

2024 Prophecy: Is This the Year of the Do-Over?

Will 2024 be 2020's do-over?

No one will ever forget the way that 2020 dramatically shifted our world forever. Lockdowns lasted for months, and even into 2021 and 2022 in some places. Children missed out on in-person curriculums, masks, distancing and shots completely changed the atmosphere of everyday life. The question now is: is 2024 a do-over of this previous monumental year?

In an exclusive interview with Charisma News, Joseph Z revealed how God has been whispering prophetic insights of what we may yet face this year.

Both good and bad items from the past will come back to the forefront again. Joseph Z believes that both the good and the bad things that rose up in 2020 will come back into play this year. Two of the most notable items we can see right now is that the same Super Bowl football teams from 2020 played against each other this year and the same political candidates are appearing to be at the top of the ballots.

"We're headed for the same spirit we faced off with in 2020, [which] wants to manifest in 2024," Z said.

The lion, bear and Goliath are coming. What do these three things represent in the prophetic sphere? Z says they represent three different facets that will try to dominate what 2024 looks like. The lion is representative of the media's cries of negativity trying to impact culture. The bear is the fear over economic circumstances and provision.

However, it is Goliath that will come to conquer and strap down our nation with intimidation and fear.

“Goliath coming is a global, wicked spirit that wants to run this nation into the ground,” Z said. “Goliath was an intimidation spirit, a giant spirit that would step forward and say, ‘give me your best and you can’t beat me. I’m going to dominate you right unto the end.’”

Joseph Z believes part of this Goliath spirit will try to manifest itself through the medical community by the potential of allowing the World Health Organization (WHO) to make health decisions for Americans.

The potential return of 45. With the same political candidates running for office, it’s quite possible 2024 could prove to be a return to Donald Trump as the president. Joseph Z believes it would lead to a massive deportation and a closing off of the American border that has never been seen before. If the WHO is allowed to take over the medical decisions of the U.S. people, Z also says it is someone like Trump who would revoke this practice. However, it is the greater incorporation of artificial intelligence that could prove as a potential roadblock to his success.

Vegas holds the key. Just as Joseph Z prophesied that what would happen in Vegas would not stay in Vegas, some horrific things have happened, including the shooting in Kansas City and the shooting at Joel Osteen’s Lakewood Church. Yet, previous words from the Lord crept into Z’s thoughts as a reminder of what the Lord had spoken to him over the years, including a vision about breaches which spoke of an actual cyber breach that took place and the mass shooting that took place at Mandalay Bay in Las Vegas.

“And the Lord reminded me that back in 2017 the largest mass shooting that ever happened in American history took place in Las Vegas at Mandalay Bay,” Z said. “What is happening in Vegas, the spirit wants it to not remain in Vegas.”

With dire situations like these, Z reminds believers how critical it is to pray and cut off these dark, demonic situations in the spirit so that they would not manifest.

It is up to us to choose the candidate of oil. If Americans choose the presidential candidate who is anointed for good works, then God will give us one more chance for a comeback as a great nation.

“Whether it’s Trump or somebody else who would get into office, they can’t fix everything. But the Lord showed me the candidate of oil could begin to correct economic our sovereignty come back,” Z said.

What this word comes down to is how we respond to the events happening around us. The choice for the kind of future we have is ours.

“A good perspective in this season is that Jesus is weary and heavy laden, and He needs rest,” Jenkins said. “As we get closer and closer to Holy Week, we see in Scripture Jesus get more frustrated. He got more brokenhearted. He wept over the city of Jerusalem. He was frustrated at the religious leaders because they were not getting His message.”

Season 4 continues to deliver on this promise to see Jesus growing ever-so weary, knowing that no one else can fully understand what it is that He is about to dive into and the struggles and pain that He ultimately will experience.

Season 4 will continue to play in theaters through the rest of the month with episodes 7 and 8 releasing on Feb. 29.

Are Christian 'Swifties' a Thing?

