

Tucker Carlson Blasts Franklin Graham, Calls Him 'Un-Christian' and 'Sneaky'

Tucker Carlson has taken aim at a very surprising target: The Rev. Franklin Graham.

In an interview with Piers Morgan, Tucker Carlson rebuked Graham on antisemitism.

Carlson, who admitted he previously used overly harsh language about "Christian Zionists," clarified that his deeper concern lies not with individuals themselves.

"I don't hate Christian Zionists," Carlson said. "I'm deeply frustrated with some evangelical leaders who are not preaching Christianity, but some sick, weird, culty version of it that puts Benjamin Netanyahu ahead of Jesus. And that's not Christianity."

According to Carlson, President Donald Trump informed him that Graham had sent a letter labeling Carlson an "anti-Semite" and advising Trump not to engage with him.

"I leave the meeting and I immediately call Franklin Graham. Like, what? Why would you call me [an] anti-Semite? And why didn't you call me first?" Carlson said. "If you think I'm an anti-Semite, wouldn't you want to persuade me not to be? Because that's a pretty ugly thing to be. And as a Christian, as a fellow Christian, you want to talk."

Carlson said Graham communicated with him via a personal assistant, but that Graham was unable to take his call.

"He wouldn't take my call... I went back and forth texting with his assistant all day," Carlson said. "That behavior is so un-Christian and so low, so sneaky, so dishonest that it offends me as a Christian to see it conducted in the name of Jesus.”

Carlson then said that he does not see himself as a good Christian.

“I don’t think I have a monopoly on the truth. I don’t think I’m a very good Christian—I’m not,” he said. “But I don’t think that’s Christianity.”

According to The Christian Post, a spokesperson for the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association (BGEA) shared that Graham never called Carlson an anti-Semite.

To order Malachi O’Brien’s book, Time to Rise, visit .

“Franklin Graham wrote President Donald Trump a brief private letter regarding the U.S. Ambassador to Israel, Mike Huckabee, and the great job he is doing,” BGEA told the Post. “After Tucker Carlson’s recent combative interview with Ambassador Huckabee, Mr. Graham simply commented that Tucker Carlson’s views about Israel were troubling because they ‘could be interpreted as anti-Semitic.’”

The BGEA Association also shared that “Mr. Graham did not tell the president not to talk to Tucker Carlson again,” and that, “those claims are completely false.”

The organization also noted that Graham was unavailable as he was out of town when Carlson contacted them.

“Franklin Graham has been a pilot for more than 55 years and was in required annual recurrent flight training. We offered a date and time when Mr. Graham could call him back, but ultimately, Tucker texted our staff and said Mr. Graham didn’t need to call him.”

To watch Tucker Carlson’s statements with Piers Morgan, click here.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Jerusalem Under Fire: Iranian Missile Debris Falls Near Church of the Holy Sepulchre

Missile fragments falling near one of Christianity's most sacred sites have sent shockwaves across the world as escalating conflict in the Middle East inches closer to the heart of Jerusalem's Old City.

According to reporting from Reuters, The Times of Israel, Aleteia and Catholic News Agency (CNA), an Iranian ballistic missile exploded over Jerusalem, scattering debris across multiple areas of the city—including near the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, widely regarded as the holiest site in Christianity.

The Church of the Holy Sepulchre marks both Golgotha, where Jesus Christ was crucified and the tomb where He was buried and resurrected.

Israel's Ministry of Foreign Affairs confirmed that fragments from the missile landed near several key religious landmarks, including "the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, the Armenian Patriarchate, the Jewish Quarter and the Temple Mount near the Al-Aqsa Mosque,” according to CNA. Officials condemned the attack, warning that it placed Jews, Christians and Muslims alike in danger.

To order Dinesh D’Souza’s new book, The End of Time, visit .

Oren Marmorstein, an Israeli Foreign Ministry spokesman, stated that a direct strike “would be a nightmare,” according to CNA.

“Imagine what would have happened if that ballistic missile that landed just meters away had directly struck this holy site. It would be a nightmare,” Marmorstein said.

While no major structural damage or casualties were reported at the holy sites, the threat was far from theoretical. Reuters reported that police and bomb disposal units were deployed throughout the Old City to secure the area and neutralize any remaining danger from unexploded fragments.

