

Trump, Daniels and the Kentucky Derby: A Stunning Prophetic Connection

Is there a prophetic connection between Donald Trump, Stormy Daniels and the Kentucky Derby?

In a shocking prophetic word, Amanda Grace discussed how an unlikely connection between the Trump trial, Stormy Daniels' testimony and the winning horse of the Kentucky Derby are all woven together.

Grace says there is spiritual significance lurking behind the meaning of Daniels' name.

"Stormy is of British origin. It means storm or tempest," Grace says. "Daniels [means] God is my judge. So, her name really means if we put it together, a tempest or witch priestess whom God will judge."

What is worth noting, according to Grace, is that Daniels has put herself in the judgment seat by testifying against Trump. Further, the timing of the winning horse from the Kentucky Derby links back to Daniels' name.

"A horse by the name of Mystik Dan wins this race," Grace says.

Grace relates the mystic element of 'Stormy' as a tempest back to the name of 'Mystik' and Daniels with Dan as the tribe of Dan was judged by God for idolatry. She also points out that Daniels is into the use of tarot cards.

So, how does all this connect to a court trial around Trump?

Grace says a dream she had back at the end of October about Trump having a bruised leg has come full circle to this situation. She believes it is a symbol of the Lord allowing things to be exposed for God to fulfill His ultimate, greater plans.

“The pants over the wound on the leg represents a coverup, trying to coverup a wound, trying to keep it from coming out, trying to keep those from seeing the ugliness of it all,” Grace says. “This is a Jacob moment. Jacob wrestling with the Lord and the angel of the Lord.”

“Trump is being humbled,” she added. “The Lord wants to help him, and his mouth to a degree is actually working against him for what the Lord is trying to accomplish. So, the Lord has allowed his mouth to be bridled right now.”

She further says that sometimes we believe something is of the enemy, when in reality God is allowing things to happen a certain way because of the plans He has purposed for us.

“Sometimes God has to restrain in order to prevent someone from totally sabotaging the plans He is walking through for their life, for a nation, for a family,” Grace says. “Mystik Dan winning the Kentucky Derby and Stormy Daniels taking the stand are all running in tandem of each other. This is not by mistake.”

The Spiritual Secret to Clear Mental Health

During Mental Health Awareness month, many people may be wondering what more they can possibly do to experience peace of mind. All of us struggle with stress, anxiety and worries. However, there's a spiritual secret that has been proven to help carry the weight of the world.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up to date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

As Fox News reported, the mental health crisis is gripping an entire generation, with suicide rates higher right now than even following the Great Depression. However, a 2020 study by Harvard showed that those who attended religious services were much less likely to fall to this kind of fate. In fact, 68% of women and 33% of men who found themselves in the pews were less likely to die by this manner.

So, could church attendance be a key factor to a sense of a more meaningful existence?

Through church attendance, we not only have the opportunity to connect corporately with God and others, but we are fed with the Word of God and gain the chance to spend time with others serving the community.

Yet, even with God as a clear necessity for a sound mind, it is those in the mental health profession who are most lacking when it comes to faith.

As Fox noted, the journal Sociology of Religion recorded that 61% of psychology professors consider themselves either atheists or agnostics. If the people who are supposed to help us with our mental well-being are missing the secret ingredient of faith, it's a wonder if they too struggle on more unprecedented levels with mental illnesses.

We will undoubtedly face attacks against our mind on a daily basis. This is because our battle is not against flesh and blood but against powers and principalities. There's a reason Scripture tells us God has not given us spirit of fear, but of power, love and a sound mind (2 Tim. 1:7). God desires to be the peace with us in the middle of the storms and circumstances we face.

Mental health struggles are real, but God asks that we cling to Him no matter what things look like. We can combat mental health issues using therapy and the Word of God. We can war against the devil's tactics and truly be overcomers in both the spiritual and physical realm because the blood of Christ was more than enough to heal us from all sicknesses, including those we face in the mind.

How Can God Use Ministers Living in Sin?

It's a question many of us have wondered: how can God use ministers who are living in sin? It seems as though everyday we see ministers of the gospel sharing about some type of controversy they've been a part of, including affairs, scams and other debacles. At the same time, it appears that God still uses these same men and women who have been living in outright sin to do good works. How can this be so?

