

‘The Best Day of Your Life’: Inside the Arizona Baptism That Drew 1,500 People to the Water

When Johnny Chang reached out to George Janko with a simple proposal, to “baptize Arizona,” neither man could have anticipated what God had prepared. Approximately 1,500 people arrived from across the country and beyond.

Children. Adults. Drug addicts. Pregnant women. Broken people. All of them came to the water.

That was the greatest day of my life. – George Janko

Janko described the sacred weight of standing with each person as they went under the water – tears streaming down their faces, hearts pounding so hard he could feel it. He was witnessing something he had no words for: the last look of a person’s old life, and the first look of their new one.

When I’m putting them down into the water and when they come back out of the water, and I look at their eyes, I see different eyes.

Why water means everything

On stage that day, Chang unpacked one of the most striking biblical threads either man had shared publicly – tracing a line from Noah’s Ark to Jesus walking on water to the baptism pool. Water in Scripture carries a double meaning: judgment for the condemned, cleansing for the saved. Being in Christ, Chang explained, means walking above that curse entirely.

To order Kathryn Krick's new book, Ignite Revival, visit .

Anyone in Him will not be harmed by the curse. It symbolizes that we can walk on top of the curse just like Jesus was walking on top of the judgment.

The week the devil came after him

George's joy on that day didn't come without a fight. For the entire week leading up to the event, he battled crushing fear – terrified he was doing something wrong before God. He broke down weeping in front of his pastor before it began. The response his pastor gave changed everything.

He hugged me. He prayed over me, and then he said, 'Go have the best day of your life.' And that was nothing short besides it.

You can't save yourself – and that's the point

The deeper the conversation went, the more both men returned to the same liberating truth: this was never about what they could do for God.

Chang challenged the idea that repentance means simply feeling bad and trying harder, and called believers toward a fuller surrender, reminding them of the only thing that actually changes a life.

Christianity is not me sacrificing my life for God, me dying for God. It's actually Jesus dying on the cross and sacrificing His life for me. And when I thought about it in that way, it changed my whole perspective of how I moved.

Janko echoed this with raw honesty, describing what it feels like to know his own weakness completely – and to be grateful for it.

If you strip Jesus away from me, in a second, I'm back to the old me. I'm popping off. I'm doing whatever. But yet, it's you, God, who has to take care of me.

For both men, 1,500 baptisms was not a finish line. It was a beginning. The real work – nurturing, discipling, walking with people through fire – starts the moment they step out of the water.

To watch the full interview, click here. (Editor's note: Mild language).

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Ancient Secrets Revealed? How the Pyramids Were Built May Surprise You

The knowledge surrounding the pyramids continues to grow, revealing new stones yet to be turned.

A Daily Mail report noted that a breakthrough may have been made in understanding how the pyramids were built and formed.

According to the report, a new study on the Pyramid of Khufu was likely made by “using a hidden spiral ramp running inside the structure.”

Vicente Luis Rosell Roig, a computer scientist, finds it plausible that those who worked on this structure utilized an “edge ramp,” which would slope from the edges of the pyramid and was filled in with each additional layer made.

To order Dinesh D’Souza’s new book, The End of Time, visit .

This, it is believed, would have annulled the need for any external ramps, allowing the workers to move the stones upward at a steady pace. Current simulation models estimate these stones were placed “every four to six minutes,” making this pyramid take between 14 and 21 years to complete, and when transportation and other factors are included, it would take between 20 and 27 years to finish.

Even as new discoveries attempt to explain the engineering brilliance behind the Great Pyramid of Giza, the sense of wonder surrounding it only deepens. Each new theory answers one question while opening the door to countless others.

In a world that often prides itself on having all the answers, the pyramids quietly challenge that assumption, reminding us that there are still wonders yet to be uncovered.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Joseph Z Reveals Prophetic Timeline: Why 2027 and 2028 Could Reshape America's Future

The Name above all names was glorified in one of the most unexpected places possible: Coachella.

During the 2026 Coachella music festival, Justin Bieber gave a calm, collected performance, praising God and singing about giving glory to the king.

"Singing glory, I'm singing glory to the King. Singing glory. Singing glory," Bieber sang.

This is not the first time that Bieber's faith has been put on public display. For years, Bieber has sung, talked about and outwardly expressed his belief in Jesus.

Last year, Charisma reported one of the powerful posts that Bieber wrote, which said:

Grateful for a new day.

Grateful for Jesus.

He meets me every morning with forgiveness and love

That I truly don't deserve

*So grateful that He gives this love so freely, so graciously
Wouldn't be able to get thru the day without his love.
It meets me at my lowest.*

In a place known more for cultural trends than Christ-centered worship, Bieber's bold declaration stands out as a powerful reminder: God can be glorified anywhere – even in the heart of the entertainment world.

To order Travis Johnson's book, [Un]Embarrassed of Jesus, visit .

Yet moments like this don't happen without tension. Bieber is not just a global pop star; he is a young man walking out his faith in one of the most spiritually challenging arenas on earth. And while he may stand on stages before thousands, he still needs the covering of prayer from the body of Christ.

