

NASA Releases Striking New 3I/ATLAS Photos: Are We on the Verge of a Spiritual Cosmic Shift?

The space oddity 3I/ATLAS has taken the world by storm as space watchers try to determine whether this object is a comet or of extraterrestrial origin. Now, with NASA's new photos of 3I/ATLAS, the world is marveling at what has just been uncovered.

Previously NASA announced the live event of the unveiling of the images, which took place at the Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Maryland. The photos were "collected by a number of the agency's missions," according to their statement.

During the event, Amit Kshatriya, Associate Administrator for NASA, first addressed rumors that 3I/ATLAS was alien life. He says that 3I/ATLAS is undoubtedly a comet.

"This object is a evidence points to it being a comet. This is only the third interstellar object humanity has ever found," Kshatriya said.

Nicky Fox, associate administrator for NASA's science mission directorate, pointed out that while "This one came from a different environment than our own," it is not a danger to our world.

Shawn Domagal-Goldman, the acting director of NASA's astrophysics division, shared that as NASA continues to add to its fleet of resources, it helps capture images of space objects like 3I/ATLAS. He also noted there may have been indications of it as early as May of this year.

Lastly, Tom Statler, NASA's lead scientist for solar system small bodies, shared the comet's trajectory timeline, starting in September. He also noted that the European science center SOHO captured striking images of 3I/ATLAS in mid-October.

NASA then posted these latest images on their social media platforms, writing:

We've just released our newest images of the interstellar comet 3I/ATLAS, the third object we've ever seen passing through our solar system from elsewhere in the galaxy.

Its trajectory will take it no closer than 170 million miles from Earth—almost twice the distance between Earth and the Sun. Every observation our spacecraft and telescopes have made is consistent with 3I/ATLAS being a comet.

Interstellar objects give us a unique opportunity to learn more about what solar systems beyond ours are made of, so astronomers have been keeping a close eye on comet 3I/ATLAS on its arc around our Sun. Over the last several weeks, we've been studying the comet from our Lucy mission en route to the asteroid belt, our Sun-watching PUNCH satellites in low Earth orbit, and even our Perseverance rover on Mars!

What did Kim Clement see for 2026?

The late prophetic voice, Kim Clement, prophesied many stunning events, including that people would cry out for one of America's most important cities.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

Back on June 3, 2015, Clement prophesied:

I call to you, Lord, because you have shown me New York. You've shown me New York. You've shown me, Lord, how the enemy has once again planned is the most strange shall come upon the places of comfort and pleasure. And they shall infiltrate and they shall say, "We'll even black them out. We will even cause them to be so terrorized because there is darkness in one section and darkness in another section. Long Island and Babylon and New York, all these regions, we will blacken it out..."

Clement pointed out that if this battle were to take place, there would be people crying, "Give us New York again."

This would be one of the last prophecies recorded by Clement before his final prophecy on Sept. 5, 2015. Is it possible that what he saw for New York would imply something even greater for America? Is there a reason that God allowed this to be one of the last warning calls from Clement to the United States?

As America watches the rapid spread of Islamic influence in places where it once seemed unthinkable, Clement's words take on a sobering tone. What he saw was not another 9/11—no planes, no towers—but a different kind of infiltration, one that seeps through culture, politics and spiritual identity rather than through a single catastrophic moment.

From the election of Zohran Mamdani in New York to the increasingly aggressive displays of Islamic activism across the nation, it reveals a shift Clement seemed to hint at—a darkness that moves through “places of comfort and pleasure,” unsettling the spiritual atmosphere before anyone realizes how deep it has gone. This is not the sudden terror of 2001; it is the slow, strategic reshaping of a nation from within.

Now, as Christians and Muslims clash in the streets of Dearborn, Michigan—one of the most symbolic battlegrounds of religious tension in the nation—the pattern becomes harder to ignore. Something is building. Something is mounting. Something is moving toward a prophetic moment. Could 2026 mark the fulfillment of what Clement glimpsed—a year when the spiritual battle over America’s identity breaks into full view?

The nation may be entering the very season Clement warned of: a time when America will once again cry out, “Give us New York again,” as darkness and light collide in ways we have not yet seen, but perhaps have been warned about all along.

Vatican Breaks Silence on Rising Christian Persecution

The Vatican has finally made a statement regarding the rising Christian persecution around the world.

In a post to X, Pope Leo XIV wrote:

In various parts of the world, Christians suffer discrimination and persecution. I think especially of Bangladesh, Nigeria, Mozambique, Sudan, and other countries from which we frequently hear of attacks on communities and places of worship. God is a merciful Father who desires peace among all His children! I accompany in prayer the families of Kivu, in the Democratic Republic of the Congo, where in recent days there has been a massacre of civilians. Let us pray that all violence may cease and that believers may work together for the common good.