Is it possible for ministers who have fallen into sin to truly be used for healing, deliverance and the spreading of the gospel?

In one of his latest livestreams, Vlad Savchuk answered this very question about how God continues to use those who have fallen wayside from His glory.

"The falling of a man of God is like the falling of an airplane from the sky," Savchuk says. "It is heartbreaking. It's devastating to everyone under their ministry, especially to the victims of the sins of that minister and the enemy uses that to undermine the faith of the believers."

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up to date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

The first thing Savchuk notes is not all accusations are true. No matter what we are hearing about a certain minister, it is important to make sure that rumors and gossip alone do not dictate what we believe about someone. Instead, it is wise and prudent to have confirmation that the accusations are true.

It's also key to note that a platform size does not guarantee that a minister is a faithful servant of the Lord.

"Miracles in a ministry don't necessarily mean God is pleased with the minister," Savchuk says. "A minister used by God may have gifts but lack fruit. They may possess power, but lack purity. They may exhibit charisma, but lack character."

Savchuk also says the difference in inward and outward anointing plays a huge role in the influence of a minister.

"A minister can lose the inner anointing before his outer anointing expires," Savchuk says. "There's two anointings. There's the Holy Spirit living in us, that inner anointing as the Bible says in 1 John 2:27 [and] 2 Corinthians chapter 1 verse 21 and 22. But then we see there's also outer anointing for the service."

Savchuk says this other anointing can be found in Acts 1:8, and "empowers your service to others."

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

As Savchuk points out, this means someone can momentarily continue to move in their gifts until exposure comes.

"When you grieve the Holy Spirit by lacking holiness, it diminishes that inner anointing," Savchuk says. "Though you may temporarily, and for some time operate in the gifts in the power until of course you get exposed or until your private life caves in so much that even your public life can no longer support it. That's why the Bible says that God's gifts and callings are irrevocable."

This means someone can move in a calling, operating in ministry while still completely grieving the Holy Spirit. However, this anointing will stop flowing at some point.

One way we can look at this is that God gives us grace and time to repent and return to Him so we can continue to be used by Him. Perhaps this is a call for not only ministers, but for all people to align their hearts with God's will and purpose for their lives.

Netanyahu Promises to Destroy Enemies on Israel's Independence Day

Israel's Independence Day looked drastically different this year amid war with Gaza.

As the Jerusalem Post reported, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu offered hope and encouragement in the middle of the ongoing war. He spoke of the great ways the spirit of God had delivered Israel from their enemies in the past and the great battle they face at this moment against Hamas.

"The desire to destroy us has not disappeared," Netanyahu says. "We saw this on October 7. This year's Independence Day is not like any other year's Independence Day. The war is still raging. It was forced upon us on that dark day of the horrendous massacre.”

Netanyahu promised the people of Israel the hostages taken by Hamas would be found and brought back home. He vowed to make sure those who have been evacuated from their homes would be able to go back safely. Above all, he promised for the eradication of Hamas in honor of the wounded and slain.

“When I meet many of them, and with the families of the fallen, they say: ‘Our heroes did not die in vain, they were not wounded in vain. Do not stop until the Hamas monsters are eradicated.’ And I promise: That is what we will do,” Netanyahu says.

Netanyahu went on to encourage the Israelis that they will make it through this hardship together.

“The torches that we set ablaze this evening will shine a bright light on the miracle that is our country. They recount, in flames, the story of our incredible nation. We will raise our flags and torches in honor of our nation,” Netanyahu says.

This powerful speech by Israel’s leader comes at a time when darkness has even taken over the celebrations in place for Independence Day.

The Israel Hayom reported that instead of having Israeli dignitaries come out to celebrate the torch lighting on Mount Herzl, the event was pre-recorded for safety purposes. Smaller celebrations focused on the lost took place among the Israeli army. These downsized events showcase the reality that Israel is not in a place to complete their normal celebrations like air force flyovers and beach parties.

Congregants Halt Gunman During Children's Service

Another potential church shooting was diverted thanks to the boldness and bravery of a church's congregants.

During a first communion service for children at St. Mary Magdalen's Catholic Church in Abbeville, Louisiana, the church's parishioners stepped boldly up to the plate to stop a teenager who came into the church armed with a rifle.

