

White House Declares This Hour Critical for 'World Peace'

After threatening the end of a "whole civilization," the Trump administration created a two-week ceasefire with Iran before a destructive deadline of 8 p.m. Eastern Time on Tuesday, April 7.

Now, a day later, the White House is declaring that today is monumental for world peace.

On X, the White House simply posted "A big day for World Peace!" with a photo of Trump and one of his latest posts to Truth Social, which read:

*The United States will work closely with Iran, which we have determined has gone through what will be a very productive Regime Change! There will be no enrichment of Uranium, and the United States will, working with Iran, dig up and remove all of the deeply buried (B-2 Bombers) Nuclear "Dust." It is now, and has been, under very exacting Satellite Surveillance (Space Force!). Nothing has been touched from the date of attack. We are, and will be, talking Tariff and Sanctions relief with Iran. Many of the 15 points have already been agreed to. Thank you for your attention to this matter.
President DONALD J. TRUMP*

A big day for World Peace!

This comes after the president posted that "A whole civilization will die tonight, never to be brought back again."

A whole civilization will die tonight, never to be brought back again. I don't want that to happen, but it probably will. However, now that we have Complete and Total Regime Change, where different, smarter, and less radicalized minds prevail, maybe something revolutionarily wonderful can happen, WHO KNOWS? We will find out tonight, one of the most important moments in the long and complex history of the World. 47 years of extortion, corruption, and death, will finally end. God Bless the Great People of Iran!

Now time will tell us how this ceasefire progresses and if a deal can be reached between the United States and Iran.

Kathryn Krick: Revival Sweeps the Philippines as Miracles Break Out

God is still doing wonderful, supernatural works today in this generation.

In a powerful post on YouTube, Kathryn Krick shared about the stunning miracles that took place during a revival in Manila, Philippines.

Krick wrote:

God moved so powerfully in Manila, Philippines, as thousands gathered to encounter the God of miracles! From the front to the back of the arena, people were being touched by God's power, falling back, weeping, and having intimate encounters with the Holy Spirit. We were all left in such awe of how powerfully God moved, touching thousands at once! All glory to God for every miracle that took place.

Krick also noted that people from all around the world came to experience this great move of God, visiting from more than 25 countries.

People traveled from over 25 nations—including Mexico, Ghana, the Netherlands, India, Vietnam, South Korea, Myanmar, Papua New Guinea, Australia, China, Germany, Malaysia, Cameroon, Taiwan, the United States, Pakistan, Nigeria, Singapore, England, Hong Kong, Tanzania, Japan, Indonesia, Thailand, and Switzerland.

This was such a life-changing time in God's presence, and what He did in Manila will be a catalyst for all of Asia in advancing this revival. Hallelujah.

What took place in Manila is more than a moment—it's a message.

At a time when many are questioning whether God still moves in power, this revival stands as a resounding answer: He does, and He is not finished. From tears of repentance to undeniable encounters with the Holy Spirit, what unfolded in the Philippines is a reminder that the book of Acts was never meant to be history alone—it is a blueprint for today.

When believers gather hungry, surrendered and expectant, God always responds.

And perhaps most striking of all is this: the nations came, and the fire fell. What began in Manila is poised to ripple far beyond its borders, igniting a fresh wave of revival across Asia and beyond. The question now is not whether God is moving—but whether the church will respond.

Will we press in, hunger deeper and make room for His presence again?

Tucker Carlson Targets Protestants, Defends Islam in Explosive Rant

Tucker Carlson is breaking the internet again with his comments on Christianity and Islam.

In a clip circulating widely on social media, Carlson can be heard complaining about the Protestant Christian leadership in America today.

“Protestant Christianity in the United States, leadership, totally corrupt,” he said. “And not just corrupt on obvious level like, ‘Oh, the preacher’s having an affair,’ or ‘they’re taking money...’ No, corrupt on the level that matters most, which is spiritually corrupt.”

Tucker then claimed that the leaders of the Protestant church are “not preaching Christianity.”

Tucker says Protestants are totally corrupt and preaching a false Gospel.

