

Hybrid Beings and Biblical Prophecy: Are We Entering the Days Jesus Warned About?

Something unusual is happening in the headlines, and those with eyes to see are taking notice.

A 10-member Gaza Peace Board. A 10-point nuclear proposal with Iran. A 10-day Israel-Lebanon ceasefire. Ten Nazi officers hanged at Nuremberg in a moment that historians compared to Purim. Whether in diplomatic chambers or ancient Scripture, the number 10 keeps surfacing with striking persistence.

“There is no mistake that we keep seeing the number 10 associated with all of this over and over and over again,” Amanda Grace said in a recent live broadcast. “It connects back to Revelation, Daniel and the book of Esther.”

From Esther to Iran: A Prophetic Thread

The thread begins in the book of Esther, where Haman, who was raised to political power and demanded the worship of all, and his ten sons were destroyed by the people of God. The parallels to end-times prophecy are unmistakable.

“Haman and his 10 sons are a representation of the Antichrist and the 10 kings that will rule with him,” Grace explained. “Haman is raised to high political power. Everyone must bow to him. Mordecai refuses to bow... and so he wages war against the saints.”

This pattern, Grace argues, echoes forward from Genesis to Revelation. In Genesis 10, 10 descendants of Noah's line are named, at least five of whom reappear in the war coalition of Ezekiel 38. In Daniel 7, the fourth beast rises with 10 horns representing 10 kings. In Revelation 17:12–13, those 10 kings give their power and authority to the beast “for a single hour.”

Daniel's Window and the Prince of Persia

Grace also points specifically to Daniel chapter 10, where the angel Gabriel was resisted by the Prince of Persia for 21 days—a three-day window—before breaking through with God's answer to Daniel's prayers.

“I believe within this window there is a great potential for something to blow wide open with Iran,” Grace declared, “either with the power struggle that's within their government right now, or within things to blow at the Strait of Hormuz.”

The Lion, the Eagle and the Confrontation With Persia

Daniel 7:4 describes the first empire as “like a lion” with “the wings of an eagle.” Grace draws a striking parallel: England, historically symbolized by the lion, gave birth to America, symbolized by the eagle and then “stood on its own feet” as a nation.

“Iran's old flag, when the Shah ruled, was a lion, and the United States symbol is an eagle,” Grace noted, connecting the imagery directly to the current standoff.

“A lion with eagle's wings,” Grace concluded, “and it stood up like a man because we are the ones doing the operation.”

A Warning for This Hour

The cumulative weight of these alignments, from Esther, Daniel, Revelation and current geopolitics, is meant to serve as a prophetic alarm.

“We are on a prophetic collision course with the latter events of Daniel and the book of Revelation that we are racing towards,” Grace warned. “The number 10 is echoing in this hour as an arrow of warning, as an announcement to go back to His Word because the Antichrist and the 10-king confederation is coming.”

This is the moment to open the Bible and recognize what was prophesied then is now appearing in real time. We are undoubtedly living in biblical times.

Pope Leo Sparks Global Outrage After These 3 Controversial Remarks

Pope Leo is back at it again making statements that are causing quite the stir online.

Response to Blessing Same-Sex Couples

While being asked a variety of questions by reporters, Pope Leo condemned the decision of German bishops to bless same-sex couples. However, he did so by downplaying the severity of this topic.

“I think it’s very important to understand that the unity or division of the church should not revolve around sexual matters,” the Pope stated. “We tend to think that when the church is talking about morality, the only issue of morality is sexual. And in reality, I believe there are much greater and more important issues such as justice, equality, freedom of men and women, freedom of religion...”

He continued, “The Holy See has already spoken to the German bishops. The Holy See has made it clear that we do not agree with the formalized blessing of couples, in this case, homosexual couples, as you asked, or couples in irregular situations, beyond what was specifically, if you will, allowed for by Pope Francis in saying all people receive blessings.”

Pope Leo XIV says that he and the Vatican rejects Cardinal Marx move to allow the blessing of homosexual couples in his Diocese:

“The Holy See has already spoken to the German bishops. The Holy See has made it clear that we do not agree with the formalized blessing of couples,...

Thoughts on Capital Punishment

The Pope also responded with his take on capital punishment and justice.

“I condemn all actions that are unjust. I condemn the taking of people’s lives. I condemn capital punishment. I believe human life is to be respected, and that all people from conception to natural birth, their life should be respected and protected.”

The Pope then added comments that clearly dug into the current conflict with Iran.

“When a regime, when a country takes decisions which takes away the lives of other people unjustly, then obviously that is something that should be condemned.”

NEW: Pope Leo says regimes and countries that take the lives of other people "unjustly" should be condemned.

“I condemn all actions that are unjust. I condemn the taking of people's lives. I condemn capital punishment.”