In a world where conformity often reigns supreme, embracing a life of holiness can set one apart in profound ways. As Christians, we're called to be in the world but not of it, and this distinction is perhaps most evident in our pursuit of holiness.

In his exclusive Beyond the Article interview with Charisma Magazine Online, author Ken Fish shares how the pursuit and the power of holiness does more than just help us to meet superficial requirements that we believe God may ask of us. Instead, seeking holiness helps us to know God in deeper and more meaningful ways.

"One of the things I've noticed about people who are not only on fire for the Lord, but people who are actually used by the Lord is they typically have a reverence for God," Fish says. "They have a sense of awe and respect, and there are certain lines they won't cross."

This call right here echoes Proverbs 1:7 which tells us that "The fear of the LORD is the beginning of knowledge, but fools despise wisdom and instruction."

Those who fear the Lord are ultimately those who are seeking after something more. Whether its wisdom, knowledge or another godly trait that can only be given from God, Christians who fear Him are desiring more of Him and His ways of righteousness, and because of that, He can use them in greater capacities.

However, holiness is not about a rigid set of rules or outward appearances. Instead, it is fundamentally about being set apart for God's purposes. It's about aligning our lives with His character and reflecting His glory in all we do.

"Simply avoiding certain things will not keep you fervent for the Lord," Fish says. "Fervency is built by turning back toward the Lord, seeking His face as we say, and choosing consciously to give a portion of our day to one-on-one interaction with Him."

It is when we humbly and wholeheartedly seek after the Lord that we oftentimes are then challenged by God to give up certain things and habits in order to continue to know Him better. It is not abstaining from habits that automatically make us more like our heavenly Father, but it is in the pursuit of coming to know Him that we desire less and less of the world and more of Him.

In his feature article of Charisma Magazine Online, Fish also writes that holiness is about giving the entirety of our lives to the God who created us.

"In the end, God's call to be holy is an all-encompassing claim on our lives, our loves and our identities," Fish writes.

Embracing holiness means embracing our identity as children of God—a chosen people called to reflect His light in a darkened world. It's a radical departure from the status quo, requiring courage and steadfastness in the face of opposition. Yet, it's in this distinctiveness that we find true freedom and purpose.

Did Christianity Influence the Samurai?

What would you do with $7 trillion?

Co-founder and CEO of Open AI, Sam Altman is planning to raise money for his latest chip project, however, the estimated cost of this project isn't cheap. Altman believes it will take $5-$7 trillion dollars to raise the necessary funds.

According to Business Insider, Altman wants to create chip factories in the United Arab Emirates and has already met with officials from the UAE. The idea behind this chip project is that the future of AI would be secured to continue to grow and advance.

"We believe the world needs more ai infrastructure—fab capacity, energy, datacenters, etc.—than people are currently planning to build," Altman wrote on X.

"Building massive-scale ai infrastructure, and a resilient supply chain, is crucial to economic competitiveness. OpenAI will try to help!"

OpenAI has already dramatically changed the world with the launch of ChatGPT, as the platform has completely altered the scene for writing, creating content, providing answers to questions, creating images and videos and even is being utilized by some churches for writing and preaching sermons.

With a technology that has so quickly and efficiently changed the way technology, and even more so, how our greater society is working, there's no doubt that such a huge sum of money to spend time creating more chips could further launch us into the last days troubles.

From AI generated children and romantic partners, the world of AI is not only opening up the possibilities of new opportunities, but it is teetering on the dangerous side which could have humans isolating from real connections with people for something actually artificial.

While we could, and perhaps should, have some fear that AI will further alter the way the world operates, it should also simultaneously present us with hope. Why? If we are seeing the signs of the end times, then it means we are that much closer to the return of Christ.

Could these chips lead to one of the greatest signs of Jesus' return if it proves to be the mark of the beast? It's possible. Remember, the mark of the beast will need to be located on the right hand or the forehead so that "no one may buy or sell, except he who has the mark or the name of the beast..." (Rev. 13:17).