This statement comes after President Donald Trump also began speaking out about Christian persecution, re-designating Nigeria as a Country of Particular Concern (CPC). Trump previously stated: “The United States cannot stand by while such atrocities are happening in Nigeria, and numerous other Countries. We stand ready, willing, and able to save our Great Christian population around the World!”

As Christians, we are called not only to pray for those suffering persecution but also to stand firmly against the darkness they face. True faith requires action: speaking out, supporting the persecuted and living boldly in the truth of Christ, who is the ultimate source of hope and justice in a world that often turns a blind eye.

Donald Trump Names Who He Believes Will Lead Him Into Heaven

The president just said who he believes will help him get into heaven.

In a post shared on X, Eric Metaxas described his encounter with Trump and how the president joked that Metaxas might be the one to help him get to the pearly gates.

Last night, at my friend Mike Wilkerson's wedding at Mar-a-Lago, the President showed up. As he walked in, he pointed right at me and joked, "This is the guy who's going to get me to heaven..."

I laughed and told him, "I'd really like to talk to you about that... but another time." Then I reminded him, "Don't forget—you're America's Supercentennial President."

Truthfully, I would love to have that conversation with him one day. But this wasn't the place.

This is not the first time that Trump has spoken about heaven. In fact, his comments about heaven have become so frequent that he started raising concerns for Christians when he stated that he didn't think he could get in. In a later interview with Laura Ingraham, the president said he was "being funny" but wasn't sure of his eternal destination.

" I was being funny, sarcastic, you know it's bad for a politician to be was kidding, I was having fun. I don't know if I will or not, I don't know," Trump said.

Before this interview, Trump told a group of reporters, "I don't think there's anything going to get me in heaven. I really don't. I think I'm maybe not heaven-bound. I may be in heaven right now as we fly on Air Force One. I'm not sure I'm going to be able to make heaven, but I've made life a lot better for a lot of people."

While humor and sarcasm may cloak his words, Trump's underlying uncertainty points to a deeper spiritual reality that all of us must come to the realization of: salvation is not earned by achievements, status or worldly success, but through a personal relationship with Jesus Christ.

Continue to pray for the president, that his eyes and heart may be opened to the truth of the Gospel, that Jesus Christ really did die on the cross for his sake, that he may have eternal life.

Islam's Infiltration in the West Is More Than Mere

Immigration

In an eye-opening interview with Glenn Beck, Timothy Alberino explained three historical and biblical reasons transhumanism may be one of the things we can expect to see at the very end of the age.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

1. The Apostles and the Book of Enoch

Alberino and Beck emphasize that the apostles—and even Jesus—were familiar with Enochian tradition and how it explains the concept of fallen angels breeding with humans.

“Jude writes, ‘Now Enoch... Behold, the Lord comes of his saints to execute judgment on all to convict all who are ungodly among them all of their ungodly deeds which they have committed in an ungodly way and of all the harsh things which the ungodly sinners have spoken against him...’ It is reasonable, therefore, to conclude Enochian text must have been numbered among the scrolls in the synagogues,” says Alberino.

“Both the extraterrestrial thing and the demigods thing it’s [in] Enoch,” Beck says.

2. The ‘Golden Age’: Corruption, Hybridization and Judgment

Beck and Alberino then explored the “golden age.”

“It’s that time in the Antediluvian world when the gods descended to the earth and cohabitated with the human species and imparted knowledge to them. This is what’s referred to as a golden age,” Alberino says. “This is the time in which I believe that the megaliths were constructed and and it’s a time when when giants were roaming the earth and these these beings, these non-human celestial beings were... cohabitating the earth with mankind.”

To order James Lasher’s new book, The Revelation of Jesus, visit .

“The golden age would have been the giants mixing with the actual humans,” Beck notes.

“The golden race were the offspring of gods and men. And a great illustration of this is the story of Atlantis,” Alberino continues.

3. Transhumanism: The New Hybrid Age

The rise of AI, genetic modification and implanted technology parallels the ancient corruption of flesh, as Alberino points out. It is this emerging transhumanism that Alberino believes we are now approaching.

“...we have to contend with this question right now. And it’s simply this. What does it mean to be a human being?” Alberino asks. “And is our humanity worth preserving?”

He then notes that humanity just may be close to a “post-human apocalypse.”

“We are we are advancing at an alarming pace toward the end of humanity as we know it,” he continues. “We are creating tools that are going to enable us to redefine human biology to remake Adam. And what it amounts to is become something other than Adam.”

In the end, Alberino and Beck warn that the ancient deception of hybridization is resurfacing through modern technology. As society races toward a new “golden age,” believers must discern the spiritual stakes and guard the one thing Christ died to redeem—our humanity.

