

Holy Week Shock: Jesus' Tomb Closed as Sacred Fire Mystery Grows

For what may be the first time in modern history, the Church of the Holy Sepulchre—the site widely believed to house the tomb of Jesus Christ—has gone silent during Holy Week.

This unprecedented shutdown comes at the very moment Christians around the world prepare to remember Palm Sunday and the resurrection of Christ. But the disruption does not stop there. Restrictions have also impacted the Western Wall, Judaism's most sacred place of prayer, and even the Al-Aqsa Mosque on the Temple Mount has faced closures amid escalating tensions.

This convergence of events raises a sobering question: Is this merely geopolitical instability, or could it carry deeper prophetic significance?

A Sacred Tradition Interrupted

For nearly 1,700 years, one of the most mysterious phenomena in Christianity has taken place inside the Church of the Holy Sepulchre—the appearance of the “Holy Fire,” a flame said to manifest annually during Holy Week.

However, with access restricted and the church closed, an unsettling question emerges: What happens if the fire comes with no witnesses? Or what if it does not appear at all?

Discover How God Can Change
Everything in a Moment

THE POWER OF SUDDENLY

ABBY TRIVETT

To order Abby Trivett's new book, The Power of Suddenly, visit Amazon.com.

Echoes of Revelation?

For many believers, the implications stretch beyond current events and into biblical prophecy.

The book of Revelation speaks of a time when Jerusalem will be marked by tension, division and upheaval. Revelation 11 describes a period when the holy city is trampled, and global attention is fixed on the place "where also their Lord was crucified."

With multiple faiths now experiencing disruption at their most sacred sites simultaneously, some see striking parallels.

This moment is prompting many to ask whether we are witnessing a shift in the spiritual timeline.

Despite the closures, one thing remains unchanged: God's sovereignty.

Even throughout history, when the Church of the Holy Sepulchre faced destruction or opposition, reports of the Holy Fire continued. As discussed in the video, no human effort has ever been able to stop what God has ordained.

This moment serves as both a warning and an invitation.

Jesus Himself spoke of “wars and rumors of wars” as signs of the times. What is unfolding in Jerusalem may not be the end—but it may be a signal that we are drawing closer.

For believers, the response is clear: stay alert, remain in prayer and draw nearer to God.

To explore the full depth of what is happening, including the mystery of the Holy Fire and the prophetic implications surrounding Jerusalem, watch the full video above.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

Amanda Grace's Passover Prophecy 2026: New York City Shaking, Egypt Rising and

Nations Shifting

As we approach Passover 2026, prophetic minister Amanda Grace went live with what she described as one of the most weighty words she has ever delivered.

The timing, she emphasized, was no accident. Just as a powerful prophetic word preceded Purim and was followed by dramatic events in Iran, this word arrives on the threshold of Passover, the season that forever marked God's intervention in the affairs of nations.

The Passover Connection: God Is Still Delivering His People

At the heart of Grace's message is a Passover-rooted declaration: the God who broke Egypt's superpower is moving again.

"We are honoring what You did, delivering Your people," she prayed, "honoring that You broke the superpower of the world and put on a demonstration before the world."

The word itself draws direct lines between ancient Exodus events and present-day geopolitics. Grace warned that Egypt is "about to rise up," describing it as "a reverse Arab spring" in which leaders will harden their hearts, with language unmistakably drawn from Pharaoh's story. She told her audience to read Exodus now: "I believe we are going to see very soon align with what we see happening today."

Lebanon, she declared, faces a similar reckoning: "Lebanon, Lebanon, your time of judgment has come, says the Lord, O King of Tyre. Your cup is full."

A Nation at a Crossroads

The word carries pointed warnings for American political life. Grace described a season of sweeping exposure: from Congress to the Cabinet to state governments, with Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Chicago, Colorado and New York all named as sites of coming upheaval.

“New York City is about to be shaken,” Grace stated, with departments tied to “terror and espionage” set to be uncovered.

To order Amanda Grace's new book, Brace For Impact, visit Amazon.com.

Perhaps most striking is the rebuke of the America First movement itself: “Oh America First, when will you realize it is Almighty God first?” The Lord, Grace relayed, declared He is “not in a covenant with America First,” but rather with the nation as originally dedicated to Him for the purposes of the gospel.

Mercy in the Midst of Judgment

Even the word's sharpest warnings carry an undertone of mercy.

"There is always mercy," Grace said. "When there is a warning like that, you will see an element of mercy somewhere within it."

