Jesus is, and I do believe if you will do that with a very sincere heart, He’s going to give you either a vision or a dream or He can actually send someone to you and sometimes angels do come in human form...” Stone says.

Musk and Trump Clash: You Won't Believe What Was Prophesied Before the Fallout

In a compelling and eye-opening conversation with Michael Knowles, John Ramirez, a former Satanist, revealed the dark spiritual mechanics behind psychics, tarot cards and mediums. What may appear harmless or even helpful on the surface is, in reality, a demonic trap designed to deceive, manipulate and ultimately destroy.

“Demons roam the earth. They’re spying on you. That’s called monitoring spirits,” Ramirez explains. These demonic entities observe people’s lives and report back to the psychic or medium, feeding them accurate information about the person’s past and present. It’s this eerie accuracy that initially captivates the seeker. “Now you’re blown away...you’re like, ‘Wow, how she know these things?’” he says. But it’s not the psychic who knows—it’s the demon whispering to her.

The setup begins subtly. A person visits a psychic, gives their name and is asked to divide tarot cards into three piles: past, present and future. The psychic then begins to speak astonishingly accurate details from the person's past—details no human could know. "Demons roam the earth. They know your past...they know your situation, your circumstance," Ramirez explains. This lures people into deeper curiosity and emotional openness.

The next step is reading the present. Again, demons feed the psychic information about the person's current struggles—issues with a spouse, kids, work or health. The seeker is now emotionally invested, believing the psychic truly understands them. "Now she has you spiritually," he warns. "She captivated you."

Then comes the catch: the future. The psychic might say something terrifying—your child is going to be in an accident, your spouse will leave you. But there's a solution, she says—a ritual or cleansing that will protect you, for a fee. "It's only going to cost you $1,500," he recounts. It's emotional manipulation cloaked in spiritual concern. Many people, desperate to prevent disaster, pay the price.

What's worse, the demonic realm can now manufacture circumstances to make the prediction appear true—an accident, a temptation, a falling out. "The demon that was talking to her goes home with you to produce these things," he reveals. It's not prophecy—it's orchestration. Now the person believes the psychic really did see the future and returns for more "help," pouring thousands into the deception.

"It's like a protection racket," he says. "She has you because now she's controlling you."

Join Charisma Magazine Online to follow everything the Holy Spirit is doing around the world!

The bottom line is sobering: these psychic revelations aren't fake—they're demonic. The devil doesn't know the future, but he manipulates the present to make his lies seem real. "The only person that knows the future, who has a great future for you, is Christ," Ramirez affirms.

The world of psychics, tarot cards, and fortune-telling may appear harmless or even helpful, but beneath the surface lies a dark spiritual reality. As Ramirez makes clear, what seems like insight is often demonic manipulation designed to entangle souls and derail destinies.

True freedom doesn't come from a deck of cards or a medium—it comes from the power of Jesus Christ, who breaks every chain and exposes every lie.