3I/ATLAS and Its '12 Anomalies': Signs of Extraterrestrial Activity?

Harvard professor Avi Loeb has now listed 12 anomalies regarding 3I/ATLAS that could raise eyebrows about whether this space object is simply a comet or indeed from an intelligent source of life.

In an article on Medium, Loeb listed 3I/ATLAS' 12 peculiarities that do not fit the norm from other space activities.

The first thing Loeb pointed out was that: "Its retrograde trajectory is aligned to within 5 degrees with the ecliptic plane of the planets around the Sun."

Next, he pointed out that on multiple different occasions 3I/ATLAS "displayed a sunward jet (anti-tail that is not an optical illusion..."

One of the other significant details that Loeb pointed out was that when 3I/ATLAS was entering perihelion, "it brightened faster than any known comet and was bluer than the Sun..."

From "anti-solar jets" to "non-gravitational acceleration," 3I/ATLAS has displayed unique features that point to this comet being far from the ordinary expectations for what we see.

The unusual features surrounding 3I/ATLAS may be less about extraterrestrial life and more about the growing spiritual deception Scripture warns will intensify in the last days. Believers must remember that not every "sign" in the heavens points to life beyond Earth—some may instead foreshadow the strong delusion Paul spoke of in 2 Thessalonians 2, a deception so convincing that many will abandon truth for spectacle. The rising cultural obsession with UFOs, unexplained anomalies and "non-human intelligence" sets the stage for a narrative that could ultimately draw people away from God and toward a false, cosmic counterfeit.

As interest in UFOs continues to grow, believers must anchor themselves in Scripture, discerning the difference between God's creation and the enemy's attempts to distort it. In a world increasingly primed for a great deception, the Church is called not to follow the sensational but to cling to the truth.

Instagram Sparks Outrage After AI Depicts Trump Bowing to Demon Statue

Instagram is facing backlash after it appeared to promote its new AI products while featuring the president in a negative light.

According to a report by The Daily Wire, Meta recently promoted its "free AI creator tools" on Instagram. However, this promotion included something rather shocking: it included an AI-created video of Donald Trump bowing before a demon statue.

As The Daily Wire noted, the promotion said “Meta AI: Try free AI creation tools” which included a “Get app” button. The company told The Daily Wire that the video was “user-generated content” and had “been removed from this recommendation surface as it violated our protocols for promotions.” Meta also told the outlet that they are “taking additional steps to prevent this from happening moving forward.”

The report also discussed how they took a screenshot of the video, uploaded it to the Meta AI platform, and asked it what the photo depicted. The Meta tool said it was a “manipulated photo of Donald Trump... interacting with a large, black horned creature, likely a satanic or demonic image is likely a satirical or humorous representation...”

This event shows that AI is not always used with the best intentions, and when in the wrong hands, it can create something dark and horrifying. This incident serves as a stark reminder of the spiritual battle that underlies much of what we see in the world, including technology. AI is a tool, but it can be twisted to spread deception, fear and even blasphemy.

Christians are called to discernment, recognizing that not everything presented as “entertainment” or “innovation” is harmless; some images, messages or ideas are designed to manipulate, mock, or even lead people away from God’s truth.

Social media and AI may shape culture, but Christians are called to influence culture spiritually and morally, exposing what is dark while pointing people to God’s goodness. This is a call to vigilance—using discernment in the digital age, rejecting deception and remembering that ultimate authority belongs to God, not man-made images or manipulations.

"I have such regard for what you have been able to accomplish, not just creating for yourself, but planting that good soil into the hearts and spirits of people all over this world," Winfrey said of Jakes.

Winfrey started by sharing about her days of being raised in the church and said, "I will tell you that I have been God-led, spirit-led from the beginning, and every decision I have ever made that has led to any kind of success whatsoever, has come from sitting with the spirit and asking God, 'What would you have me do first?'"

The two later pivoted in their conversation, with Jakes discussing AI and how people are unlikely to be prepared for the job losses that will result from it. He also pointed out that people will need to pivot next based on what we are seeing in these changing times.

"They're going to lose their jobs at a time," says Jakes. "I'm concerned that inflation is squeezing are strategies that would avert this and make this work well... You can't use an old method against a new devil."

Winfrey, however, noted that she does not believe speaking up against AI is going to do much of anything. "I think AI is is going to be as prevalent as you know, the 's not just 'is it coming?' It is here."

The two then discussed how AI and our current era are connected to the spiritual realm.

"I firmly believe that in times like these, it is necessary, it is essential, it is vital to get as close to God as you can," Winfrey said. "I think that the spiritual and upholds itself for all things."