Until we know more, the best we can assume is that OpenAI has a plethora of projects that will continue to push forward the technology into its next era.

'He Gets Us' Remakes Tackle True Gospel Message

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

With these types of remakes, it makes people wonder, what exactly is it that 'He Get Us' is getting wrong?

The He Gets Us website writes, "Our agenda is to rediscover the love story of Jesus. Christians, non-Christians, and everybody in between. All of us."

Yes, all need to know the greatest story of love—the love that Jesus Christ lived the sinless life that we never could have lived and died the excruciating death that we deserved. However, without acknowledging the issue of sin, without getting to the main point of the cross, Jesus is presented as nothing more than someone who did good works. But He is so much more than that. He is the Alpha and the Omega, the beginning and the end and His position as God cannot and should not be diminished.

There is no in-between. You either choose to follow Jesus by picking up your cross daily and following, or you do not. You are either one of His sheep, or you are not. Because God is a merciful and gracious God, He gives us the opportunity during this lifetime to repent and turn away from sin and choose Him.

However, the choice is and always will be ours. We choose to be His or not. Revelation 3:16 is a reminder that “Because you are lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spit you out of My mouth.” We cannot have sin and Jesus; we must choose which master to serve.

So, remember, Jesus gets us. He loves us and died for us. But without choosing life with Him over sin, it is impossible to experience true freedom and love.

Resurfaced Prophecies Continue Stark Warning to King Charles

View this post on Instagram

A post shared by Mike Signorelli (@mikesignorelli_)

This prophecy strikes right into the heart of King Charles' cancer diagnosis. But what's interesting is that both of these prophecies intersect with Joseph Z's prophecy, which describes a time of mourning over the king and the rise of William as the anointed one, chosen by God as the true king over Great Britain.

However the Lord chooses to move in the life and positions of both Charles and William still remains unknown, but the hope for a time of reckoning, renewal and realignment in Great Britain's leadership and spiritual landscape can remain as a positive sentiment for all people.

Bunni Pounds Reveals the Power of Prayer in Politics

As we approach both Valentine's Day and Ash Wednesday, it can be asked, is there a connection between these two events?

While both holidays are about drastically different events, they do have some fascinating intersections and differences.

Both holidays are recognized by those of the Catholic faith.

Valentine's Day is known for its name after St. Valentine, who it is believed may actually have been multiple different people, according to . However, the act of heroism that St. Valentine is most acknowledged and celebrated for is secretly marrying couples during a time when Emperor Claudius II outlawed marriage in order to make men better soldiers.

On the flip side, the Catholic faith recognizes Ash Wednesday as the start of Lent. This time of fasting and prayer leads up to holy week when Christians all over the world celebrate the death and resurrection of Christ.

One has roots in paganism.

The roots to Valentine's Day are not simply the surface level feel-good motives of St. Valentine himself. In fact, it is believed to go as far back as the Roman festival of Lupercalia, which celebrated fertility with animal sacrifices, matchmaking and the whipping of women believed to make them more fertile. While modern-day Christianity and culture have altered the meaning for Valentine's Day from these ancient backings, it is interesting to think that such seemingly ferocious ceremonies brought us the day that most people around the world recognize as a day about love.

Both holidays make us reflect on what it means to love and to be loved.

Valentine's Day centers itself on romantic relationships while Ash Wednesday focuses on the reflection of the ultimate love and sacrifice God gave us through His only Son on the cross. Having these two holidays intersect at the same time, while very different with different beginnings, can offer each person a time to reflect on what it truly means to love others and to be loved.

In 1 Corinthians 13, believers are called to abide in "faith, hope and love," but that the "greatest of these is love." If we take a look at how Christ loved, how abundantly and freely

He gave of Himself to us when we were not deserving of it, we can easily see that love as it is portrayed by media and society today pales in comparison with the richness and fullness of a love rooted in Christ. By looking at Jesus' humble heart, we are to treat one another with this kind of patient and loyal love that extends beyond mere chocolates and cards and seeks to captivate the heart with goodness, mercy and grace.
