

'Nothing But a Miracle': Cops Save Unconscious Man From Burning Car With Seconds to Spare

Police officers in New Jersey recently rescued a man from a burning car in a harrowing ordeal some are calling "a miracle."

Dashcam and bodycam video captured the moment police approached a burning car on Nov. 9, just before it was totally enveloped in flames.

The driver, Safwan Islam, 26, reportedly had a medical incident that led the car to crash into a tree. After the accident, the iPhone's "Call After Severe Crash" feature automatically alerted 911 and cops then saved his life, WABC-TV reported.

Fortunately, South Brunswick Police Officers Yash Shroff and Thomas Sites arrived on the scene and immediately took action.

They broke a window after seeing Islam unconscious and bleeding inside the vehicle. It quickly became apparent the situation was serious, as the car began to smoke.

With just seconds to spare, the officers saved Islam. They somehow were able to drag him away from the vehicle – and just in time, as it suddenly burst into flames.

Street Preacher's Arrest in Mississippi Sparks Supreme Court Case on Free Speech Rights

The arrest of a Mississippi street preacher outside a concert venue has led to a case now before the U.S. Supreme Court. The outcome could shape how citizens challenge local laws they say infringe on constitutional rights.

Gabriel Olivier, an evangelical street preacher, argues that a Brandon, Mississippi, ordinance barring him from certain public property violated his religious liberty and freedom of speech. After lower courts prevented him from challenging the law, the Supreme Court agreed to take up a procedural question that could set an important precedent for future First Amendment disputes.

At the Brandon Amphitheater, where concerts routinely attract large crowds, Olivier says he sees an opportunity to share his faith. "I love to tell people about Jesus," Olivier said.

He added that he comes to the venue to "hand out gospel tracts to people, tell them about the message of Christ as they are walking to the concert."

City officials said they received complaints that Olivier spoke too loudly and shouted insults at passersby. They enforced a local ordinance requiring him to stay inside a designated protest zone outside the amphitheater. When Olivier returned to the main walkway, he was cited and fined and received a suspended ten-day jail sentence.

Nate Kellum of First Liberty Institute, which represents Olivier, said the city misapplied its own rules.

'Eternal Wall of Answered Prayer' Now Under Construction for Testimonies of Divine Intervention

Order Jonathan Cahn's New Book, "The Avatar" on !

Youssef, a native Egyptian who lived in Lebanon, has led The Church of The Apostles for nearly 40 years—from its first meeting of 28 adults in 1987 to today, with a thriving congregation of more than 3,000 members, according to a statement from the ministry.

The church was founded with the goal of "reaching the lost and equipping the saints." It later became the launching pad for Leading The Way's global ministry, which now uses multiple media platforms to reach millions with Youssef's Biblical teaching.

Youseff says his 41-year-old son Jonathan has been preparing to pastor the thriving Apostles congregation.

"Now that God has raised up my son Jonathan to lead The Church of The Apostles for its next stage of growth, I will be devoting my full attention to Leading The Way," said Youssef.

"I am deeply thankful to the Lord and know that the best is yet to come. I am also deeply grateful to The Church of The Apostles' leadership for inviting me to remain in the church as the 'Founding Rector Emeritus' – thus helping to ensure continuity," he continued.

Youssef says he has plans to "take as many people to heaven with me as possible,” and part of that vision includes expanding Leading The Way’s digital ministry, taking his nationwide AWAKE America prayer movement to new cities, launching the next wave of Finding True Peace evangelistic commercials, and hosting high-impact evangelistic events across the Middle East.

“We don’t know how long the door is going to remain open to proclaim the Gospel in the places where we are ministering. So, I’m really putting my foot on the accelerator now. We would love to walk through those open doors as long as God keeps them open. Because if we go to sleep, we will have missed a great opportunity,” Youssef declared.