– Anthony (@Catholicizm1) April 6, 2026

“There are many, Protestant, American church leaders who are preaching a religion that bears no resemblance to Christianity,” he continued.

While attacking the very people part of the same faith he claims to have, however, Carlson has also been very soft on Islam.

Speaking about Trump’s post where he threatened Iran to open the Strait of Hormuz and ended it with the phrase, “praise Allah,” Carlson decided to protect the Islamic faith.

“Who do you think you are,” Carlson asks. “So obviously you’re mocking the religion of Iran. Okay. If you seek a religious war, that’s a good idea. No decent person mocks other people’s religions. You may have a problem with the theology... but to mock other people's faith is to mock the idea of faith itself."

Another user on X also pointed out that Carlson hints an assumption that Trump could potentially be the Antichrist.

□ Tucker Carlson insinuates that President Trump might be the Antichrist:

"Is it possible that what you're watching is a very stealthy, yet incredibly effective attack on what, from a Christian perspective, is the true faith, belief in Jesus? ...

And is it possible that the...

"Is it possible that what you're watching is a very stealthy, yet incredibly effective attack on what, from a Christian perspective, is the true faith, belief in Jesus?" Carlson asks. "And is it possible that the president sees this not just in geostrategic terms and military terms and economic this as the fulfillment of something, the elevation to some higher office beyond president of the United States? That's entirely possible."

While Carlson can continue to speculate all he wants, it should be noted that he undoubtedly is using his platform to fiercely defend the dignity of a religion he does not claim as his own, while simultaneously tearing down the very one he says he belongs to.

The question isn't whether the church has flaws—Scripture itself acknowledges that. The real question is this: Why is more energy being spent protecting Islam from mockery than calling Christians back to truth, repentance and revival?

President Trump Gives Chilling Message to Iran: 'A Whole Civilization Will Die'

President Donald Trump gave Iran a chilling message ahead of the deadline proposed for the nation to make a deal with the United States.

In a post on Truth Social, the President wrote:

This news comes as America struck Kharg Island, as CNBC reported, which is the main export source of Iran's oil. The Strait of Hormuz has been blocked for the transportation of oil since America, Israel and Iran got into the conflict back in February.

In a previous post, Trump warned Iran that he would obliterate their bridge and power plants if they did not open up the Strait of Hormuz.

Now, the world will await for President Trump's 8 p.m. ET deadline tonight to see if an agreement can be reached with Iran in the remaining hours before the promised destruction.

Signorelli also posted about the event on his Facebook, writing:

Seeing people stand in the rain for more than three hours, refusing to leave, knowing their presence in the crowd was just as vital as what God was doing on the stage, moved me to my core. They stood as witnesses that New York City will not be overcome by spiritual darkness.

Ten years ago, I packed my life into a car and drove from Indiana to New York to start V1 Church. On that journey, my car died in Times Square before I even arrived to my new apartment. My daughter Everly was a crying toddler in the back seat, tired from the long drive. I knew God had called me to plant V1 Church, yet I couldn't even afford to make it there without my car failing.

I had no idea that a decade later, in the very same spot where my car died, Times Square would be overflowing with people from all seven campuses of our church. The service was televised globally, with more than 40,000 people watching online. All around the world, people saw the gospel proclaimed and the resurrection story told not only through Scripture but through the living testimonies gathered there. Every life in that crowd testified to the same power that raised Christ from the dead.

I never set out to do something historic. I simply heard the Islamic calls to prayer resounding in my city and realized it's time the Church gets a bigger sound system and starts responding to Heaven's call to prayer and intercession. If it's going to be the prophets of Baal versus Elijah, let's call down fire and see whose god is the TRUE God!

Make no mistake, today came at a high cost. After all these years, I face continuous death threats, vandalism, and intense opposition from those who want to silence the message by silencing the messenger. But what else should I expect when I have lead homosexuals, Hindus, Muslims, atheists, gang members, and so many others to surrender their lives to Jesus?

We cannot be intimidated. We will not be silenced.

New York City belongs to Jesus...and while there are many that would love to see us back down...we have only just begun!