Pope’s Photo of a Killed Muslim Child

Another comment the Pope made to reporters is that he keeps with him the memory of a Muslim child who died in Lebanon.

“I carry with me a photo of a Muslim child, who, during my visit to Lebanon, was standing there holding a sign that said, ‘Welcome, Pope Leo,’ and in this latest phase of the war, he was killed,” the pope stated.

Pope Leo XIV:

I carry in my pocket the image of a Muslim child killed in Lebanon... I cannot be in favor of war.

Now, as we prepare for the Pope’s upcoming June visit to Spain, we can only imagine what might come of his next tour.

Teen Charged in Synagogue Attack Plan to ‘Kill as Many Jews as Possible’

An 18-year-old woman is facing serious charges after authorities say she helped plan a violent attack targeting a Jewish synagogue in Texas, with the intent to cause mass casualties.

According to The Times of Israel, Angelina Han Hicks of North Carolina has been charged in connection with an alleged conspiracy to attack a synagogue in Houston. A 16-year-old Texas resident was also charged in the case, raising concerns about the involvement of minors in what investigators describe as a deeply disturbing plot.

Officials say the suspects intended to carry out a vehicle-ramming attack against a synagogue congregation—an act designed to inflict maximum harm in a place meant for worship and peace.

Intent to ‘Kill as Many Jews as Possible’

Court documents cited by The Times of Israel reveal the chilling nature of the alleged plan. Investigators say the goal was explicit: to “kill as many Jews as possible.”

The reported target was Congregation Beth Israel, a synagogue in Houston. The alleged method—a vehicle driven into a group of people—mirrors tactics seen in past acts of terror around the world.

Charges and Ongoing Investigation

Hicks now faces multiple charges, including conspiracy to commit murder and conspiracy to commit assault. She is currently being held on a $10 million bond in North Carolina.

Authorities emphasized that public safety remains a top priority as the investigation continues across state lines. The involvement of multiple suspects and the nature of the alleged plan have prompted heightened concern among law enforcement officials.

A Call to Stand Watchful and Firm

In moments like these, we are reminded that the battle we face is not merely physical—it is spiritual. Scripture warns that “the thief comes only to steal and kill and destroy” (John 10:10), revealing the deeper forces at work behind acts of violence and hatred.

But the Word of God also calls His people to stand firm. “No weapon formed against you shall prosper” (Isa. 54:17). Even as darkness attempts to rise, God remains sovereign, and His light cannot be overcome.

This is a time for the church to pray—for protection over communities, for exposure of evil and for hearts to be transformed by the truth of Christ. Where hatred seeks to divide and destroy, the gospel stands as the only answer powerful enough to heal, restore and bring lasting peace.

LA Marzulli Exposes Chilling Near-Death Journey Through Spiritual Realms

After more than five decades in ministry, Benny Hinn is not slowing down. At 73, the evangelist is traveling to Africa, Central America, and beyond – driven not by ambition, but by a singular conviction: the Lord is coming, and the church must be ready.

“This life is short, saints,” Hinn declared in a recent message. “My love for the Lord has just grown and grown and grown. Because I’ve seen his love. His grace. His sweetness. His mercy. His long-suffering.”

Only the Word Can Keep You

Central to Hinn’s message is an uncompromising insistence on the power of Scripture.

“The gifts of the Spirit cannot keep you. Only the Bible can keep you. Signs and wonders will not keep you. Jesus said, ‘By their fruit you’ll know them’ – not by their gifts.”

To order Alwyn Uys’ book, Speak Lord, visit .

He cited a study of over 200,000 people showing that reading the Bible four or more times per week produced dramatic spiritual, emotional and physical transformation – reducing the grip of sin and bondage in measurable ways. “People can have a gift and miss heaven,” he warned. “But the fruit of the Spirit is what will get you in.”

Strangers and Pilgrims

Drawing from Hebrews 11, Hinn painted the picture of Abraham: a man who left home not knowing where he was going, sojourning in tents, yet looking for “a city which had foundations, whose builder and maker is God.” This, Hinn argues, is the posture every believer must adopt.

“We are strangers on this earth,” he said plainly. While much of the world races toward Mars and the stars, Hinn remains uninterested: “This earth is going to be destroyed. The heavens are the work of His hands – they shall perish.” He grounded his point in Psalm 102, 2 Peter 3, and 1 John 2:17, which together form a convergence of Scripture, all pointing to the same conclusion: the world is passing away, and only the one who does the will of God abides forever.