The Church's Moment

Grace then closed with a thunderclap charge to the Body of Christ. This is not a season for soft sermons or silent pulpits.

"The church needs the watchman. The church needs the fivefold. The church needs voices that will unapologetically speak the truth."

She sees what is unfolding not as chaos but as the birth pangs of Matthew 24 playing out in real time, with God actively resetting the clocks of nations to align with His word.

"He is not at a stalemate. He is not at an impasse. He is on the throne. He is on the move."

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

Oklahoma House Passes 'Cindy Clemishire Act' After Robert Morris Abuse Scandal

A new bill, unanimously passed by the Oklahoma House of Representatives, has been designated the "Cindy Clemishire Act," according to a new report from ChurchLeaders.

The bill, 4227, serves to restrict the usage of nondisclosure agreements, or NDAs, when regarding child abuse cases, and make reporting requirements of crimes instead.

According to the report, this legislation is modeled on "Trey's Law," which was passed in both Texas and Missouri. Trey Carlock was a victim of sexual abuse as a child at a Christian camp, Kanakuk Camp, located in Missouri. Carlock signed an NDA and could not take any legal measures against the camp before his death by suicide.

Cindy Clemishire has spoken openly about what she endured, stating, "because I refused to sign that document giving up the right to freely speak about events in my life...Robert Morris was indicted."

To order Chad MacDonald's new book, Defeating Darkness, visit Amazon.com.

According to the report, this new act would mean, "Any settlement agreement that conceals the details relating to a claim of child sexual abuse or child sexual exploitation is void and unenforceable."

This new bill comes as Robert Morris is expected to be released from prison near Easter and Passover after spending six months behind bars.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

From Persia to Prophecy: How the Iran Crisis Is Setting the Stage for Messianic Times

As missile exchanges echo across the Middle East and the world watches Iran's standoff with Israel and the United States, Rabbi Jason Sobel joined Joseph Z for a wide-ranging conversation that connected Ezekiel's visions, the book of Esther and the unfolding conflict in Iran to a singular conclusion: God is writing this story.

"God works through prophecy, but He also works through patterns in history," Sobel said. "Persia shows up at major turning points in the history of Israel, and I believe we're at another one right now."

Sobel pointed to Ezekiel 38 and the War of Gog and Magog, which describes Israel dwelling in unwalled cities in an era of unparalleled security before end-time events unfold. He argued that Iran, which has acted as the chief financier of regional terrorism and the primary obstacle to Gulf states joining the Abraham Accords, has been the single greatest barrier to that prophesied peace.

It's weakening, he believes, begins the prophetic countdown.

The parallels to the book of Esther that the two discussed were equally striking. Sobel noted that on the very day Israeli soldiers read the synagogue passage "Remember Amalek and blot his name out," it corresponded to the Islamic calendar date of 9/11, the same ideological spirit, he argued, that sponsored Oct. 7.

To order Amanda Grace's new book, Brace For Impact, visit Amazon.com.

"Haman built a gallows for Mordecai and was hung on it," Sobel said. "Iran wanted to build a nuclear bomb to destroy Israel as a nation, and this is the irony, they're destroyed by a bomb dropped by the Israeli Jewish military."

Z inquired as to whether believers should expect doom or redemption in this season. The rabbi's answer was unequivocal. He pointed to Jeremiah 49:39, which reads, "in the latter days, I will restore the fortunes of Elam." He connected it to ancient Elam, now part of modern Iran, to the Persians present at Pentecost in Acts 2. "I believe we're heading back to a Book of Acts moment," Sobel said. "Elam and Persia is part of that promise."

Just as Haman's downfall triggered a mass spiritual awakening across the Persian Empire, Sobel sees Iran's current crisis as the prelude to revival, not just for Iranians, but potentially for the surrounding nations. "I can tell you we're also seeing an awakening among the Jewish people," he said. "Something I have never seen in 30 years."

Discussing America's role, Sobel was careful but direct. While acknowledging there is no explicit biblical mention of the United States, he tied America to Daniel's four-empire framework as the current head of the Western Roman Empire, giving it a significant prophetic function. He cited Hosea 11 and its reference to a "roaring lion," noting that the current military operation carries that very name. "The roar of the lion, the success of this operation, will lead to the return of the Jewish people from the west," he said, calling the alignment "something you can't make up."

