David Diga Hernandez: How You

Can Grow with God in 2025

In a recent video by Larry and Tiz Huch, Larry Huch shared his thoughts about 2025 and what it will look like for the body of believers, America and Israel.

“I’m calling it the golden era. I’m calling it the signs and wonders and miracles era,” Huch says. “Those of us who stood up for America and those of us who are standing up for the nation of Israel, we are going into a time that the church has been waiting for since the time of Jesus.”

Huch says we are getting ready to enter into a time full of miracles, blessing and end time transfer of wealth. He further describes how Trump is being used in a similar way for America as King Cyrus was used to bring restoration to Israel.

“We’re moments away from a golden era, and I don’t believe just for a year; I believe for four years of blessing of God on your life, on the kingdom of God, on Christians, on Jews; it’s going to be amazing,” Huch says.

This golden era connected to the leader of the nation was also prophesied about by the late Kim Clement after he received a vision from the Lord.

“They were one. One party. One party of people,” Clement prophesied. "Amongst them stood one that God had set aside to be the leader of this nation. And then I heard, 'gold.'"

WATCH: Supernatural Music Plays During Worship Gathering

During the Sunday service on Dec. 1, 2024, Kenneth Copeland shared his prophetic word for 2025 with the Eagle Mountain International Church congregation.

"In 2024, we're on victory shore," Copeland says. "We're still there. And I heard in my spirit, 'In 2025, the nation will come alive. And confess that daily throughout 2024, especially concerning the election.' Did it come alive or not?"

Now, Copeland says, we must get to work with the Holy Spirit for what is to come in 2025 and the years following it.

"Now, the work only begins because the time has come to believe we win. Because it seemed good to me and the Holy Ghost to say that 2026 is the 'big fix.' And we're working toward the midterms, and we will have the red wave of the midterms," Copeland says.

Copeland says that we should have our eyes not only on the political midterms, but on how we want to see our own lives change in the coming years.

"What about your midterm? What are you going to be doing two years from now?" Copeland asks. "What about 2026? Get on it. Get on it now and begin to pray in the spirit about it, and listen to the Lord and do what He says [to] do. Take care of spiritual business, and do it with a smile."

Copeland says through prayer, he received words for 2024 through 2029.

"I've been praying about the years; 2024 was on victory shore, 2025 the nation comes alive, 2026 is the big fix, 2028 we go through the gate, 2029 all things will be divine," he says.

Historic Evidence of Christianity Discovered in This Unlikely Location

Jesus left us with the task of taking the Good News of His life, death and Resurrection to the entire world. Now, we are seeing that this commission may have made it to an unlikely destination, much sooner on the historic timeline than we previously knew.

Evidence of Christianity's spread north of Italy was recently publicized, according to Fox News. This key find made by archaeologists is now being hailed as one of the world's "most important testimonies of early Christianity."

The find was an engraving on silver foil, which is now being called The Frankfurt silver inscription, which was made public by the Frankfurt Archaeological Museum. There are eighteen lines written in Latin on the silver inscription, and it originates between A.D. 230 and 260. The discovery of the inscription happened in 2018, and it was found in a silver amulet.

The museum claims that the inscription was found in a grave from the third century located in Hesse, Germany. It reads, "In the name of Saint Titus, holy, holy, holy! In the name of Jesus Christ, God's Son!" It also calls for the amulet to care for "the man who gives to the will of the Lord Jesus Christ, God's Son," and "The heavenly, the earthly and the underground and every tongue confess..."

What makes this find so unique is that the text only references Christianity, with no mentions of Judaism or paganism. Previously, faith mixtures were known as the main practice until about the fifth century. The author's use of Latin instead of Hebrew or Greek also makes this find remarkable.

Emma Stark's 2025 Prophecy: From 'Dismantling to Establishing'

"The most important things in your life happen in the quiet with God," says Cahn. "The greatest things come often in the smallest, unlikely ways. What appears to be the greatest things are often little things in the sight of heaven.”

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

Cahn says it is the things first recognized in the heart, much like our relationship with Jesus, that end up becoming the driving force for where we are going. These are the events the world offers no room for, yet they often are of the greatest importance. This was true for Mary and Joseph when none of the inns in Bethlehem had a vacancy which led to Jesus’ birth in a stable. The greatest event in human history took place in a quiet, insignificant location.

“Just like Bethlehem, it starts out then it changed your whole life,” he says. “So often [with] the most important events, there’s no room in this world for the most important things in your life.

“It was in the quiet, in the fullness of time, God sent forth His Word.”

Update: What to Know About the Red Heifer Ceremony

In an exclusive interview with Charisma Media, Byron Stinson gave an update on the red heifer ceremony, and what we need to be on the lookout for next.

Stinson had the privilege of bringing five red heifers from Texas to Jerusalem in hopes that the prophetic ceremony would soon take place, in preparation for the ushering in of the Third Temple.

“In Numbers 19, there’s a law that says you are to bring this red cow, and the red cow is the offering or ceremony of purification. And what you do is you take the ashes of this cow and you mix it with the living water from the Gihon Spring and it brings purification, physically away from death,” Stinson explains. “Everyone’s suffering under death. Anything you can see, touch, smell, anything, it’s death.”

Stinson points out that Christians have had our sins atoned for by the blood of Christ, and the hope now is that, at the end times, we will see even more of the physical manifestations of God bringing His kingdom to earth.

“There’s a time that comes this physical manifestation that we can actually see, and that’s part of the process of bringing eternal life, [the] return to the Garden of Eden,” Stinson says.

Stinson says that originally they imported five of the red heifers to Israel, and kept them near Gilgal before moving them to Shiloh, having the cows follow the same footsteps as the Tabernacle did in the Old Testament.

“All five of them are there. Two have grown some white or black hairs, and so they're no longer good for the ceremony, but they're excellent for breeding," Stinson says. "So, there's two of them that have been bred back and there's still three that are pure [and] could be used for the ceremony."
