

Seeking True Love? Wisdom from Christian Leaders on Building Strong Relationships

Valentine's Day can be a difficult time for Christian singles, as the world around them celebrates romance and companionship. It can even present itself to be a difficult time for those who are married but feel like their relationship is struggling. Regardless of what side of the equation you may fall under, there are biblical truths that can help guide you to have the very best marriage possible.

Below are a few pieces of practical advice and wise counsel from Christian leaders to help guide you in all your relationship needs.

Kap Chatfield

In a short reaction video, Kap Chatfield shared a pastor's advice on the power of intentionality. Chatfield urges people to simply do the things together that were originally part of their lives when they first began dating. Whether that's going out for coffee because a couple first met and went on coffee dates together, or whether they pick another activity to do together, the whole point and purpose is to keep getting to know the person you first fell in love with.

"Our culture puts so much emphasis on preparing for a wedding day. But the wedding day isn't the finish line. It's the starting point," Chatfield says.

Mike and Julie Signorelli

Pastor Mike Signorelli and his wife, Julie, also recently gave some practical advice using their past marriage struggles to help others couples and singles learn how to form better relationship habits that will lead each other to Christ.

John mentions how before he met and married his wife, Lisa, he dated other girls who were Christians with a pressurized feeling that he had to marry just because they were Christians. However, that's when God spoke to him, letting him know that none of them were his wife. Reflecting back on one instance in particular where was praying about going to a dance with one girl in particular the Lord gave him some clear insight.

"God said, 'You can go with her if you want, but if you want My will, don't.'"

Beware: 5 Deceptive Teachers

Leading Many Astray

What kinds of new things will the church see in the year 2025?

During the prophetic summit at Oasis Church, Tom and Jane Hamon revealed what God is showing them for our current time and season.

A Time of Divine Fulfillment

The Hamons emphasized that just as Jesus came at the appointed time, God is now positioning His people for prophetic fulfillment. In this season, believers must recognize the divine alignments God is orchestrating to bring His promises to pass.

“I hear the Lord saying, ‘As it was in the days of the early church that I am bringing the beautiful gate anointing, the right time gate anointing, where there will be kairos moments in the midst of our chronos of marking time.’ God’s saying, ‘The appointed times are upon you,’” Tom Hamon prophesies.

The Unveiling of Prophetic Promises

Referencing Jacob’s encounter in Genesis 28, the Hamons spoke of an open heaven where God is releasing supernatural blessings. Just as Jacob became a gatekeeper for God’s purposes, the church is called to take its place as a bridge between heaven and earth, stewarding spiritual inheritance.

Beyond these prophetic promises finally manifesting themselves, the couple also gives insight that the church as a whole is getting ready to go to an entirely new place.

Entering a 'Cyrus Season'

This new position we are headed toward is a Cyrus season—a time when God is raising up leaders who will reinforce divine decrees and rebuild righteous foundations. The church must be ready to align with this movement, recognizing that God is establishing new structures for His purposes to advance. After seeing exposure after exposure last year, it's time for the rebuilding of the church to form on firm, holy and righteous foundations.

This Cyrus season could also be quite prophetic when we see it in terms of what the Lord may have planned for America. Since assuming the position as the 47th president of the United States, Donald Trump has been considered to be like King Cyrus from religious figures like Lance Wallnau. Both Jews and Christians around the world are hoping that he will be the one to rebuild the Third Temple. This description of Trump just may go to show that a coming "Cyrus season" is not just religious, but political as well.

The Church Will Be Sharpened for Battle

The Hamons declared that the church is being made sharp and effective during this time, prepared to break through barriers and shift atmospheres. Right now, believers are called to wield their authority with precision and boldness.

A Year of Divine Provision

A powerful theme throughout the summit was the view of a prophetic shift from scarcity to abundance. God is positioning His people to step into supernatural supply for kingdom advancement. As voices like Tomi Arayomi and Katie Souza have previously said, we are entering a time to build our Goshens, or rather, safety nets, to provide for us now and in the years to come. This divine provision, however, is not merely financial but includes an increase in resources, influence, and anointing.

Challenging False Narratives in Media

The Hamons also released a word regarding the media mountain, declaring that God is raising up truth-bearers to challenge deception. Additionally, they spoke of Iran's prophetic destiny, emphasizing that God will move against the spirit of anti-Semitism and the stronghold of the Prince of Persia.

"Every false narrative, every false prophet that's in that positioning in the mountain of media are getting ready to shake and break and quake," says Tom Hamon. "God says, 'I'm also going to deal with Iran in this hour.'"

