

Pope Leo's Legacy Ignites a Modern Twist That Will Surprise You

Pope Leo's legacy is shaping up to be marked by several controversies and surprises. The latest event is undoubtedly one no one saw coming.

In a video shared by The Washington Post, it was noted that Rev. Guilherme Peixoto had to rework his DJ set for a Slovakian youth festival after realizing who should be the opening act: Pope Leo.

In the video for the youth festival, Leo stated: "May the blessing of Almighty God, the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit, come upon you."

"What we leave on the dance floor is amazing, and we need to bring this to the world," Peixoto said of the event.

After Leo's message, strobe lights, electronic music and fog filled the area.

"First of all, I love electronic music," Peixoto said. "And I've always listened, even without thinking that I could be a DJ."

As The Washington Post noted, the priest began mixing music "for church karaoke fundraisers." Since then, he now plays at concerts, festivals and clubs.

"I'm really feeling that God is present, and that God is on the dance floor with us. And I saw people hugging each other, some almost crying. This energy makes you change the world.”

Pope Leo’s legacy continues to unfold in surprising ways. The question now is simply what will happen next in the Catholic Church.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment.

Tucker Carlson Intensifies the Spread of Alarming Conspiracy Theories

Tucker Carlson continues to stand tall on his conspiracy theories that are dividing people across America.

In two separate videos from Dec. 10, media commentator Tucker Carlson pushed wild theories regarding both Israel and the assassination of Charlie Kirk. In regard to Israel, Carlson looked at the statement that Israel is America’s closest ally, challenging that long-held belief.

“But there’s no reason that should stay the way it is forever. What if we decided to change it up? What if we decided to get a new closest ally in the world? How about Qatar? What if Qatar was our closest ally?” he conjectured. “If you were looking purely through the lens of what’s good for the United States, an America first perspective, the most obvious, of course, would be Russia. Russia. Why? Because it's the biggest country in the world. It's the biggest land mass in the world."

Carlson then picked apart the biblical backing and understanding of why Christians are to support Israel as God's chosen people. While he is correct in understanding that Jesus is the way to salvation, he misses the bigger picture here: Jesus came first to the Jew and then to the Gentile. Even the apostle Paul makes it clear that God has not forsaken the Jewish people. It is still the hope and the promise that the Jewish people will come to Jesus as their Messiah.

Our support for Israel isn't just about acquiring territory; it's about keeping the biblical command to bless the people of God and to be blessed in return, as God spoke to Abraham. Scripture is clear: Those who bless Israel will be blessed, and those who curse it will be cursed. God is not finished with Israel, so why should we be?

His next off-the-rails conspiracy regarded the death of Charlie Kirk, with Carlson stating that he questions the FBI in this case.

"...we should not necessarily trust the FBI," Carlson says. "And by the way, why would we? It's not an attack on, you know, the political leadership of it..."

Comparing the case to January 6, he then urged people by stating, "We have a duty to remain skeptical and we should not be ashamed of our skepticism."

As conspiracies about Kirk's death continue to ring out across the internet, these words do not encourage audiences to believe the evidence presented regarding the case, which is not only damaging to the morale of our society but also to Charlie's family, which includes a grieving widow and two children who are now without their father. This proposed skepticism aligns with claims like Candace Owens', which have only caused further division rather than unity for a nation in mourning.

At a time when voices like Carlson's carry immense influence, believers' response must rise above outrage and division. Rather than allowing these narratives to harden hearts or deepen fractures, this is a call for prayer—that God would open Carlson's eyes to truth on every side, soften his heart and align his words with wisdom, compassion and biblical clarity.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment.

Miracles Unleashed: How Healing Your Soul Unlocks God's Power

In a sobering message from a recent livestream, Rabbi Kirt Schneider addressed the spiritual dangers of artificial intelligence, smartphones and the pervasive allure of technology in modern life. Drawing on Scripture, he connected the rise of AI to biblical warnings about knowledge, separation from God and the end-times.

The Allure of Knowledge and the Apple Connection

Schneider began by drawing attention to what many might see as a curious coincidence: the Apple logo and the price of Apple's first computer. "It's the logo of Apple computer, the apple with the bite taken out of it... and even more mysterious... they priced their first computer at $666," he said. He noted that although Apple's co-founders denied any symbolic connection, the imagery echoes the biblical tree of knowledge of good and evil in Genesis.

He argued that the pursuit of knowledge has always been a spiritual crossroads. "At the very beginning, it was the thrust for knowledge... that brought separation from God," Schneider said. Today, he warns, AI represents a modern manifestation of that same desire.

The Modern Eden: Smartphones and Isolation

Using Genesis 2–3, Schneider highlighted how Adam and Eve's desire for knowledge led to alienation from God. "They were now separated from God... no longer aware of the spirit. Now they were conscious of their flesh," he said.

Schneider draws a parallel to today: smartphones and AI provide instant access to all knowledge, yet they can isolate humanity from authentic life. "Look how families no longer talk to each other at the dinner table... we've been brought into a dark world, a world that's void of authenticity and life, void of connection," he said.

Even while acknowledging AI's benefits, such as diagnosing health issues, writing assistance and problem-solving, Schneider warns that it cannot replace spiritual fulfillment. "Are we happier? Are we more connected to God and each other?" he asked.

AI as the Antichrist Spirit

Schneider also uncovered the prophetic implications of AI. He described AI as an "antichrist spirit," a false light that "appears as life, but in fact is an unreality, a dark void and deception." He pointed to Revelation 13 and the infamous number 666 as symbolic of humanity's ultimate pursuit of self-sufficiency, apart from God. "AI at its very core is the product of numbers... the mark of the beast is a number... 666... it is man in his utmost ability," Schneider explained.

