

Pro-Israel Pastor Launches California Governor Bid With Vow to Confront Rising Anti-Semitism

Revival is not merely something that happens in stadiums or on mission fields—it is meant to happen on suburban streets, in neighborhoods, across kitchen tables and in everyday routines. That is the message echoed by Pastor Jack Hibbs in a powerful teaching from Romans 15.

“If you’ve been transformed,” Hibbs declared, “there is a 365, 24-hour-a-day awareness of the fact that you belong to Him and you’re in the family.” Transformation is not a Sunday-only experience—it is a continual awareness of identity, relationship and mission.

When believers truly embrace this transformation, evangelism becomes the fruit rather than the task. “When we become a hearer of the word and a doer of the word,” he said, “we will not even have to preach Christ. We will display Christ, and people will say to us, ‘Okay, what’s with you?’”

This, he argues, is how the gospel advanced in the first century—and how it must advance again. God is saying, “Come and walk with Me, and let your neighbors and your unbelieving friends see how you’re walking with Me.” When they ask about the hope within us, the believer can respond, “Follow me as I follow Him, because He can be experienced.”

The urgency of the moment cannot be overstated. “We’re running out of time,” he warned. “If God called the apostle Paul to the ends of the earth... we live in the 21st century now, and we have scarcely taken the gospel to the end of our street.”

For many, the hindrance is not hostility, but comfort. We live among neighbors who may never set foot in a church—yet they live close enough to witness our marriages, our suffering, our generosity, our peace and our endurance. Hibbs reminded believers that the early church was known long before it was understood; Rome had heard of their faith. Paul wrote in Romans 15:14 that they were “full of goodness, filled with all knowledge.”

This goodness is not merely politeness—it is God-likeness expressed in action. Knowledge, likewise, is not theoretical but experiential. “Do you know Christ,” he asked, “in an experiential way?”

Such experiential faith provokes questions in a dark world. It also provokes repentance among believers, who must guard their private time with God from the busyness—even of good things. Transformation begins in secret and is displayed in public.

In the end, Hibbs’ appeal was simple: to live as a family on mission. Not a religious crowd, but a transformed household. Not merely a people who study doctrine, but a people who—by the Spirit—embody it. “Now’s the time,” he said, “for us to truly be living, breathing children of the Most High God... and all that that means.”

Massive Christian Revival Erupts Across Brazil

Revival is not coming. It is already here.

In a 10,000-person stadium in São Paulo, Brazil, Kathryn Krick saw revival break out at one of her latest events.

Writing a post on YouTube, Krick shared:

I'm so in awe of the faithfulness of Jesus! 9 years ago God spoke a word through my spiritual father that revival would grow to fill stadiums. We stepped into that promise on Friday in São Paulo! 10,000 people came to encounter Jesus! Their hunger made it so easy for God to move in tremendous power! There was no need for one on one prayer. Jesus came in power and moved upon the thousands of people all over the stadium. People fell down with God's power all over the stadium. Demons were shrieking as they left people all over! Testimonies have begun to pour in of many healings, deliverances and transformation by God's power!

It's amazing that this event took place in the first month of the year on the 9th day of the year, and this promise was fulfilled after 9 years since the prophecy was spoken! God's ways are truly perfect and He writes the most beautiful stories.

In her message to those in São Paulo, Krick said, "I've seen prophetically the heart of God for this nation, for all of you,” she began with. “You all have a special heart for God, a heart after God’s heart.”

Krick’s message centered on revival, including the outpouring of the Holy Spirit.

“God is now pouring out His Spirit in a way we have not seen since when Jesus walked the earth and in the Acts church. He is pouring out His Spirit, His anointing, His power,” Krick stated.

Krick pointed out that the Lord is able to heal every kind of sickness, darkness, disease and demonic oppression. He is the one who can perform any kind of miracle.

“He has poured out His anointing upon the earth,” she said.

She also noted that God did not pick the most likely people to follow Him, yet those were the ones He chose. In the same way, He still chooses people today for His plans and purposes beyond all that we could ever think, hope, dream or imagine, even if they seem like the least likely candidates according to the world’s eyes.

“The hunger I’ve seen of you, Brazilian people, is unprecedented,” Krick says. “I see how you’ve touched His heart. And I see that He has chosen you because of this heart for Him.”

Brazil’s awakening is a reminder that God is not waiting for a future moment—He is moving now. Stadiums are filling, demons are fleeing and hearts are catching fire with holy hunger.

As testimonies continue to pour in from São Paulo and beyond, one thing is becoming clear: the same Spirit that shook the early church is shaking nations again.

Chuck Pierce Reveals 3 Keys to Receive God's Greater Glory in 2026

For decades, the idea of UFOs belonged to late-night radio, obscure conferences and fringe documentaries.

Not anymore.

What was once dismissed as a conspiracy theory has now exploded into the mainstream—and author and researcher L.A. Marzulli believes this sudden shift is not an accident, but a sign of prophetic times.

“Everything is in lock step,” Marzulli told Charisma Media during a recent interview. “Congress is talking about the UAP/UFO phenomenon. Whistleblowers are coming forward... All these people say the same thing: We are not alone in the universe.”

From classified briefings to headline documentaries such as The Age of Disclosure, the cultural messaging is clear: humanity is being prepared for something. And it's happening fast.

To order L.A. Marzulli's new book, The Waiting Room, visit .

Marzulli, who has spent over 30 years investigating UFOs, abductions, cattle mutilations and alleged hybridization programs, believes the biblical warning in 1 Timothy 4:1 is unfolding before our eyes: “The spirit clearly says that in the latter times some will abandon the faith and follow deceiving spirits and things taught by demons.”

“This is exactly where we are,” he says without hesitation.

A Silent Church and a Loud Culture

While government officials and former intelligence operatives fill documentaries with testimony, Marzulli’s concern is not merely national security—it’s spiritual deception.

“The phenomenon is now out of the back room. It’s no longer [a] conspiracy theory. And what’s alarming to me is the slumber of the church.”

A Coming Announcement?

Marzulli imagines what global disclosure could look like if world leaders make a coordinated announcement:

“Folks, I have an announcement to make. We have been in contact with other life forms... They are friendly... We are not alone in the universe.”

He warns that such a moment could trigger the prophetic “falling away,” causing many—especially the unprepared—to abandon biblical faith for a new supernatural narrative.

The Prophetic Worldview Behind the Phenomenon

Unlike secular ufology, Marzulli ties the entire disclosure movement back to Genesis, fallen angels, the Nephilim and a millennia-long spiritual war.

“People are deceived... There is another paradigm, a biblical paradigm,” he says.

This, Marzulli argues, is the real battle—not technological, but theological.

Preparing the Saints

For that reason, Marzulli and other researchers are urging pastors and believers to engage now, not later.

“This is a real phenomenon... and we as believers need to be able to say, ‘This is in the Bible.’”

In a world rushing toward disclosure, he offers a warning that doubles as a prophetic trumpet blast:

“People are falling from the line, and that’s why we’re pushing back.”

As the world races toward what many believe will be a full-scale disclosure moment, the church cannot afford to shrug or sleep through the birth pangs of prophetic fulfillment. Now, more than ever, the remnant must be vigilant, rooted in Scripture and prepared to give an answer for the hope that is within us. The shaking has only just begun.