Three Responses to a World That Is Passing Away

From 2 Peter 3:11–12, Hinn drew out three concrete and urgent callings for every believer who truly believes the world will be dissolved:

1. Live holy

“What manner of persons ought ye to be?” Hinn asked, quoting Peter directly. The answer: holy conduct and godliness. The knowledge that this world is temporary should not produce despair – it should produce holiness. “Since we have a different destiny and we’re going to be with the Lord, then our lifestyle should be different. We should not live like the world or even talk like them.”

2. Look forward

Peter calls believers to be “looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God.” Hinn connected this to Titus 2, where Paul describes grace itself as “teaching us that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously and godly in this present world – looking for that blessed hope.” We are to be a people whose eyes are fixed on the horizon, not entangled in the affairs of this life.

3. Hasten: preach the gospel

The word “hasting” in 2 Peter 3:12, Hinn explained, is not passive anticipation. It is active, urgent labor. “We are not waiting passively for zero hour to strike: we are active in preaching the gospel.” He sees this not as a metaphor but as a personal mandate. “There’s no such thing as retirement in the ministry. We don’t retire. We just keep going.”

A Shortened Season

Hinn expressed genuine urgency about the accelerating pace of technology, noting with concern that artificial intelligence is now, in his words, “creating itself.” He believes God will shorten the days for the sake of the elect – just as Jesus promised in Matthew 24 – because technology is eroding the soil in which faith grows.

“Forget all this stuff out there. Get to know Him through His word. Get close to the Lord. Cleave to the Lord. Begin to live a holy life.”

Hinn’s call was simple and direct: read the Bible, find a church where the Word is preached, share the gospel with your neighbors, your family and everyone you meet.

“When you open the Bible, you look into the face of Jesus. He starts talking to you. He starts changing you. He becomes real to you through His precious Word.”

Young NASA Engineer Dies in Fiery Crash After Vanishing: Is There a Pattern Emerging?

The sudden and tragic death of a young NASA engineer is raising unsettling questions – not only about what happened in his final hours, but whether a deeper pattern may be emerging behind the scenes.

According to reporting from the New York Post, which was originally published by Fox News, 29-year-old aerospace electrical engineer Joshua LeBlanc, who worked on advanced nuclear propulsion systems tied to future space missions, was found dead last year after a fiery Tesla crash in Huntsville, Alabama, following a sudden and unexplained disappearance.

A Brilliant Mind Behind Critical Space Technology

LeBlanc was not just another engineer – he was part of cutting-edge efforts shaping the future of space exploration. The report notes that his work included involvement in Space Nuclear Propulsion and the DRACO program, a project aimed at developing next-generation propulsion technology that could one day support missions to Mars.

His role placed him among a select group of scientists working at the intersection of national security, advanced technology and the future of human spaceflight.

A Sudden Disappearance Raises Red Flags

The timeline of events surrounding LeBlanc's death has left both investigators and his family searching for answers.

According to the article, his family reported him missing in the early morning hours after he failed to report to work – something they found completely out of character. Even more concerning, he allegedly left his phone and wallet behind, with no indication that he had plans to travel.

To order Jonathan Cahn's new book, The Altar of Pergamon, visit .

Tracking data later showed that his Tesla had been parked at the Huntsville airport for several hours before he drove away.

That unexplained stop has become one of the central mysteries in the case.

A Fiery Crash and Delayed Identification

Later that same day, LeBlanc's vehicle veered off the road, struck a guardrail and multiple trees, and erupted into flames. The fire was so intense that both the vehicle and the body inside were burned past recognition.

Authorities were unable to immediately identify the victim. It took days of forensic analysis before confirming that the remains belonged to LeBlanc.

A Pattern Emerging?

While the incident itself is tragic, what has heightened concern is the broader context surrounding it.

The report discussed how LeBlanc's death may be one of at least a dozen cases since 2022 involving scientists—many connected to nuclear or space-related work—who have either died under unusual circumstances or gone missing.

Federal Attention and Growing Questions

The situation has escalated to the national level, with federal agencies actively reviewing the circumstances. Even President Donald Trump has acknowledged the investigation, signaling that more information could emerge as officials continue to examine the facts.

For now, however, key questions remain unanswered:

- Why did LeBlanc go to the airport?
- What led to the crash?
- And is this truly an isolated tragedy – or part of something larger?

Truth and Disclosure

In moments like these, when tragedy intersects with mystery, the human instinct is to search for clarity – to uncover what is hidden and bring truth into the light. While investigations continue and authorities work to piece together the facts, this situation serves as a sobering reminder that not everything remains concealed forever.

Scripture reminds us that “there is nothing hidden that will not be disclosed” (Luke 8:17). Whether in matters of government, science or the unseen complexities of this world, truth ultimately has a way of surfacing.

As questions linger around this case and others like it, many are left not only seeking answers – but also looking upward, recognizing that full revelation, in every sense, rests in the hands of God, who sees all and brings all things into the light in His perfect time.