Amanda Grace: Prophetic Warning of Coming Justice and Exposure

God is a God of righteousness who will not tolerate wickedness. Recently we've seen all kinds of things uncovered in the church body, then there is the exposure on the national level where President Trump is dismantling DEI. Could this all point to God working out His justice and righteousness within our day and age?

"It's going to get a bit the Lord, until the ignorance stops, and My ways are submitted to," she prophesies.

Grace warns of coming distractions that would lead people to get stirred up in emotionalism, taking their eyes off of Christ.

“It is a set up to step into major error because your emotions are blinding you. ‘Justice cannot become an obsession,’ says the Lord. It has to be a mission, and the two are very different. And those who have not fully matured have caused part of the body [of Christ]...to have an obsession with cries for justice instead of a mission.”

Grace warns that God will not bless those who are working out of obsession because obsession is a form of bondage. Instead, God is calling for His order to come forth at this very moment.

Let us heed this warning, that the body of Christ not be caught up in emotionalism in any area of our lives. Whether it's making decisions at church, at home, politically or at work, God is calling His people to live a life of order and true righteousness, not one of obsession and fear.

Faith on Fire: University of Kentucky Experiences Powerful Revival

Last night's (Feb. 12) Unite US movement, which is championed by Jennie Allen, Tonya Prewett and Jonathan Pokluda, saw a swarm of college students at the University of Kentucky come to worship the Lord, with thousands giving their lives over to Jesus, proving the Holy Spirit is moving more each day in this season.

Unite US shared the news on Instagram about this powerful time of worship, salvation and baptism.

No better way to kick off the semester than nearly 8,000 students gathered in Rupp Arena to lift the name of Jesus.

We've been praying for this night for months, and God met us here again. Over 2,000 students flooded the altar to surrender their lives to Jesus, and we know it's just the beginning of all He has in store.

We ended the night celebrating life change with the coldest water baptisms we've ever experienced.

We will never forget Unite Kentucky!

This great news comes after last year's great moves of God were felt at colleges such as Florida State University, Ohio State, Mississippi State University, Ole Miss, and the University of Tennessee, all following the Asbury Revival of a year earlier from February 2023.

While we continue to see a shift in the culture with many young people now seeking out truth and authenticity, this is perhaps one of the greatest times to be alive with the harvest of God becoming a reality.

Prophetic Update: Why the Red Heifer Ceremony Could Happen Soon

Pastor Greg Locke is on the ground in Israel at the Western Wall in Jerusalem, reporting firsthand to Charisma Media about the upcoming red heifer ceremony—a significant prophetic event believed to be a step toward the construction of the Third Temple.

Despite differing opinions on its significance, the ceremony is moving forward, carrying deep implications for biblical prophecy.

“With Trump being in office he’s accentuating what’s happening in a good way because prophetically, he’s coming in, taking over Gaza, the relocation of the Gazans, and now God’s calling more of the Jewish people back from around the world,” Locke says.

As the world watches current events day by day, many believers see undeniable evidence that biblical prophecy is being fulfilled. Here are 10 prophecies happening right now that point to the imminent return of Jesus Christ.

1. Worshiping Creation Instead of God

The apostle Paul warned that people would worship creation rather than the Creator. This is evident in the rise of New Age spirituality, as seen when a female pastor at the DNC convention prayed not to God, but to “the universe.”

This is far from what Scripture teaches us, and instead it embraces the rise of the New Age and occult seeping in our society today.

2. Scoffers in the Last Days

Peter prophesied that in the last days, people would mock the return of Christ. This is seen today with outspoken atheists like Richard Dawkins and even some church leaders denying the second coming. In one shocking moment, Dr. Ray Hugins led his congregation at the Afrikan Village and Cultural Center to chant, “There will be no rapture,, and Jesus is not coming back.”

3. A World Like the Days of Noah

Jesus foretold that before His return, the world would resemble the wickedness of Noah’s time. This is evident in increasing lawlessness and moral decay, such as the dark and disturbing imagery seen throughout pop culture, especially in regards to music, movies and social media.

4. The Destruction of Damascus

The Bible prophesies that Damascus will become “a ruinous heap” in Isaiah 17:1. This is something that L.A. Marzulli has addressed in the past in his interviews with Charisma Media, when he pointed to gateways and supernatural portals being on the earth over these specific geopolitical regions.