Elsewhere in Jerusalem, the consequences were more tangible. The Times of Israel reported that missile debris struck residential areas, including a home that sustained damage. At least one individual was lightly injured after coming into contact with hot shrapnel. Authorities quickly warned the public not to approach debris due to the danger it posed.

The widespread reach of the fragments—falling near the National Library close to the Knesset and in East Jerusalem neighborhoods—showcased the unpredictable nature of the attack and the vulnerability of civilian and historic sites alike.

Moments like this carry a weight that goes beyond geopolitics. Scripture repeatedly points to Jerusalem as a focal point in the last days—a city that would be surrounded by conflict and tension among the nations. The fact that weapons of modern warfare are now falling near the very place many believe marks

Christ's death and resurrection is a sobering reminder of how closely current events echo ancient prophecy. Yet even in the midst of turmoil, the Bible offers assurance: God's purposes for Jerusalem—and for the world—will not be shaken.

Now we must watch, pray and remain anchored in the hope that Jesus will return, bringing the ultimate peace.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Oscars Expose Spiritual Divide: Life, Loss and the Battle for Hollywood's Soul

In a moment that has stirred both cultural and spiritual conversation, two Oscar speeches—years apart—are now being viewed not just as personal expressions, but as reflections of deeper ideological currents that many believe have long influenced Hollywood.

For decades, some have pointed to the entertainment industry's historical ties to elite circles, symbolism, and even alleged connections to Freemasonry—a system often associated with ritual, Enlightenment ideology, and the elevation of human will. Even the design of the 2025 Oscar award show mimicked the Freemasonry symbol, and the Oscar award itself bears a likeness to Sokar, the ancient Egyptian god.

A few years ago, this paganism was celebrated perhaps in the most astonishing way when actress Michelle Williams made headlines for crediting her success in part to her abortion. Holding her award, she stated, "I wouldn't have been able to do this without employing a woman's right to choose." This depravity echoed something deeper: a system that celebrates literal human sacrifice for personal gain.

To order Chad MacDonald's new book, Defeating Darkness, visit .

However, if we fast forward to this year, and a very different message emerged.

In a video shared by commentator Benny Johnson, Actress Jessie Buckley took the stage and delivered a speech that stood in stark contrast to Williams' speech. She honored family, motherhood and love. Turning to her husband, she said, "You're the most incredible dad. You're my best friend, and I want to have 20,000 more babies with you." Speaking of her child, she added, "I love you, and I love being your mom, and I can't wait to discover life beside you."

Buckley went on to describe motherhood as "the greatest collision of my life," ultimately dedicating her award "to the beautiful chaos of a mother's heart."

This wasn't just a touching moment—it was a disruption.

As Hollywood has long operated under systems that elevate self, power and achievement at any cost, while Buckley's words represented something radically different. Instead of self-exaltation, she pointed to self-giving. Instead of sacrifice for success, she celebrated life as the reward itself.

Scripture reminds us that “children are a heritage from the Lord” (Ps. 127:3), and that true legacy is not built on accolades, but on what we cultivate in the generations to come. In that sense, Buckley’s words aligned more closely with a biblical worldview than what many have come to expect from Hollywood’s biggest stage.

So the question remains: what are we really witnessing?

Is this simply a difference of personal opinion—or are we seeing a deeper clash of kingdoms?

In a culture often accused of glorifying self, a voice that honors life, family and sacrificial love stands out like a light in the darkness. It is this very light that Hollywood needs more of.

To watch Benny Johnson’s full video, click here. (Editor’s note: Mild language).

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Nick Shirley Exposes Alarming California Hospice Fraud

Scandal

Nick Shirley is back again to expose more fraud.

After exposing millions of dollars of fraud in Minnesota related to transportation and daycare services, Shirley is now looking into the state of California related to hospice fraud.

In a video shared on X, Shirley can be seen asking a man in a Tesla Cybertruck, "So, what do you think about all this hospice fraud?" as the man drives away from the scene.

Another person who left the scene from Shirley drove away as well. He noted that "$4.8 million from the state of California" had gone to a business that used to be in that area.

To order Chad MacDonald's new book, Defeating Darkness, visit .

"Brother do you have a badge, do I need to answer your questions?" the man responded.

Soon, everyone in the plaza started leaving upon Shirley's arrival.