As the Christian Post reported, the service was being livestreamed. Into the 48-minute mark, someone came up to the associate pastor, Fr. Nicholas DuPre, providing him with information about the active situation. Once this happened, the attendees all sat down as DuPre asked, and they prayed the Hail Mary prayer.

"I'd like everybody to be seated for just a moment," a video on X by the Catholic Arena from the livestream shows. "I would like everyone to join me in prayer."

For a couple of minutes, the entire church joined in together in the Hail Mary prayer. Soon, a ruckus broke out and the priests crouched down behind the altar in front of them. Police went toward the situation, and others can be seen scrambling. Finally, a parishioner spoke up.

“So, guys, just get a hold of your child, go slowly,” the man says. “We did apprehend a young man. He is in custody. He is in the police custody. Calm down and just get next to your child and go slowly.”

According to the Catholic News Agency, families had gathered for this special mass as 60 children were about to take their first communion when a “suspicious person opened the back door.”

In a statement, the parish gave an update to all of its members, stating:

This morning, our First Communion ceremony was interrupted when a suspicious person opened the back door. The individual was immediately confronted by parishioners, escorted outside and the police were called. The individual was quickly apprehended by Abbeville Police Department and is in their custody. Once apprehended, law enforcement entered the church to make sure there was no additional danger.

The statement further explained an understanding that its members may have experienced panic and fear. To be cautious, St. Mary Magdalen’s will have “uniformed law enforcement at all upcoming Masses.”

This incident comes just a week after Pastor Glenn Germany was miraculously saved when a shooter’s gun jammed as he attempted to take the pastor’s life during a sermon. This gave enough time for a brave congregant to tackle the gunman to help save Germany.

L.A. Marzulli: Have the Nephilim Invaded Gaza?

Are there Nephilim in the Middle East?

In his most recent interview with Charisma Media, L.A. Marzulli discusses the possibility of Nephilim still being an entity in the Middle East.

Relating back to the story of Joshua and Caleb, Marzulli points out how they conquered all the Nephilim tribes except for in Gaza.

“In Gaza you can go and you can look it up for yourself; the cities that Joshua spares for whatever reason are all in Gaza,” Marzulli says.

While Marzulli does not believe Hamas are the modern-day equivalent of the Nephilim, he does believe that there is a spiritual stronghold related to the Nephilim still in that region today.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up to date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

“That territorial spirit has never been deposed in that area,” Marzulli says.

What's interesting about this spiritual tie to the Nephilim are the literal, physical signs that point to an era and generation where these great warriors of old ran rampant. Marzulli points to the fact that the Iranians are shipping munitions through Lebanon to a place where the two largest stones of all time are located in the area of Baalbek. These stones are not ordinary rocks. Instead, they point to an ancient time of Nephilim whereabouts as they have been placed in the wall of the temple at Baalbek.

"Baalbek is a Nephilim stronghold. These stones that are there at Baalbek are [the] largest stones ever hewn by non-human hands on the planet," Marzulli says. "These are fallen angel technology. Nephilim architecture."

This supernatural phenomenon of the Nephilim in our modern-day life extends further than just the Middle East. In Las Vegas, there were sightings of potential UFOs, and part of this disturbing sighting included upside-down, floating crucifixes with demonic forces ripping Jesus off of the cross.

These signs of the Nephilim emerging into our end-times world today are just one facet of what is happening behind the scenes in the spiritual realm. What is unfolding today particularly around Israel points back to biblical prophecy of the Old Testament still to be fulfilled.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

Marzulli believes Amos 9:14-15 is a Scripture worth keeping our eyes on. This passage tells us that God will restore the people of Israel, planting their vineyards and gardens. It also says "No more will they be uprooted out of their land which I have given them."

He also references Isaiah 17 which details how the destruction of Damascus is critical to what is still to come. All of this is to fulfill prophecy of the last days leading to the return of Christ.

“Most people don’t want to hear that. They want to hear a happy message, but we’re in the days of chaos,” Marzulli says.

Even the Sunni and Shia Muslims in the Middle East are making peace with one another because of the same mutual enemies. These two branches of Islam have never coexisted peacefully, making this unity all the more impactful.