He warned that AI's emotional allure of providing conversational responses, affirmations and companionship is a deceptive trap. "If you find yourself leaning into that in your heart... You are in danger," he said.

Resist the Pull of Technology

Schneider offered guidance to avoid spiritual entrapment: create both physical and emotional distance from AI and technology. "We have to discipline ourselves to create space... where we're not holding our smartphone," he said. He emphasized that technology should remain a tool, not a substitute for God.

Ultimately, Rabbi Schneider's message is a wake-up call. As AI continues to grow in sophistication, he reminds us that knowledge alone is not wisdom, and technological convenience cannot replace a relationship with God.

The choice is ours: will we allow AI to become a tool for good under God's authority, or will we be drawn into the pit of deception?

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment.

King Charles Set to Deliver Critical Update on His Cancer Battle

The world is about to receive the update many have been waiting for.

According to CNN, the United Kingdom's king is expected to deliver his remarks regarding his cancer journey on Friday evening.

In a statement by Buckingham Palace, the Royal Family announced that King Charles III will "stress the importance of cancer screening programs in enabling early diagnosis and will reflect on his own recovery journey."

This announcement comes after Charles was diagnosed with cancer in 2024. Since this tremendous blow to the British Royal Family, the prophetic community has spoken into this situation with great warning.

Previously, prophetic voice, Joseph Z noted that Charles' rise to the throne after Queen Elizabeth's death would serve mainly as a transition period before Prince William would fill the role, while Charlie Shamp gave a warning to Charles that God had seen him "sell" his "birthright."

At the end of 2023, Mike Signorelli also pointed to many people of influence receiving terminal illness diagnoses. Chris Reed also prophetically saw: "Twenty-six will come, and I saw in cold weather the death of King Charles. And King William will lean into Christianity and push back on Islamic immigration."

Now, we will wait in anticipation to see what Charles has to say about his cancer diagnosis.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment.

Kim Clement's Prophetic Shaking: A Warning for the Nations

This award, given not just to one individual but also with the recognition that we have entered a new phase of humanity, is a chilling reminder of where we are headed. We are seeing signs of the end times accelerating all around us, much of it fueled by AI. Now, it is clear that AI is playing a greater role in our society than we ever could have imagined.

As Time names the Architects of AI its 2025 Person of the Year, we are confronted with a sobering truth: the rise of artificial intelligence is no longer a distant possibility—it is reshaping our world before our eyes. This moment is a wake-up call for believers to discern the times, to pray for wisdom, and to understand the spiritual implications of a technology that is influencing every aspect of human life.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment.

Inside the Nobel Peace Prize Ceremony: What You Need to Know

Venezuelan opposition leader María Corina Machado, this year's Nobel Peace Prize winner, remained in hiding, while her daughter accepted the award on her behalf.

According to the BBC, Machado's daughter, Ana Corina Sosa, delivered a message from her mother and said their reunification would take place after the ceremony.

"I am here on behalf of my mother, María Corina Machado, who has united millions of Venezuelans in an extraordinary effort," Sosa said. "Although she has not been able to be here and take part in this ceremony, I must say that my mother never breaks a promise. And that is why, with all the joy in my heart, I can tell you that in just a few hours, we will be able to embrace her here in Oslo after sixteen months..."

To order Jonathan Cahn's new book, The Avatar, visit .

As NBC News noted, Machado's speech, delivered by her daughter, reminded the world that "democracy is essential to peace." Machado also noted that: "Freedom is not something we wait for, but something we become." While Machado had made her way safely to Oslo, her path there had been one "of extreme danger." She is currently banned from leaving Venezuela and has been in hiding ever since Venezuelan leader Nicolás Maduro won his last term, presenting a threat to Machado, who opposed his regime.

When Machado won the Nobel Peace Prize, she praised President Donald Trump for his decisive actions worldwide to bring peace to warring nations.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment.

Amanda Grace Issues Dire Warning: Zac Brown and the Rise of 666

After Zac Brown Band's latest Las Vegas residency show stirred up many on social media from their blatant use of demonic imagery at the concert, prophetic voice Amanda Grace is now sounding the alarm on what this means for our society.

"I want to talk to you about underlying spiritual principles that are connecting back biblically with all of this," Grace says. "First of all, the Sphere where this concert is, is on Sands Avenue. In Matthew chapter 7, it says, 'The wise man built his house upon the rock. The foolish man built his house upon the sand.' Las Vegas, where this concert is, is a dry place."

To order Amanda Grace's new book, Brace For Impact, visit .

Grace then points out that demonic entities in Scripture wander through the desert, seeking rest wherever they can find it. She further notes how this all connects to a greater lawlessness.

"When the mystery of lawlessness is at work, many times there is an underlying watermark of 666, and I'm going to show you where it's hidden within this Zac Brown concert," she says.

Grace then mapped out how Zac Brown performed 26 songs during this concert, which took place at the Sphere, a word with six letters, and was sold out for Dec. 5 and 6. The "6" in 26, the six letters and the date of the sixth, Grace points out, is three sixes: 666. She then warned that by celebrating the demonic, Brown is actually giving legal access to demonic entities into his life.

"We cannot give place to these things because when we do, we're giving them dominion and a legal right of passage, not only into our lives, but into the lives of all of those people that were in that concert," Grace says.

Grace's warning serves as a sobering reminder that entertainment can carry spiritual implications far beyond the stage. As Christians, we must remain discerning and vigilant, resisting anything that grants a foothold to darkness in our lives and culture.

Abby Trivett is a writer and editor for Charisma Media and has a passion for sharing the gospel through the written word. She holds two degrees from Regent University, a B.A. in Communication with a concentration in Journalism and a Master of Arts in Journalism. She is the author of the upcoming book, The Power of Suddenly: Discover How God Can Change Everything in a Moment.