

A Dangerous Stage Is Being Prepared for the Beast System

Are we witnessing a dangerous stage being set for the ultimate authoritarian government to come onto the world stage?

In an speech to a group of children, El Salvador's president Nayib Bukele gave a shocking statistic: he said 80,000 people in his country have been put in prison in order to have peace in their nation.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

"We had to imprison 80,000 criminals to achieve this peace," Bukele said. "Because entire generations had been left behind by previous governments. If those generations had been educated correctly, that would not have been necessary."

Bukele then promised that this would not have to happen again in future times to come because a different type of education is being implemented into their country now to raise up leaders that will abide by a different system.

"Education isn't just teaching math or science. Education is shaping people. It is teaching respect, civic duty, discipline and values," he continued. "It is even teaching basic things such as saying, 'thank you,' 'please' and 'good morning.' These small things should never have been lost. It is teaching students to show up to school clean, take care of public spaces, not litter in the street, and respect the lives and private property of others."

Bukele said it is much harder to break adults of poor habits than teach children the ones you want instilled in the first place.

“...if we work with the youngest among us, who are the future of El Salvador, we can ensure that what happened will never be people complain that it’s authoritarianism. It is not. It’s basic education.”

This dramatic shift in El Salvador comes as here in America the National Guard was recently deployed into cities like Chicago and Washington, D.C. While there is truth that good morality should be part of the the fabric of a nation, the question is: Could these actions be setting up a dangerous precedent for things to come in the future? If the following administrations differ in their ideologies and values, what disciplines and definitions of morality will be placed on people? Could even Christians find themselves locked up behind bars if those in power disagree with their faith?

What we are witnessing may well be a subtle preparation for a global system that seeks to control not only actions but the very hearts and minds of the next generation. As nations experiment with authoritarian measures under the guise of morality, order or education, the stage may be quietly set for a system that will not tolerate dissent, including those whose conscience is bound by the Word of God. What begins as discipline and civic instruction can easily morph into control that violates freedom of worship, speech and faith itself.

As darkness rises and governments seek to redefine morality, the Church must rise in prayer, holiness and unwavering obedience, knowing that the faithful who endure will inherit God's eternal kingdom and that His justice will ultimately triumph over every attempt at global oppression.

Prophecy of Peace or Destruction? Why Turkey Could Be Setting the Stage for What's Coming Next

As global leaders are gathering in Istanbul on Monday to discuss the Gaza ceasefire and "stabilization plan," there appears to be major prophetic parallels happening between world events and Scripture. According to Reuters, ministers from Turkey, Egypt, Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Qatar and Indonesia are meeting to discuss the Gaza and Israel ceasefire. While headlines frame it as a diplomatic step toward regional calm, the Bible may describe something far more significant taking shape.

“Peace and Safety” in a Shaking World

The Apostle Paul warned, “When they say, ‘Peace and safety,’ then sudden destruction comes upon them” (1 Thess. 5:3). The world longs for stability, yet the more leaders insist that peace is at hand, the more unstable we see the region become. Ceasefire after ceasefire collapses. Each new round of talks underscores the truth that no treaty can secure what only Christ, the Prince of Peace, can provide.

The Rise of Regional Coalitions

Ezekiel 38–39 describes a future coalition led by nations from the north—widely interpreted as regions including Turkey, Iran and their allies—who will one day rise against Israel. In today’s headlines, we see those same nations forging alliances under the banner of diplomacy. Turkey, increasingly positioning itself as a mediator and regional power, may be stepping into the prophetic framework outlined more than 2,500 years ago.

Jerusalem: The Cup of Trembling

Even as Gaza dominates the conversation, the status of Jerusalem always looms in the background. Zechariah 12:2 warns that the Holy City would become a “cup of trembling” for all nations. Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdoğan has repeatedly linked Gaza’s suffering to the status of Jerusalem and the Al-Aqsa Mosque. Every attempt to “solve” the conflict eventually circles back to the city God chose as His own—fulfilling Zechariah’s warning that all who try to move it will wound themselves.

Dividing the Land

Joel 3:2 declares that God will judge the nations for scattering His people and dividing His land. Proposals for international administration of Gaza or for dividing territories once promised to Israel touch this prophetic nerve directly. Each diplomatic step taken without divine counsel edges closer to what the prophet warned—a confrontation not just between nations, but between heaven and earth.

Watching and Waiting

While diplomats seek peace in the Middle East, believers are reminded that these tremors signal the unfolding of God's Word. Jesus said, "When these things begin to happen, look up, for your redemption draws near" (Lk. 21:28). For the Church, these aren't merely political negotiations—they're prophetic milestones reminding us that God's timetable is advancing.

As nations gather in Istanbul to draft ceasefire plans, the true peace plan was already written in Scripture. It won't come through treaties or stabilization forces, but through the return of the Prince of Peace, whose reign will finally turn "swords into plowshares" (Isa. 2:4). Until then, we watch, we pray and we remember that every shaking reminds the world: prophecy is not fiction—it's unfolding before our eyes.