Z framed the cultural backdrop as equally urgent. "It's an antichrist spirit rising up and attacking the Jewish nation," he said, pointing to the surge in antisemitism as the dark counterpart to the prophetic invitation for Jewish people to return to Israel.

One thing is clear: the ancient words of Scripture are refusing to stay ancient. When crisis fatigue tempts believers toward despair, we must remember that the tomb is not the end of the story. It never was. It was only the beginning of an eternal story.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

White House Welcomes Robots: A Bold Move Toward an AI-Controlled Future?

Are we one step closer to a heavily AI-controlled nation?

During a Fostering the Future summit regarding AI and the future of education, First Lady Melania Trump brought a special guest to the White House: a humanoid robot.

During the summit with world leaders, a humanoid robot identified as "Figure 3" took the stage and introduced itself to attendees.

"I am a humanoid built in the United States of America," the robot said. "I am grateful to be part of this historic movement to empower children with technology and education."

The moment marked a striking example of how artificial intelligence is no longer confined to theory but is now taking on human-like form in real-world settings.

AI Education: A Personalized Future

Following the robot's remarks, Trump described how artificial intelligence could soon revolutionize education through humanoid systems designed to teach children.

"Imagine a humanoid educator named Plato," she said. "Access to the classical studies is now instantaneous. Literature, science, art, philosophy, mathematics and history. Humanity's...information is available in the comfort of your home."

Trump then outlined a scenario in which this technology would create a highly individualized learning experience.

To order Troy Anderson's new book, Designated Disrupter, visit Amazon.com.

“Plato will provide a personalized experience adaptive to the needs of each student,” she said. “Plato is always patient and always available.”

According to Trump, such systems could help students develop critical thinking and reasoning skills while adapting in real time to their pace, prior knowledge and even emotional state.

A Turning Point in Human History

Trump also pointed to the broader implications of artificial intelligence across society, describing it as a defining moment in history.

“This technology may reset the modern world order and rebalance power,” she said.

Despite the optimism surrounding innovation, Trump also emphasized caution.

“We must balance our tech optimism with caution. The safety of our next generation is always paramount,” she said.

Preparing the Next Generation

Leaders at the event stressed the importance of equipping young people with the skills necessary to thrive in a rapidly evolving, technology-driven world.

“America, we are obligated to ensure that our children become the most technologically fluent and highly educated generation in the world,” Trump said.

A Prophetic Perspective on the Rise of AI

As artificial intelligence advances from digital systems to human-like forms, its implications extend beyond innovation into the spiritual landscape of our time. What once seemed like science fiction is now standing at the highest levels of global influence—speaking, teaching and preparing to shape the next generation.

While these technologies promise progress, they also call for discernment. The same systems designed to educate and empower can influence how people think, what they believe and how they perceive reality.

This is a moment where we must remain anchored in God’s Word and be guided by the Holy Spirit. There is no other option than to walk in wisdom, testing all things and holding fast to what is true.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

‘Absolutely Demonic’: Iranian Christian Sounds Alarm on Growing Anti-Israel Movement

A powerful voice is emerging with a sobering warning about the growing wave of anti-Israel sentiment—even among some who claim to be Christians.

In a recent interview with CBN, Iranian-born Christian Ramin Parsa did not hold back as he addressed what he sees as a deeply troubling trend.

“It’s absolutely demonic,” Parsa said bluntly. “There’s no explanation other than being demonic.”

Parsa, who left Islam, gave his life to Christ and eventually moved to Israel, said he has been stunned to hear rhetoric in America that mirrors what he was taught growing up under Iran’s regime.

“I never imagined... that I would be hearing the same thing that the regime told us when I was a kid... that I would hear the same rhetorics in America,” he said.

'False Brethren' and Spiritual Deception

Parsa went further, questioning the authenticity of those promoting anti-Israel narratives while claiming Christian faith.

"These are not Christians. These are false brethren," he said, pointing out that many cannot even explain their conversion or spiritual foundation.

According to Parsa, the issue is not merely political—it is spiritual. He warned that propaganda and deception are being amplified globally, even by regimes hostile to Israel.

"The regime in Iran is broadcasting their videos... to tell people, 'See, we told you.'"

Israel as a Defender of Freedom

Drawing from his personal background, Parsa emphasized that Israel plays a critical role in protecting not only itself but the broader free world.

"If it wasn't for Prime Minister Netanyahu and Israel, the regime in Iran would have a nuclear weapon," he said, adding that the world would be living in constant fear.