“The fact that the Shia and the Sunni branches of Islam are together on the stage with Vladimir Putin of Russia is very telling. Those are the three leading nations in the Ezekiel 38 prophecy,” Marzulli says.

As it appears that the entire world is encircling Israel just as the Bible prophecies will happen, we can hold fast to the person of Christ. It doesn’t matter what evil things we see or encounter. He is still on the throne, and He is coming back.

Benny Hinn Makes a Public Apology: ‘I Am Sorry’

Amid controversy as a recent four-hour-long video by Mike Winger has come out showcasing the past pitfalls of Benny Hinn’s ministry, Hinn has publicly come out to make his statement about his prior ministry mishaps.

"I'm a human being. I've made mistakes," Hinn says.

While not blaming any one particular party for the things he's encountered, Hinn says pressure from others is a key piece of what got to him as he built up his ministry.

"I let pressure get to me. And because of that pressure, I said things and did things I should not have done. And for that, really, I am sorry," Hinn says.

As Hinn reflects on his years in ministry, he's seen the good, the bad and the ugly. He admits his ministry has been far from perfect, and after years of trial and error, he has found keys others should know before they walk out in their calling.

"Build a reservoir of the Word of God in your heart. So, when troubles come, you know where to go," Hinn says.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

Hinn points to Psalm 119 as a foundational principle for living a godly, holy life. He also says it is by reading the Bible and whole-heartedly getting to know the Word of God that our lives are changed for the sake of the gospel.

"The Bible is really clear in Psalm 119 because it talks about how does the Word of God, the Scriptures are so powerful, to help us live holy," Hinn says.

While Hinn has been at the center of controversy many times over, he is publicly admitting his faults, the traps he fell into with prophecy and prosperity, and ultimately, His need for God's direction just like anyone else.

Benny Hinn: Does He Need to Repent?

Should Benny Hinn repent?

It's the question people have been asking for years. While Hinn has publicly apologized for the moments he says he got things wrong in ministry, there are still skeptics about his motives.

In an exclusive interview with Stephen Strang on the Strang Report podcast, Hinn says he "came to the conclusion in 2019 that I did not want to be a part of the gimmickry of it," when speaking about praise-a-thons.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up-to-date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

Before this most recent interview with Strang, Dr. Michael Brown discussed the topic of Benny Hinn's repentance in an episode of his The Line of Fire podcast. Beginning with a prior episode of The Line of Fire, he evaluated past clips of Benny Hinn's public renunciation of asking people to give a specific amount.

"Rather than throwing stones at him, you should say, 'I'm glad, sir, that you're saying this and this,'" Brown says of Hinn's repentance.

Brown has personally been against the practices of American prosperity gospel for years, including writing a letter to Hinn years ago asking him to renounce these practices. However, he is unsure whether or not Hinn ever read the letter. He acknowledges the pressure Hinn says he felt from all of those around him to ask for donations.

“This is a teachable moment for everybody so, please hear me,” Brown says. “If Benny Hinn could know what was right and not do it, feeling pressure from his friends when he’s this big famous leader, what about everybody else?”

Now, years later, Brown is saying recent footage showed Hinn once again encouraging others to give large amounts of money.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

“The exact thing he said he would never do,” Brown says, “He’s doing this.”

“Now if you go to Jesus Image where Benny Hinn ministers regularly, you may have thousands of young people saying he preaches the cross, he preaches the blood of Jesus, he preaches holiness...I’m not denying any of that. I am saying his own words condemn him. He’s done the exact opposite of what he has pledged never to do. He must repent and be accountable,” Brown says.

Brown carried over this discussion of repentance and redemption regarding Benny Hinn onto the Strang Report podcast where he acknowledges that accountability is key when it comes to ministers, especially those in the prophetic circle.

“We’ve had a real problem in the American church in general, with so many independent churches, but then in the charismatic church, in particular, with unaccountability. And we can just speak words, prophetic words, and whether they come to pass or not, we just keep going,” Brown says.

In his recent public apology, Hinn says that his handling of prophecy and prosperity are the two areas he wishes he could go back and fix.

“Sadly, there was some promises I gave that were not accurate or from the Lord. But who’s perfect? And for that, of course, I asked people to forgive me. I’m just human and made mistakes like that,” Hinn says on the Strang Report podcast.