Pray that his passion for Jesus would only grow stronger. Pray that no pressure, influence or expectation would silence his voice or dilute his message. Pray that he would remain rooted, grounded and unshaken in truth.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

‘The Future is Here’: Robots Make Stunning Strides in the Middle of War

Are robot warriors the future?

In a report by Fox News, it was noted that the Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy let the world know that Ukraine made a stunning capture of a Russian position in a unique way: using robots.

“For the first time in the history of this war, Ukrainian warriors captured an enemy position using exclusively unmanned platforms and drones,” Zelenskyy stated. “The future is here, on the battlefield, and Ukraine is creating it.”

Fox also reported that Zelenskyy shared how these autonomous systems have “participated in over 22,000 frontline missions in just three months.”

When Machines Decide the Battlefield

If wars can now be fought—and even positions captured—without a single soldier physically present, it raises a sobering question: how might conflicts be started or escalated when human cost feels less immediate?

To order Amanda Grace’s new book, Brace For Impact, visit .

Decisions once slowed by the reality of human loss may be made faster, potentially leading to more frequent or prolonged conflicts. At the same time, these technologies could also be used to de-escalate, minimizing casualties and creating new pathways to end wars without the same level of devastation.

Yet the rise of robotic warfare also introduces a new kind of tension—one where control becomes increasingly complex. Who is ultimately responsible when machines make split-second decisions in combat? As artificial intelligence becomes more advanced, the line between human command and machine autonomy may blur, creating ethical dilemmas the world has never faced before.

Scripture points to a time when deception, power and control intensify on a global scale. As machines begin to carry out actions once reserved for people, it raises deeper spiritual questions about what may be happening next as we run full speed toward the end of time.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Missed UFO Disclosure Deadline Sparks Growing Public Suspicion

Questions surrounding government transparency on unidentified aerial phenomena (UAPs) are intensifying after a key Pentagon deadline quietly passed—without clear confirmation that lawmakers received what they were promised.

According to a report from Newsweek, the Department of Defense had been expected to turn over more than 40 classified UFO-related videos to Congress by April 14, 2026. That request was led by Rep. Anna Paulina Luna, part of a broader push for transparency regarding encounters with mysterious objects observed in sensitive military zones.

Yet as the deadline passed, many now have more questions than answers.

Cover-Up Claims Intensify Amid Secrecy

Meanwhile, a separate Daily Mail report has amplified concerns that the government may be deliberately limiting public access to UFO-related information.

The outlet reported that the Pentagon has acknowledged the existence of additional unreleased UFO videos, while continuing to cite national security concerns as justification for keeping them classified.

According to the report, Luna wrote a letter to Secretary of War Pete Hegseth, asking for the release of these files by the 14th, some of which are said to have caught glimpses of these UAPs in both Syria and Iran.

Luna reportedly stated on social media that “No one from the Pentagon had responded until we reached out, and it appears that someone did not pass the letter to the appropriate authorities,” calling this move “convenient.”

Deception, Disclosure and the Days Ahead

As conversations around UFOs and unexplained phenomena accelerate, many believers are watching these developments through a different lens—one rooted not just in national security, but in spiritual discernment.

Scripture warns of a time when deception would increase, and truth would become harder to discern (see Matt. 24:4–5). What we are seeing right here with these UFO files is a reminder that there will come a time when deception plagues our world on an even greater level, and not all will be prepared for it.

Christians must stay grounded—not in speculation, but in the unchanging Word of God. As headlines continue to shift and new information emerges, discernment will be essential.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Suddenly God Intervenes: Kim Clement's 2008 Word About

Divine Breakthrough

In a time when division often dominates the headlines, moments like this serve as a powerful reminder that God is not absent from the heart of the nation—He is moving, even in the halls of power. What began as a simple gathering turned into something far greater: a declaration that worship still belongs in America's foundation.

As voices lifted in unity inside the Capitol, it wasn't just a song—it was a statement that faith is alive, unshaken and unwilling to be silenced.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Trump Posts New Jesus Image After Viral Backlash

President Donald Trump has posted yet another Jesus image following his controversial re-share of an AI-generated image that looked much like him as Jesus healing someone.

On his Truth Social, Trump re-shared an image from "Irish for Trump,” writing, “The Radical Left Lunatics might not like this, but I think it is quite nice!!! President DJT”

The image itself is of Jesus with His arms around Trump, and the caption reads, “I was never a very religious man... but doesn’t it seem with all these satanic, demonic, child-sacrificing monsters being God might be playing his Trump card!”

Donald J. Trump Truth Social

The statement itself clearly signals the topic of abortion, which has had strongholds in the Democratic Party for years, as they have chosen to be the “pro-choice” party. It also includes some suggestions and undertones regarding the Epstein Files, which continue to be a point of contention for those in government and in Hollywood.

To order Troy Anderson’s book, Designated Disrupter, visit .

This latest post comes after the intense reaction to his earlier AI-generated image, which he ultimately removed. The president said he believed it depicted him as a doctor rather than a divine figure. Meanwhile, Vice President JD Vance called the previous post a joke.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Keenan Clark and Bryce
Crawford Issue Urgent
Warning: 'You're In Your Last Days'