He described Israel as a place of innovation, freedom and coexistence—something he says is often ignored in global narratives.

"This is the only place where Jews and Arabs actually can live together in peace," Parsa noted.

A Stark Contrast for Christians

Parsa also contrasted Israel with surrounding nations, particularly regarding religious freedom.

“In Israel, you can have a church. You can talk about Yeshua. You’re free,” he said.

By comparison, he highlighted the persecution of Christians across much of the Middle East, noting that in some nations, evangelism can result in prison time.

He also pointed to Bethlehem as an example, claiming that the Christian population dropped dramatically after governance shifted away from Israeli control.

A Historical and Spiritual Perspective

Parsa reminded viewers that much of the Middle East was once predominantly Christian, citing regions associated with the early church and the book of Revelation.

“These places were all... where Jesus sent a message to the churches,” he said, pointing to modern-day Turkey and surrounding areas.

Now, he argues, many of those regions have undergone dramatic religious and cultural shifts—often accompanied by violence and displacement.

A Call to Discernment

Parsa’s message ultimately serves as both a warning and a call for discernment. What he sees unfolding is not just a geopolitical shift, but a spiritual battle over truth, narrative and allegiance.

The question facing believers is no longer just political—it is deeply spiritual. Scripture reminds us that deception will increase in the last days and that truth will often be exchanged for lies. What we are witnessing may be more than a cultural shift; it could be a testing of discernment within the body of Christ itself.

In a time when narratives are rapidly shaping global opinion, Christians must stand firm in truth, pray for wisdom and remain anchored in the Word—because not every voice claiming light is truly from it.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

Is This the Start of a New World Order? Board of Peace Unveils 5-Step Disarmament Plan

Are we seeing the next phases being implemented into a New World Order?

According to The Times of Israel, Board of Peace representative Nickolay Mladenov presented five guiding principles for a disarmament plan tied to the reconstruction of Gaza.

“It has been presented to the parties, and the engagement on it is very serious,” Mladenov said.

A Phased Approach to Withdrawal by the IDF

The plan calls for a step-by-step process that prioritizes withdrawal for the sake of credibility.

According to the Times of Israel, Mladenov said that the first part of the plan was “reciprocity. Decommissioning proceeds in parallel with staged withdrawal...This is fundamental to the credibility of the entire process.”

By focusing on the most immediate threats, the framework aims to reduce the risk of renewed violence while allowing further disarmament to take place over time.

A Phased Approach to Removing Weapons

The plan calls for a step-by-step process that prioritizes removing the most dangerous weapons. This includes rockets, explosives and tunnel systems used by Hamas.

“The most dangerous weapons,” Mladenov said, “rockets, heavy munitions, explosive devices, assault rifles owned by armed groups...tunnels must be neutralized.”

Verification as a Requirement

Mladenov also emphasized that disarmament must be “verified,” with monitoring mechanisms in place to ensure compliance throughout the process.

The report notes that reconstruction efforts in Gaza would depend on this verification, pointing to this as a crucial part of the restructuring element of Gaza.

Reintegration Into Civilian Life

In addition to addressing weapons, the proposal includes a pathway for fighters to return to civilian life. According to the report, this would allow individuals to transition back into society “with dignity,” helping to reduce the chances of future conflict.

“It includes pathways for individuals currently affiliated with armed groups to re-enter civilian life with dignity, through structured amnesty arrangements and reintegration programs,” Mladenov said.

A Timeline for Implementation

The framework also includes a structured timeline that connects disarmament to broader developments such as Israeli withdrawal and reconstruction benchmarks.

“This is a managed process with built-in flexibility because the reality on the ground does not always conform to the timelines on paper,” Mladenov stated.

A Prophetic Moment in History

While world leaders attempt to establish peace through policy and negotiation, Scripture reminds us that the story of Israel has always carried deeper significance. In Matthew 24, Jesus spoke of wars and rumors of wars, pointing to a time when global unrest would intensify.

What is unfolding in Gaza is more than a political strategy—it is part of a larger unfolding narrative that continues to draw the attention of the nations. The question is: Are we paying attention to what may come next?

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

Kim Clement's 'Beast of the East' Warning Suddenly Looks Real Amid Global Crisis

When Kim Clement stood on a platform in Paris on Nov. 14, 2010, the Middle East looked nothing like it does today. Yet the words he spoke that night are now circulating across social media with a sense of urgency that is hard to dismiss.