Whether or not you believe Benny Hinn must repent again or not, one thing is clear: he is human like the rest of us.

Mother Discovers Miraculous Message Following Son’s Death

Every mother wants to know they are loved by their children.

As Fox News shared, Mary Alexander was dealing with grief and loneliness following the passing of her 39-year-old son, Jason. However, her decision to clean out an old closet led to an incredible discovery.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

Every year, Alexander’s two sons gave her Mother’s Day cards. Her son, Brian, had moved to Norway. Still, he never forgot to gift her with a card. However, she still felt the pain of what she had lost without Jason's Mother's Day cards.

In the closet she found an envelope in a child's handwriting. The envelope was meant to be sent to the local newspaper.

The contents inside the envelope included a written prompt for a writing contest. The topic: "My mother is the best mom because..."

The un-mailed letter was from her son, Jason. It read:

My mother is the best mom because she's always there when I need her most. Even though I can make her real angry sometimes, she always understands because she's so caring and understanding. And to me, that's why she'll always be No. 1 to me and her family.

For Alexander, finding this letter was a complete miracle as it lifted her up in a moment of despair and sorrow. This 'godwink' will be detailed in greater depth in SQuire Rushnell and Louise DuArt's upcoming Godwink book focused on mothers. The two are known for their Godwink book and Hallmark movie series.

Just as God gave Alexander hope that He saw her cries, her story is reminder that God is with us even in our greatest struggles. Mothers especially walk through some of the toughest seasons of life with us. This Mother's Day, take the time to pray for the mothers, grandmothers, spiritual mothers and other important female role models in your life. They too need prayer and encouragement.

Alexander Pagani and Alan DiDio: How to Break Generational Curses

Do you believe it's possible to be set free from generational curses?

In an interview between apostle Alexander Pagani and Bishop Alan DiDio on the Encounter Today podcast, the two got candid about deliverance and how generational curses can impact the life of a believer.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up to date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

After overcoming his skepticism of deliverance ministry and seeing God do the miraculous by setting people free, Pagani says he noticed something through practicing deliverance ministry. While deliverance serves to break people free from demonic oppression, he saw the same people desiring to be delivered over and over again.

"Deliverance ministry is to get a person free and that they stay free," Pagani says. "What I saw was deliverance idolatry of the same people coming back over and over and over. Eventually, I began to inquire again that conversation, 'Okay, Lord, what am I doing wrong?'"

Pagani says what the Lord showed him is that these people weren't affected by demonic oppression. Instead, they were dealing with a different spiritual battle.

"The Holy Spirit impressed upon me that their problem wasn't a demonic issue. It was a generational curse issue that they needed to resolve between them, their bloodline and God," Pagani says.

Pagani took five additional years to deep dive into the Scriptures about generational curses. Eventually, he ended up writing a book about it, "The Secrets to Generational Curses," which is the sequel to his book, "The Secrets to Deliverance."

DiDio pointed out that as Christians, we become new creations in Christ. So, how do believers wind up with generational curses if our sins are covered by the blood of Jesus?

Citing 1 John 5, Pagani says there is a spectrum of levels of sin.

"You've got sin, transgression, iniquity [and] abomination," Pagani says. "The realm of iniquity, which means long-term, unrepented sin that begins to change the nature of the person, which we would call habit patterns."

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

"It has nothing to do with condemnation, it's not a salvation issue. It has to do with daily sanctification," Pagani continues. "It's personal daily pleasing of the Lord."

Pagani points out that after years of walking in willful disobedience, these practices will eventually turn into iniquities. The bondage then no longer is something the person practices, but it is what they become.

One of the key verses Pagani and DiDio uncovered as a key to leaving behind generational curses is 1 John 1:9 which reads, "If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

"Where we mess up is Christians stop there," Pagani says. "They never get cleansed of unrighteousness."

How does one break a generational curse?

Pagani says the first step is to fast. This is so God can help reveal to you what needs to be renounced.

"It's through fasting because now you're denying your flesh. Now you're dealing with the body and that's where it starts," Pagani says.

Dealing with generational curses, while not something most people think to do, might just be one of the most important things we can do. Just because your family history tells one story does not mean you have to walk in that bondage. Through Christ, you truly can be victorious.
