

UFO Impact? Strange Orb Hits Earth, Stuns Experts

Did earth just experience contact with something out-of-this-world?

In a report by The Daily Mail, an unusual object was discovered out in the middle of nowhere of the Australian Outback. However, there was no indicators around the object as to where it came from.

As the Mail noted, the West Australian Police are working on a “multi-agency response” after the discovery of the item over the weekend near a mining location. The staff of the mining site found this object on fire in the middle of a road that is not widely used.

From WA Police, The Daily Mail

This strange find is reportedly made out of carbon fiber and “may be a composite-overwrapped pressure vessel or rocket tank.” However, it is decidedly not from a commercial aircraft. This unidentified object is also “similar to other known space re-entry debris” according to police.

While scientists and authorities scramble to identify this unusual object, for believers there is a reminder that our world is far bigger and more mysterious than we often realize. The heavens declare the glory of God, and even in the unexplained events around us, His sovereignty is evident.

Christians are called to discern the times and remain vigilant, recognizing that unusual occurrences can serve as wake-up calls to seek God's guidance and protection.

As headlines focus on fire, smoke and space debris, God's Word reminds us that He is in control of the universe—every star, every planet and every unknown phenomenon falls under His authority.

Are We 18 Months Away from the Rise of the Beast System?

During a recent message, Amanda Grace of Ark of Grace Ministries issued a sobering warning about the spiritual roots of Halloween, explaining that the holiday is a mockery of biblical truth and a reverse engineering of God's Word by the enemy.

“There is a thread within the Word of God that represents putting on a costume or a covering in order to deceive for a blessing,” Grace said. “From the beginning in the Garden of Eden, there was a deception that was perpetrated.”

She began by tracing this spiritual pattern back to Genesis. When Adam and Eve sinned, “a covering—animal skins—were put over them, having to do with the deception because they could no longer be as their original design. It was a costume. It was a covering.”

Grace explained that the same pattern appears again in the story of Jacob and Esau.

“In Genesis 27:15, Rebekah took her elder son Esau’s best clothes and put them on Jacob,” she said. “The mother dressed up her son in a costume to go out and deceive the father for a blessing.”

Drawing a parallel to Halloween, Grace observed, “Parents are the ones who dress their children predominantly up in costumes, who then send them out in that costume to parade as someone else in order that they may receive a blessing or a treat—which is candy.”

She pointed to other biblical examples, such as Tamar dressing as a prostitute in Genesis 38 to deceive Judah and Rahab covering the Israelite spies to deceive the king of Jericho.

But the most profound spiritual parallel which this trickery is meant to distract from, as Grace points out, is the covering we receive through the blood of Jesus Christ.

"We are under a covering before Almighty God of the blood of Jesus Christ," Grace declared. "We are covered under the garment of Christ to receive the blessing we did not deserve because we are sinners, and by nature, the human nature is a deceiver."

Grace warned that Satan cannot create anything original.

"The enemy cannot create," she said. "He can only take and manipulate what already exists. Halloween and costumes are a gross manipulation of the warning in the Word of God."

The phrase "trick or treat," she explained, encapsulates this deception.

"'Trick' is the deception," she noted. "The thread in the Word of God is that deception would bring a treat or blessing. But really, deception brings destruction."

Ultimately, she said, Halloween is "a mockery of the Word of God" meant to "worship the deceiver and the father of lies."

"The enemy has tricked parents and their children into celebrating the deception—the very deception that in the garden, the trick of the serpent, made Eve believe that by eating that fruit she would receive a treat and be like God," Grace warned.

Halloween may appear harmless, a fun tradition for children, but beneath the costumes and candy lies a deeper deception—a counterfeit of the truths God designed to bring blessing and life. As the enemy twists God's Word for his own gain, believers are reminded that only through Christ's covering can we walk in truth and receive the blessings meant for us.

Perry Stone Warning: Are We Seeing a False Peace Before the Antichrist Comes?

The lesson is clear: the way to pass life's tests is not by avoiding them altogether, but by actively seeking God's way of escape and acting on it. Cahn reflects, "Whenever you're being tempted, immediately look—where's my exit? The way out of a test is not by trying to avoid it. The way is by passing it."

Like Joseph, who fled Potiphar's wife even at personal risk, believers must be proactive in pursuing holiness and obedience.