Speaking at a prophetic gathering in Paris, Clement declared:

But Europe will be affected. And the same way that Daniel was praying, there was a war in the heavenlies – Prince of Persia. There was a battle going on as there is today. And France shall join forces with Great Britain and some other nations. There will be a war. It shall be a short war. Hear me please. This war – and I'm not talking about a spiritual war – a war will take place. It shall be short-lived because as France destroyed the power of invasion from the Middle East in the seventh century, so shall it rise up and destroy the invading forces or the beast of the east, and they will overcome an agreement between Russia and Iran.

Fast forward to March 19, 2026. A joint statement was issued by leaders of the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Italy, the Netherlands, Japan and more than 20 other nations pledging support to secure the Strait of Hormuz – the vital waterway carrying roughly 20 percent of the world’s oil supply, now under direct threat from Iran. The alignment of nations is nearly point-for-point what Clement named on that Paris stage.

“The Beast of the East”

What makes Clement’s prophecies particularly striking is that they went beyond geopolitics. He identified the conflict not merely as a regional war but as an ideological and spiritual collision. He also named the enemy directly.

Three days before the Paris gathering, on Nov. 11, 2010, Clement delivered a separate prophecy in the Netherlands. In that message, he said:

Now there is a storm brewing, says the Lord, but this is not a natural one. And God said there will be a great massive fight. Just one war. One war shall manifest in four different countries. The beast of the east who has said we will remove Christianity in total – in total – from Europe, America, Israel. We will remove their God and we will bring Allah. There is a storm brewing. But God says, “I have already prepared the angels. I have already prepared an outpouring and that which is dying shall suddenly come back to life.”

Clement framed the entire conflict as a spiritual campaign aimed at the erasure of Christianity from Western civilization. He then addressed the nations in the room directly – nations now appearing in the same joint statement on the Strait of Hormuz:

Italy... Germany... France... You made an alliance. You were an ally to the Third Reich. There is a fourth one arising from the east to take over your streets, to take over your children and remove Jesus. But the spirit of God said truth will prevail. A cause will not prevail and the people will begin to arise from the streets.

He went on to prophesy a spiritual outpouring across Europe, declaring that places of pain would become places of revival.

Estonia: The Stone in David's Sling

Perhaps the most unexpected detail in Clement's prophetic record is the one that has stunned even longtime followers of his ministry.

In March 2014 – more than a decade before the current conflict – Clement called out a nation that most Americans had never heard of. Speaking March 20 in Camarillo, Calif., he declared:

Russia, Ukraine, Poland, Germany, Estonia – you shall be the troublemaker. You shall reckon Putin who claims himself as a czar to bring back a system of control and pain and suppression. I laugh at you. When all the nations stand before me now without intelligence, without understanding, they know nothing.

Nine days later, on March 29, he returned to Estonia with even greater specificity:

Estonia. Estonia. Full of light...The little nation that will bring the stone to the head of Goliath. I prophesy – light, light, victory, salvation. Your kingdom come. Your kingdom come. Your kingdom come.

In March 2026, Estonia's foreign minister stepped forward before most of Europe's larger nations had committed, stating that the country was "ready to discuss participation" in a U.S.-led mission to secure the strait and offering what the minister described as "some maybe specific capabilities." It was a small nation stepping into a global moment – much as Clement had described.

To order Amanda Grace's new book, Brace For Impact, visit Amazon.com.

A Short War – and a Reformation

Consistent across Clement's prophecies on this subject is his insistence that the conflict would not spiral into a prolonged engagement. Closing the Paris prophecy, he said:

They will only win because I placed this house on the soil of France, and because of your words the battle shall be won in the heavenlies, says the Lord... Now don't get frightened. We have an enemy that wants to invade, take Christ out of Europe. Sitting on the front row here, there's a pastor from the Netherlands and a pastor from England. They represent the soil and the territories. God is going to pour out his spirit. Germany will be included, Italy – there shall be a great move of the Spirit.

And beyond the conflict itself, Clement saw a sweeping spiritual awakening rising from the nations now standing together:

God said there's going to be a reformation, but this time God said, "I'll use Germany. I'll use Italy. Yes, I'll use Holland, the Netherlands. I'll use France. They will stand and they will stand against the spirit – and that will be the countries that I'll begin a great reformation and there will be an abolishment of the laws of men and your young men and young women shall rise, rise, rise and shout, shout, shout."