"It's just unbelievable the amount of money these people are making, and they're not even trying to hide it," Shirley said. "People are taking advantage of old people, young people in daycares, disabled people with Autism clinics, and no one's doing anything to stop it. So, I think it's time to stand up to these fraudsters and tell them and let them know you are stealing from everyday American citizens."

What we are witnessing is more than just financial corruption—it is a sobering reflection of what happens when a society loses its moral compass. When the vulnerable—the elderly, the disabled, and even children—become targets for exploitation, it signals a deeper spiritual crisis beneath the surface.

Scripture warns in Isaiah 5:20, “Woe to those who call evil good and good evil,” and in moments like this, that warning feels all too real.

The fact that individuals would so boldly profit off of suffering, seemingly without fear or accountability, reveals a hardened conscience and a culture where darkness is no longer hiding—it is operating in plain sight.

But this is also a call to action for believers. Ephesians 5:11 instructs us to “have nothing to do with the fruitless deeds of darkness, but rather expose them.”

Now more than ever, the church must rise—not only in awareness, but in prayer, discernment and boldness. This is not just about fraud; it’s about standing for righteousness in a time when deception is rampant. And as the darkness grows bolder, so must the light.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Irish President Sparks Outrage After Snubbing Saint Patrick's Legacy

Ireland's new president may have just made the greatest snub we've seen of St. Patrick.

In a post shared on X, journalist and media commentator Alex Jones discussed how Catherine Connolly misused St. Patrick as propaganda rather than honoring his true legacy and contributions to the Irish people. In his post, Jones wrote:

Ireland's new communist President, declares war on the very existence of Ireland during her first ST. Patrick's Day message.

Remember colleges UK wide are now saying that the English, Scottish and Irish peoples never existed.

Educational TV programs show Vikings as Africans.

Western white culture is being deliberately erased by replacement migration, and the history that proves we ever existed is being destroyed.

This is beyond book burning.

She calls SAINT Patrick, Patrick four times.

In turn ignoring Ireland's Catholic historical traditions. Refuses to wear green, opting for black instead like a funeral.

And espouses a historically inaccurate version of events comparing St Patrick to a migrant (he was a slave!) to create a modern day socialist propaganda speech.

Ireland's new communist President, declares war on the very existence of Ireland during her first ST. Patrick's Day message.

Remember colleges UK wide are now saying that the English, Scottish and Irish peoples never existed.

Educational TV programs show Vikings as Africans....

– Alex Jones (@RealAlexJones) March 17, 2026

In Connolly's message, she stated, "The story of Patrick's life serves as a reminder of the resilience and courage of migrants. The invaluable contributions that they have made and continue to make to countries they now call home, sometimes even in the face of great adversity."

She further called the Irish people "global citizens" as a way to honor St. Patrick.

To order Travis Johnson's new book, [Un]Embarrassed of Jesus, visit .

"As we recall the life of Patrick, we invoke his spirit and acknowledge our shared responsibilities as global citizens," Connolly said.

The true way to honor St. Patrick isn't by reshaping his story to fit modern political narratives, but by remembering who he actually was—a man transformed by God, who returned to the very land of his captivity out of obedience to Christ.

St. Patrick was not driven by ideology, but by faith. He feared the Lord, preached the gospel with boldness and endured hardship so that Ireland might know Jesus. To reduce his legacy to a talking point or political symbol is to miss the very heart of his mission.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@charismamedia.com.

Hidden Life Exposed? Reports Say Iran's New Leader May Be Homosexual

A cloud of uncertainty is hovering over Iran's leadership—and the implications are sending ripples far beyond the Middle East.

According to reports from The New York Post, The Hill and The Sun, U.S. intelligence officials recently briefed President Donald Trump on deeply sensitive information regarding Iran's newly elevated leader, Mojtaba Khamenei.

The revelations, still unverified publicly, paint a picture not just of controversy—but of instability at the highest levels of power.

Intelligence Reports Raise

Explosive Personal Allegations

In briefings cited by The New York Post and The Sun, intelligence sources reportedly suggested that Mojtaba Khamenei “may be homosexual,” with claims pointing to alleged past relationships involving a male tutor or household employee.

Officials emphasized that the intelligence came from what were described as “highly protected” sources. However, no direct evidence has been released to substantiate the claims.