President Trump Addresses Religious Persecution: 'Save Our Great Christian Population'

President Donald Trump has finally addressed the mounting religious persecution of Christians around the globe.

In a post to Truth Social, the president specifically discussed the Christian deaths and persecution taking place in Nigeria.

Christianity is facing an existential threat in Nigeria. Thousands of Christians are being killed. Radical Islamists are responsible for this mass slaughter. I am hereby making Nigeria a "COUNTRY OF PARTICULAR CONCERN" – But that is the least of it. When Christians, or any such group, is slaughtered like is happening in Nigeria (3,100 versus 4,476 Worldwide), something must be done! I am asking Congressman Riley Moore, together with Chairman Tom Cole and the House Appropriations Committee, to immediately look into this matter, and report back to me. The United States cannot stand by while such atrocities are happening in Nigeria, and numerous other Countries. We stand ready, willing, and able to save our Great Christian population around the World!

This comes as the genocide against Christians in Nigeria continues to grow, with a pastor in the country pleading for help from President Trump in the middle of a mass grave of believers.

“Is there any Muslim here? United Nations, I know you’re watching me. American Senate, you are watching what I’m doing...Special Advisor to Trump: Now, please tell Trump to save our lives in Nigeria. They are killing Christians in Nigeria...” he pleaded.

Mass funerals and burned down churches have become part of the norm in Nigeria with people across the Western World wondering why the media refuses to discuss this issue. Rep. Riley Moore (WV) asked for the U.S. State Department to get involved and finally redesignate Nigeria as a Country of Particular Concern (CPC).

Where Is 3I/ATLAS? The Interstellar Mystery That's Puzzling Scientists

The unidentified space object 3I/ATLAS continues to baffle both scientists and others alike. Is it a comet or intergalactic visitors? Here are the historic updates about this unusual object that you should know.

According to a new report by the New York Post, 3I/ATLAS “flew too close to the Sun.” Unlike its projected path, the outlet noted that the believed comet “executed an unusual maneuver while approaching the Sun earlier this week...”

In a Medium article, 3I/ATLAS expert Avi Loeb noted that the object gave “first evidence of a non-gravitational acceleration.” He further described how this “non-gravitational acceleration was measured at the perihelion distance of times the Earth-Sun separation...”

Loeb, who has speculated that this object may indeed be created from an intelligent source of life, wrote in his article: “ the non-gravitational acceleration might be the technological signature of an internal engine. This might also explain the report on 3I/ATLAS getting bluer than the Sun...”

CNN noted that 3I/ATLAS was approximately 126 million miles from the Sun, and it should be observable by telescope starting November 11, making its closest contact with Earth on December 19.

Could it be that what scientists are calling 3I/ATLAS is more than just a scientific anomaly? As talk of alien life grows louder, believers must remember what Scripture warns: that in the last days, strong delusion will come upon the earth (2 Thess. 2:11).

As 3I/ATLAS draws closer to Earth, the body of Christ must stay spiritually alert. The same heavens that declare the glory of God are also being used by the deceiver to counterfeit His wonders. The hour is late, and discernment has never been more vital. While the world looks up in curiosity, let us look up in expectation, knowing our redemption draws near as we anticipate the coming return of Christ the King.

JD Vance Opens Up About Hoping Usha Will Encounter Jesus

During a question-and-answer session at the latest Turning Point USA event at Ole Miss, Vice President J.D. Vance discussed his desire for his wife, Usha, to come to know Jesus Christ as her Lord and Savior.

Vance discussed how Usha grew up in a Hindu household, and that when they met they both would have considered themselves agnostic.

“Everybody has to come to their own arrangement here,” says Vance. “The way that we’ve come to our arrangement is she’s my best friend. We talk to each other about this stuff.”

The vice president noted that most Sundays Usha will join him for church.

“Do I hope eventually that she is somehow moved by the same thing that I was moved in by church? Yes, I honestly do wish that because I believe in the Christian gospel, and I hope my wife eventually comes to see it the same way,” he said. “But, if she doesn’t, God says everybody has free will, and so that doesn’t cause a problem for me, that’s something you work out with your friends, your family, with the person you of the most important Christian principles is that you respect free will. Usha’s closer to the priests who baptized me than maybe

I am. They talk about this stuff.”

THIS IS SO AWESOME!!! VP Vance just revealed that he is raising his kids to be Christian, and says he hopes his Hindu wife will come to Christ.

“Everybody has to have this own conversation when you’re in a marriage,” he says. “You’ve just got to talk to the person that God has put you with, and you’ve got to make those decisions as a family.”

After receiving some backlash for his comments about his interfaith marriage, Vance took to X where he wrote:

What a disgusting comment, and it's hardly been the only one along these lines.

First off, the question was from a person seemingly to my left, about my interfaith marriage. I'm a public figure, and people are curious, and I wasn't going to avoid the question.

Second, my Christian faith tells me the Gospel is true and is good for human beings. My wife—as I said at the TPUSA—is the most amazing blessing I have in my life. She herself encouraged me to reengage with my faith many years ago. She is not a Christian and has no plans to convert, but like many people in an interfaith marriage—or any interfaith relationship—I hope she may one day see things as I do. Regardless, I'll continue to love and support her and talk to her about faith and life and everything else, because she's my wife.

