

Jenny Weaver Delivers Fiery Prophetic Message After Losing Her Mother

The 2025 Breakers Conference, hosted by Pastor Mike Signorelli and V1 Church, saw an incredible time of breakthrough for the masses. During this powerful conference, Jenny Weaver demonstrated supernatural strength as she delivered a riveting message to the next generation, despite the recent loss of her mother.

During her message, Weaver explained the conversation she had with the Lord about losing her mom during the conference.

“They said, ‘Are you still going to go to Breakers?’” Weaver recounted. “I said, ‘Lord, what am I going to do? I’ve never lost a mother before. This is my first time.’ The Spirit of the Lord said, ‘You must work while it is yet day, for night is coming.’ And the Lord sent me here on came here to stir somebody else in this place up into holiness.”

The key to experiencing this river is openness. We must be willing to step beyond our comfort zones, routines, and habits. “God wants His life to flow. God wants our [lives] to flow. And God wants to flow in our midst here. Even more so, for that to happen, you have to be open,” Cahn teaches. Freshness and revival come when we repent and seek God anew. The river flows both ways: we receive from God, allowing it to transform our lives, and then release it outward, impacting others.

“The Spirit coming is always new. A river has to flow both ways,” Cahn reminds us.

If we remain open to His movement, He transforms the dead into life, routine into the miraculous and the ordinary into the extraordinary. The river is waiting—will we let it flow through our lives?

When Deception Strikes the Church: Prophetic Word About Division and Lies

A prophetic word released by Amanda Grace on Oct. 7, 2025, declared that America is entering a season of tremendous pressure and exposure, as God allows darkness in high places to be brought into the light.

“I am allowing a great pressure to build,” Grace prophesies. “It is being allowed to build in areas of your nation—Washington, D.C., the White House, Chicago, New York, Portland, Los Angeles, Denver—where rulers and dark councils are on the move to force a clash with the president.”

According to Grace, these spiritual pressures are not arbitrary, but divinely permitted shaking points meant to reveal corruption that has long been concealed within government, intelligence agencies and major cities.

The Greatest Scandal to Ever Come Forth Out of Chicago

Grace specifically names Chicago and the greater state of Illinois, saying both the mayor and the governor have “met with dark councils” to maintain control. “...the greatest scandal to ever come forth out of Chicago shall come forth in this time,” she says.

The prophetic word also warns that what the media and politicians will call “shutdowns” will in fact become openings for divine exposure.

“For as the media and the nation yell, ‘Shutdown! Shutdown!’ I, the Lord thy God, am opening things wide up,” the prophecy continues. “Shutdowns will not cover up what you have done.”

A Spiritual Rebellion: The ‘No Kings’ Movement

Grace’s word then connects these current events with the “No Kings” protest movement, describing it not merely as a political rebellion but a spiritual rejection of God’s kingship—mirroring Israel’s demand for an earthly king in 1 Samuel 8.

“This has to do with not only rejecting God as King, but with wanting souls,” she explains. “For the Lord said to Samuel, ‘They have not rejected you, but they have rejected Me from being king over them.’”

In Scripture, when Israel demanded a king, it came during a time of bribery, corruption and perverted justice—a pattern the prophet says is now repeating in modern America.

“When Samuel’s sons perverted justice and took bribes, the people rejected God’s rule and asked for Saul. That same spirit of Saul is rising again,” Grace says.

The Spirit of Saul and the Call for Assassinations

Drawing a direct spiritual parallel, the word warns that the same “spirit of Saul” behind Israel’s rebellion is also fueling calls for violence and assassination today.

“Saul rose up and called for the assassination of David—the one chosen by God,” Grace states. “We are now hearing assassination attempts being called for, because this same spirit is at work again.”

The word identifies two biblical “Sauls” as prophetic archetypes:

- King Saul, who tried multiple times to kill David.
- Saul of Tarsus, who persecuted and approved of the killing of Christians before his conversion.

Both are seen as representing a spirit that seeks to destroy God’s anointed and the righteous in the land—a spirit that “brings the outcry to assassinate, smear and destroy those chosen by God.”

A Clash of Kingdoms: God’s Warning to America

Grace’s prophetic message promises that what is unfolding in America is not merely political but a clash between two kingdoms—one of light and one of darkness.

“No Kings is more about a rejection of God in His ways than it is about Donald Trump,” Grace emphasizes. “It is about a people rejecting the rule of Almighty God and choosing an earthly Saul who will turn the kingdom sideways.”

If true to this word, America stands at a spiritual crossroads—between the humility of David and the pride of Saul, between submission to God’s kingship and rebellion that demands an earthly ruler. The coming days, Grace suggests, will reveal which spirit will rule the hearts of the nation.

As Charisma media previously reported, Forchas was shot in the head during the mass shooting that took place on Aug. 27. removed to ensure that her brain did not swell.

Joe Rogan Just Made His Boldest Statement Yet About Jesus Christ and the Church

In one of his latest interviews with Francis Foster and Konstantin Kisin, Joe Rogan offered one of his most insightful views on the Christian Church and Jesus Christ.

Stating that he loves going to church, Rogan said, "It's a bunch of people that are trying to make their lives better. They're trying to be a better person. And they're trying for me at least the place where I go to read and analyze passages in the Bible. I'm really interested in what these people were trying to say."

Beyond liking his experience at Church and hearing about the Scriptures, Rogan also shared that he believes there is something more to Christianity.

“I don’t think it’s nothing,” Rogan said. “There is a lot like atheists and secular people that just like to dismiss Christianity as being foolish, you know, it’s fairy tales. I hear about [it] amongst self-professed intelligent people like it’s a fairytale. I’m like, ‘I don’t know if that’s true.’ I think there is more to it.”

Rogan pointed out the complex history behind the writings of Scripture, noting that we must look at it through the oral traditions and cultural contexts in which it was written. “I think there’s something to what they’re saying. I don’t think it’s nothing.”

Joe Rogan tells his guests he ENJOYS GOING TO CHURCH: "the place that I go to, they read and analyze passages in the bible," then talks more about his present view of Jesus and what it all means.

– Protestia (@Protestia) October 24, 2025

He also noted that Christianity has, by and large, spoken to the hearts and minds of people in a way that other religions have not.

“There’s [a] reason why it resonates with people,” he said. “Christianity in particular is most fascinating to me because there’s this one person that everybody agrees existed that somehow or another had the best plan for how human beings should interact with each other and behave and was the best example of it, and even died in a non-violent way, like didn’t even protest, died on the cross supposedly for our sins.”

Right now, Rogan is still wondering what “does it represent though? What was that? Like what happened? Who was Jesus Christ?”

As Rogan continues to open up to Christianity and the truth of the gospel, pray that his heart and mind may be opened to the reality that Jesus Christ is the Son of God.