5. Nations Turning Against Israel

Scripture foretells that Israel will be the focus of global conflict. Ongoing wars, rising tensions and the recent attacks by Hamas confirm this prophecy is in motion. As time moves on, we will see which nations first turn away from Israel.

6. False Peace and Sudden Destruction

Global leaders frequently use the phrase “peace and security.” This is something the United Nations has called for, which perfectly aligns with prophetic warnings about a one world government.

7. A Coming Peace Treaty

The Bible speaks of a leader who will broker a temporary peace in the Middle East. Current geopolitical movements suggest such a treaty could be on the horizon. In the book of Daniel, there is a mention of seven-year covenant made by a ruler, the Antichrist. Discussions about Middle Eastern peace efforts, including talks involving Israel, Saudi Arabia, and the United States, point to the increasing likelihood of such an agreement.

8. Third Temple and the Red Heifer

The Third Temple must be built for end-time prophecy to be fulfilled. Red heifers, necessary for purification, are already in Israel, awaiting the right moment. Those who oversee the red heifers in Israel are carefully monitoring the situation, believing that once conditions align, they will be sacrificed to prepare for the Temple's purification. This is seen as a major prophetic milestone and a sign that we are drawing closer to the final days.

9. Hamas and Prophetic Significance

Some believe that Hamas' recent invasion is linked to the prophesied turmoil surrounding Israel and the rebuilding of the Temple. The ongoing war and tensions in the region align with biblical prophecies of increasing conflict leading to the end times. As nations align themselves for or against Israel, these events could be setting the stage for larger-scale fulfillment of prophetic warnings regarding the Middle East.

10. Jesus: The Ultimate Fulfillment of Prophecy

All prophecy ultimately points to Christ. His sacrifice replaces the need for temple offerings, and His return is imminent. The question is: Are we ready? Right now, we are seeing the signs in the skies and the times, warnings that Jesus gave us about the Second Coming. Now, we must make sure that we are focused on Him, preparing for the day of this great return.

Controversial Denomination's Absurd Take on Communion and Alcohol

The Church of England has been riddled with controversial stances over time that appear to be anything but godly. The latest change? Only real alcohol can be served during communion.

This new take on communion is quite different than what most would expect. Instead of barring actual, alcoholic wine, only wine that has been fermented will be allowed, according to The Standard.

The denomination promises that they will allow the alcohol to be removed following fermentation. This change, however, is not the only new take on communion. Gluten-free bread has also been barred from the denomination's communion procedures, stating that only wheat flour bread will be acceptable.

While this change raises eyebrows and concerns, this is far from the first controversial move on behalf of the Church of England. At the end of last year, archbishop of Canterbury, Justin Welby, resigned following abuse allegations that were made against the denomination. Prior to that, discussions were in the works to even rid of the word “Church” from their name after spending a decade opening 900 “new things” with none of these dioceses being described as a church.

Throughout the history of the church, alcohol has long been a point of contention among believers. While some advocate for abstinence due to addiction concerns and drunkenness, others argue that Jesus turned water into wine, presenting a less concerned take on the substance.

Jesus and OnlyFans? Russell Brand Shares the Gospel with Surprising Guest

In a striking and deeply spiritual exchange, Russell Brand—once bound by addiction but now a man transformed by the power of Christ—sat down with OnlyFans model Lily Phillips for a conversation that was nothing short of eye-opening.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

Brand, who has been radically changed by the power of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, attempted to speak with Phillips, an OnlyFans model who became known for having slept with 100 men in one day. The tears she shed in an interview afterward showed the world the heartbreaking reality of what it looks like to be stuck in this kind of addiction, yet, she still plans to continue down this path. So, Brand spoke to her, urging Phillips to see herself as more than just a body for consumption but as a soul deeply loved by God.

"In Corinthians, Paul says, 'Did you not know that your body is a temple?'" Brand says to Phillips.

Brand points out to Phillips that his own past of sexual immorality led him to realize how destructive this was to his life, and that we were created for a life to be lived with our Creator. He spoke words of truth and protection over her, reminding her that her worth is not in money or fleeting pleasure but in the identity given by God.

Phillips, while defending her choices and financial success, was met with Brand's genuine concern for her spiritual well-being. Their conversation served as a powerful clash between the world's view of self-worth and the biblical truth that our bodies are temples of the Holy Spirit.

This conversation is a reminder that so many are lost in the ways of the world because of the money and fame offered. However, our souls are more precious than anything this world could possibly give. The unexpected encounter is a reminder that no one is beyond the reach of God's grace, and the Gospel can shine even in the darkest places.