Third, posts like this wreak of anti-Christian bigotry. Yes, Christians have beliefs. And yes, those beliefs have many consequences, one of which is that we want to share them with other people. That is a completely normal thing, and anyone who's telling you otherwise has an agenda.

What a disgusting comment, and it's hardly been the only one along these lines.

Amanda Grace Issues Prophetic Warning: Blood Moons and a Mysterious Pattern for 2026

Understanding the Bible requires more than casual reading—it demands context, discernment and careful study. In a recent video, Pastor Jack Hibbs reminds believers that “context is everything—historical, literary and prophetic” when exploring Scripture, especially prophetic passages that reveal God’s plan for the end times.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

One of the most exciting and often overlooked prophecies concerns the Millennium, the literal 1,000-year reign of Jesus Christ on Earth. Hibbs explains that when Christ returns, He will rule from the throne of David in Jerusalem, fulfilling God’s covenant promise that a descendant of David would reign forever. During this period, nations and individuals will be judged according to their treatment of Israel, a theme Hibbs highlights in Matthew 25: “He will judge the nations... as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats.”

To order James Lasher's new book, The Revelation of Jesus, visit .

An astonishing detail Hibbs points out is the role of David during this future era. Though resurrected, David will not serve as king; instead, he will be known as Prince David, presiding under the authority of Christ: "David at the commencement of the millennium... is no longer the king... He presides over Jerusalem and Israel as the prince." This unique hierarchy emphasizes Christ's ultimate authority while honoring David's historical significance.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up-to-date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

Hibbs also distinguishes between the different groups of believers throughout Scripture. Old Testament saints, ending with John the Baptist, wore white robes, as did tribulation saints at the end of the world. Church-age believers—the Bride of Christ—are unique. Hibbs points out that Scripture describes their garments differently: "We are the bride of Christ... never does it say that the bride of Christ is given white robes to wear. She is given fine white linen," symbolizing the righteous acts of the saints. During the Millennium, the Bride of Christ will reign alongside Jesus, fulfilling their calling in a restored world under His governance.

Hibbs points to the choices of individuals during this time. "...if you read the book of Revelation, chapters 21 and 22, you will read there that Satan will be released at the end. And he will go about the world deceiving people, trying to get them to overturn the government of Christ. And that's not going to succeed. But he's going to draw people after him. Which means what? People will choose. Always choice. God built us to always exercise choice until you and I are either dead, resurrected, raptured, until we're in glory, we have the ability to choose."

Join Charisma Magazine Online to follow everything the Holy Spirit is doing around the world!

Hibbs challenges believers to engage Scripture personally and deeply, to understand God's plan and to anticipate the incredible restoration and reign of Christ. The Millennium is not a distant allegory—it is a literal promise, filled with prophecy, justice and hope for all who believe.

7 Reasons Christians Should Avoid Halloween

Former witch, Jenny Weaver, also stated: "If you can get the young generation, you can get the world." What parents may see as a harmless holiday, the enemy sees as an opportunity to open spiritual doors.

Witchcraft, visit .

The symbolism surrounding Halloween is steeped in death, witchcraft and occult practices. From costumes to jack-o'-lanterns, each tradition has origins meant to appease or repel spirits—but participating in these rituals, even “innocently,” invites demonic influence into homes.

Swiegelhaar emphasizes, “Anything to do with death, anything to do with the demonic... serves as a little lighthouse, a magnet for the demonic.” Candy, a seemingly sweet treat, is connected historically to practices that “sweetened children’s blood for spiritual purposes.” As Weaver also notes, police officers and emergency responders report Halloween as the day with the highest incidents of child abductions and violence, underscoring the danger children face.

Many Christians unknowingly compromise their children’s spiritual safety, thinking participation is harmless. Swiegelhaar asks a critical question for every parent: “If you are bought with the blood of Christ... why would you act like you are still for sale?” Dressing children in costumes, attending trunk-or-treat events or celebrating with candy does not remove the original spiritual intent of the day.

Parents have a God-given responsibility to protect their children. Former Satanist, John Ramirez, also warns, “Halloween, trunk or treat, the harvest, you sign legal rights over to the devil.”

JD Vance Exposes the Truth Behind UFOs, Demons and Dark Forces

In an interview with the New York Post, Vice President JD Vance was asked about his interest and knowledge regarding aliens.

Admitting that he had yet to take the time to really study government information regarding UFOs, Vance promised that he wants to “get to the bottom” of these increased sightings and unexplainable events.

“I will get to the bottom of this,” Vance said. “It’s going to take me a little bit of time.”

“I’m a big believer that there are like spiritual forces working on the physical world that a lot of us don’t see and a lot of us don’t understand and a lot of us don’t appreciate. Is it aliens or is it our guardian angel? Or is it aliens or is it a not-so-guardian force that doesn’t care about us, and in fact, actively wishes us harm? I don’t know the answer to that question.