To order Zaire Willis’ and Reginald Robinson’s new book, Born Gay, Born Again, visit .

The gravity of such allegations cannot be overstated. As The Hill noted, in Iran, homosexuality is strictly outlawed and can carry the death penalty, making the reports not only politically explosive but potentially life-threatening if proven or even widely believed.

The President’s Reaction

According to The New York Post, those present at the briefing—including President Trump—responded with a mixture of surprise and disbelief. As the reporter noted, “Trump couldn’t contain his surprise and laughed aloud” when he heard about this news. In fact, others joined alongside him in his reaction.

□New: President Trump was briefed by US intelligence that Iran's new Supreme Leader Mojtaba Khamenei may be gay

President Trump couldn’t contain his surprise and laughed aloud when he was briefed on the intelligence

Others in the room also found it “hilarious” and joined the...

Questions About Leadership and Legitimacy

Beyond the personal allegations, deeper concerns are emerging about Mojtaba Khamenei's ability to lead.

Reports cited by The Hill indicate that U.S. intelligence has flagged broader doubts about his qualifications and internal support within Iran's ruling structure. Additional reporting suggests that even his father, former Supreme Leader Ali Khamenei, may have had reservations about his son's readiness for power.

These concerns point to a potentially fragile leadership transition—one that may not be as secure or unified as outward appearances suggest.

Is Iran's Leadership in Flux?

Compounding the uncertainty are conflicting reports about Mojtaba Khamenei's physical condition.

Following recent military strikes that killed his father, intelligence cited by The New York Post indicates Mojtaba may have been injured. Some officials have gone so far as to admit they do not know whether he is alive, recovering or worse.

This lack of clarity has led to growing speculation that Iran may be experiencing a leadership vacuum—or at the very least, a power struggle behind the scenes.

With questions surrounding leadership legitimacy, Iran's future direction remains uncertain. And in a region already marked by tension, that uncertainty carries global consequences.

For now, much remains hidden behind the veil of intelligence briefings and incomplete information. But one thing is clear: the situation unfolding inside Iran is far from settled—and the world is watching.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Worship Breaks Out Inside the White House: Is This the Start of Revival?

Are we seeing the beginning of revival break out?

A powerful move of God took place last week at the White House, as worship broke out with a roomful of people singing “Amazing Grace.”

In a post on Facebook, Charisma shared this powerful moment, writing:

Don't stop praying for revival in America. We need an outpouring of the Spirit like never before.

Be encouraged. This happened at the White House last week.

In a recent interview on Daystar's Off the Record, prophetic voice Chuck Pierce offered insight into the nature of the prophetic, the future of the church and nations and what believers should understand about prophecy in the days ahead.

What the Prophetic Really Means

Pierce began by explaining that prophecy is often misunderstood, especially among new believers.

"The whole Bible is God spoke," Pierce said. "And the prophetic comes when you end up by His Spirit."

He noted that every believer has a spirit, but when the Holy Spirit fills a person, the prophetic gift can begin to manifest.

"Really what the true prophetic is," Pierce said, "is expressing the heart and mind of God."

According to him, prophecy requires both truth and emotional alignment with God's perspective.

"You can't have just truth," he explained. "That's not what the prophetic is. You've got to capture God's heart and His emotion about a situation."

The Five Dimensions of Prophecy

Pierce outlined five dimensions of prophetic ministry, explaining that prophecy is far more than predicting future events.

1. The first dimension is comfort.

Prophetic ministry often begins by bringing peace and reassurance to believers during difficult moments. God speaks through His people to remind others that He is present and working.

2. The second dimension is encouragement.

“When you encourage somebody, you’re prophesying,” Pierce said, highlighting how words that strengthen faith can function as prophetic ministry.

3. The third dimension is exhortation, which sometimes involves correction.

In this phase, a prophetic word may confront issues that need to change before growth can occur.

“In exhortation, you might have to tear something down before you give them a word about building,” Pierce explained.

4. The fourth dimension is directive prophecy.

This type of prophetic insight offers guidance, direction or clarity about the path forward for individuals, ministries or even nations.

5. The fifth dimension is redemptive prophecy.

“I think where we are this year is God looks at the redemptive quality of nations,” he said.

According to Pierce, God is examining whether nations will align with His purposes or turn away.

“They’ll either come into all that He has, or they’ll turn away from it.”