This principle extends beyond moments of personal temptation. Romans 5:3 teaches that we can rejoice in our trials, knowing they build perseverance, character and hope. James 1:2-4 echoes this, encouraging believers to “consider it pure joy...whenever you face trials of many kinds” because testing produces spiritual maturity.

Cahn’s story is a reminder that God never leaves us without a way forward. Temptation, trials and tests are part of the believer’s journey, but they are not insurmountable. By identifying the exits God provides, choosing obedience and maintaining a spirit of joy and perseverance, we can pass every test placed before us. The trials we face are not punishments; they are opportunities to rise to higher ground in God, to demonstrate strength in Him and to fulfill our calling.

Pope Leo Canonizes Former Satanist as Catholic Saint,

Marking Unprecedented Vatican Move

Pope Leo XIV just made an uncanny move in his decision to make an ex-Satanist a saint.

Pope Leo decided to canonize prior Satanic priest Bartolo Longo, according to PhilSTAR Life. Longo was an Italian lawyer who had quite an unusual spiritual journey.

Longo recommitted himself to Catholicism and renounced Satanism prior to his death in 1926. Longo originally raised up in Catholicism, but left the faith and became an atheist.

After this departure, he became a Satanic priest where he spent years of his life locked into depression and darkness. However, he then experienced a spiritual transformation and came back to Catholicism. Longo devoted himself to the church following this conversion and promoted the use of the Rosary.

Longo was not the only saint Leo canonized. Leo also canonized Ignatius Choukrallah Maloyan, who was a Catholic archbishop that died during an Armenian Genocide in 1915. Maloyan stood boldly for his faith during this time when the Ottoman Empire overtook the area as he refused to give up Christianity for Islam. José Gregorio Hernández became a saint as well, being known for his faith and contributions to others as a “doctor of the poor” along with Peter To Rot who ministered to others during World War II and was eventually caught and murdered in 1945.

The pope also canonized three women as saints of the Catholic faith as well. Maria Troncatti was a nun, nurse and missionary who shared the gospel with the Amazonian people of Ecuador. Vincenza Maria Poloni was a nun who started the Institute of the Sisters of Mercy of Verona that achieved this high honor while María del Carmen Rendiles Martínez also started the Servants of Jesus of Venezuela despite having been born without her left arm.

The canonization of these saints comes after Leo canonized the “first millennial saint,” Carlo Acutis, dubbing him as “God’s influencer.”

Mass Exodus Rattles the Church of England As Millions Depart

The Church of England is experiencing a major breakup within its denomination.

The Global Fellowship of Confessing Anglicans, or GAFCON, released a statement about their departure from the wider Anglican Church. This division comes as an opposition to the new Archbishop of Canterbury, Dame Sarah Mullally, who became the first female Archbishop of the denomination, who also holds a liberal theology especially in regards to gender and sexuality.

In the statement, Chairman of the GAFCON Primates Council, Rev. Dr. Laurent Mbanda wrote:

1. We declare that the Anglican Communion will be reordered, with only one foundation of communion, namely the Holy Bible, "translated, read, preached, taught and obeyed in its plain and canonical sense, respectful of the church's historic and consensual reading..."

2. We reject the so-called Instruments of Communion, namely the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lambeth Conference, the Anglican Consultative Council (ACC), and the Primates Meeting, which have failed to uphold the doctrine and discipline of the Anglican Communion.

3. We cannot continue to have communion with those who advocate the revisionist agenda, which has abandoned the inerrant word of God as the final authority and overturned Resolution , of the 1998 Lambeth Conference.

Due to these conditions, Mbanda expressed that GAFCON has now "re-ordered the Anglican Communion," and are now to go by the Global Anglican Communion.

Provinces of the Global Anglican Communion shall not participate in meetings called by the Archbishop of Canterbury, including the ACC, and shall not make any monetary contribution to the ACC, nor receive any monetary contribution from the ACC or its networks.

Toward the end of Mbanda's statement, he says that they have "not left the Anglican Communion," but rather that they "are the Anglican Communion."

This decision comes as the Anglican Church continues to creep closer toward liberalism. As Premier Christian News noted, the latest Archbishop of Wales elected this year was Rev. Cherry Vann who identifies as LGBTQ and is openly in a same-sex relationship.

As we move further into the end times, we will continue to see the wheat separate from the chaff, true believers committed to the Scriptures moving away from those who Christian in name only.

This latest split, which as media outlet Protestia notes, affects almost 40 million people, is one example of those who proclaim Jesus as Lord exalting His name above the politics and culture of this world.