Scripture tells us in Ephesians 6:12 that “we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers,” pointing to a deeper conflict beneath the surface of global events. The urgency of the hour is clear: the church must awaken, stand firm in truth and recognize the times we are in.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

Salvations, Baptisms and Healing: Hundreds of Students Encounter Jesus at the University of Pittsburgh

We are not waiting for a spiritual revival to happen. It's already taking place.

During the latest UniteUS event, hundreds of students gave their lives to Christ and buried their old lives through baptism.

In a powerful video, students can be seen coming to the altar, where they hear the Good News of the Gospel: that nothing they've ever done can keep them out of heaven or bring them into it. Instead, it's all a magnificent gift from God.

Students got baptized in the back of trucks, leaving behind the baggage of the past and embracing the new day God had given them.

To order Kathryn Krick's new book, Ignite Revival, visit Amazon.com.

UniteUS founder Tonya Prewett posted on Instagram about the event, writing:

Hundreds made decisions to go all in with Jesus tonight and were baptized at the University of Pittsburgh! God continues to do something new on every campus and tonight we witnessed many people getting physically healed! We baptized until after midnight and the testimonies are pouring in!

View this post on Instagram

A post shared by Tonya Prewett (@tonyaprew)

What is unfolding at the University of Pittsburgh is not merely the result of a clever program, a polished strategy or a well-marketed event. It is the sovereign move of a God who keeps His promises. The church has prayed, fasted, and believed for a generation that would not simply inherit their parents' faith but would encounter the living God for themselves – and Heaven is answering that cry.

These students did not find religion.

They found the Risen Christ.

And there is no going back from that.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

Why Demons Keep Coming Back After Deliverance: What Most Christians Miss

Deliverance is powerful. It's real. And through the power of the Holy Spirit, chains are broken every single day.

But there's a sobering reality many believers face: freedom doesn't always last.

In a striking teaching, John Ramirez addressed the question many quietly wrestle with—why do people get delivered, only to fall back into bondage months later?

“The same devil in a different suit shows up... back in shackles... back in strongholds... back in bondage,” he said.

The Door Was Closed—But Never Locked

According to Ramirez, the issue isn't that deliverance wasn't real. The Holy Spirit truly sets people free.

But something critical is often overlooked.

“You closed the door on the devil... but you forgot to lock the door,” he explained.

To order John Ramirez's book, Exposing the Devil's Playbook, visit Amazon.com.

Using a powerful analogy, he compared spiritual life to securing a home. Closing a door isn't enough—without locking it, the threat can return at any moment.

Spiritually, that “door” represents access points—habits, mindsets and behaviors that once gave the enemy legal ground.

Deliverance Is Not the Finish Line

One of the most impactful truths from the teaching is this:

“Deliverance is not the finish line... it is the starting line of a new season,” Ramirez said.

Too many believers treat deliverance as the end of the journey instead of the beginning of a transformed life.

After freedom comes responsibility.

“What am I going to do from the starting line... with that moment of freedom that God gave me?” he asked.

The Danger of an Empty House

The teaching draws on a biblical principle: when a spirit leaves, the “house” is left empty.

And emptiness is dangerous.

“The problem is not the disorder... the danger is the emptiness,” he warned .

Many believers remove sinful patterns or demonic influences—but fail to replace them with godly ones.

That empty space becomes an invitation.

“You remove things out of the house, but you don’t replace it with nothing,” he said. “That is the key.”

How to Lock the Door for Good

So how does lasting freedom actually happen?

The answer is not a moment—it’s a lifestyle.

“Submission is not a moment... submission is a lifestyle,” he emphasized.

Daily obedience to the Holy Spirit becomes the lock on the door. This includes:

- Guarding what you watch and listen to
- Controlling your words and reactions
- Resisting the urge to return to old habits
- Developing new, godly patterns of thinking

The enemy, he explains, doesn't just come back for the person—he comes back for familiar patterns.

“The demon recognizes old patterns of your life that you never changed,” Ramirez said.

Fill the House, Guard the Door

Ramirez's final charge is both simple and profound: “Fill the house. Guard the door.”

The Word of God becomes the “broom” that cleans the house. The Holy Spirit fills it. And a renewed lifestyle keeps it secure.

Drawing from his own testimony of being delivered after 25 years in the demonic world, he declared victory is possible:

“I swept the house with the Word of God... I filled the house with the Holy Spirit... and I guard the door... those demons don't know my address anymore.”

And for every believer seeking lasting freedom, that can be your story too.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.