A Prophetic Timeline Leading to 2026

Pierce also shared that he believes the Lord revealed a long-term prophetic timeline to him decades ago.

“He showed me 2026 in 1986,” he said, explaining that he wrote about developments occurring in 10-year increments from 1986 through 2026.

To order Chuck Pierce’s new book, Perspective, visit .

Among the revelations he says he received was the rise of China’s global influence—something that seemed unlikely at the time.

“In ’86 China was not... you know, they were just some foreign nation over there,” Pierce said.

Today, however, he believes the world is reaching the culmination of that prophetic period.

“2026 is our defining year for our future,” he said.

A Sorting of the Nations

Pierce described the current global moment as a time of spiritual separation among nations.

“I think it’s the sorting of the nations,” he said. “There’ll be sheep nations and there’ll be goat nations.”

He believes God is giving nations—just like individuals—the opportunity to choose alignment with His purposes.

Pursuing the Glory of God

Rather than focusing on predicting the exact timing of the rapture, Pierce encouraged believers to pursue a deeper experience of God's presence.

"There's a glory realm that we've never entered into," he said.

He believes the church is approaching a moment when the glory of God will manifest in greater ways than ever before.

There is a clear call on the church in the coming days: remain faithful, pursue God's presence and be ready for the days ahead.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.

Jonathan Cahn Reveals the 'DNA of God' Hidden in Scripture

In a recent interview with Charisma Media about the escalating tensions surrounding Iran and the Middle East, prophetic voice Amanda Grace shared what she believes are significant revelations the Lord has given her regarding the region, Israel and global spiritual warfare.

Grace began by describing what she believes is a spiritual shift taking place behind the scenes in Iran—one that she says involves the collapse of long-standing spiritual strongholds.

“These altars that have been in Iran for decades are falling,” Grace said. “When you’re marching out a statue of Baal, you’re literally summoning principalities and powers that are blasphemers of the name of God, and you are coming into covenant.”

According to Grace, these spiritual structures—fueled by what she believes are demonic influences—have shaped events in the region for generations. However, she believes those forces are now being confronted.

To order Amanda Grace’s new book, Brace For Impact, visit .

“You’ve got judgment against these principalities and their disciples,” she said. “And now these principalities are wounded. They are rageful and they are angry.”

Grace then pointed to a prophetic word she says she received on Feb. 26, 2023, in Warrior, Alabama—one she believes is unfolding right now. In the prophecy, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu is symbolically referred to as an “ox” being used by God.

“He shall be the ox for Me, says the Lord, that topples the regime of Iran,” Grace said while recounting the word she believes the Lord gave her. “He shall be the ox for Me that helps plow the fields in America.”

Grace explained that the imagery carries a deeper spiritual meaning.

"An ox on its own is a very powerful animal," she said. "But if an ox is not harnessed, it can become destructive. But what does the master do? It yokes the ox, and now the master steers the ox where it wants it to go."

She believes the prophecy also speaks to a renewed relationship between the United States and Israel.

"For your nation is meant to be a friend and a brother to Israel, and that needs to be reconciled in this season," Grace said, recalling the message she believes God spoke.

Grace also shared a more recent prophetic word she says she received on Feb. 16, 2026, declaring that judgment is coming upon leadership in the Middle East.

"I, the Lord thy God, have ruled and determined disaster against leadership in the Middle East," she said while recounting the prophecy. "For the time has come of their judgment, of their revocation, of a reversal of decades of decrees of destruction."

She further claimed the prophecy pointed to turmoil among Iran's leadership.

"The Ayatollah and his highest generals and advisers shall be pulled from their holes," Grace said. "For they hide amongst the rocks... some in Iraq... some are seeking safe passage to Russia... and to England... and to Spain."

According to Grace, such upheaval would come as part of a larger shift aligning world events with biblical prophecy.

"For in order for what I have written in My word to align, there must be shifting and changings of leadership," she said.

Ultimately, Grace believes the spiritual battle behind global events is intensifying. As tensions rise in the Middle East, she argues that what many see only in political or military terms also carries profound spiritual implications.

“These altars that have been stoked by the principalities of that area are falling,” Grace said. “And now these principalities are wounded. They are rageful and they are angry.”

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment. For interviews and media inquiries, please contact media@.