

Mario Murillo's 2025 Prophetic Warning: The Time to Stand Is Now

As the political and spiritual battle for America intensifies, evangelist Mario Murillo's 2025 prophetic word serves as both a warning and a rallying cry for Christians. There are many who view Donald Trump's reelection as a reprieve from the Lord, Murillo's insights remind us that God's hand is moving powerfully—but He is also calling His people to stand boldly against the darkness encroaching on our nation.

Murillo's prophecy begins with a clear declaration: "We are entering the year of decision." He explains that the stakes have never been higher. "America stands at a crossroads. The church must rise and become the voice of righteousness that God intended." With Trump's landslide victory in 2024, many believers see a clear sign that God is giving our nation a second chance to fulfill its destiny. But this is no time for complacency.

5 Critical Points From Murillo's Prophetic Word

The resignation announcement of Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau sent shockwaves through political circles, but for others, it was a confirmation of what they had seen coming. Among them is Chris Reed, who posted a video following the announcement, asserting that the Lord had shown him Trudeau's departure months in advance.

In his video, Reed referenced a dream from June 8, 2024, where he saw Trudeau's leadership come to an end. "Justin Trudeau, the Canadian prime minister, is ousted," Reed stated, adding that the vision came to him seven or eight months earlier. "I want us to pray for Justin Trudeau because I believe he is under the power of the globalist mindset. God wants to save Justin Trudeau." Reed's message was not one of condemnation but a call for intercession, urging fellow Christians to pray for Trudeau's salvation and revival in Canada's future.

For Reed, what is happening in Canada transcends mere politics; it is deeply spiritual. He spoke of a coming awakening, not just a political shift. "Pray for Canada because Canada, I believe, is also going to see an awakening happening," Reed said. He described his vision of Canada turning to God and experiencing a revival that would go beyond reformation or revolution to bring about a complete transformation. According to Reed, this spiritual revival is tied to God's plans for nations, including America.

In his video, Reed drew connections between globalism and the prophetic warnings found in Scripture. He described globalism as a foundational element of what he called the "beast system," emphasizing that the one-world government's implementation relies on nations losing their sovereignty and national identity. "That's why they hate Trump so much," Reed stated. "He's standing in the way of the beast system." Reed argued that Trump's presidency represents a revival of national confidence, which serves as a barrier against the spread of globalist ideology. Leaders like Trudeau, he suggested, have facilitated the rise of globalism, making their political downfall significant in the spiritual battle for nations.

Reed's message culminates in a call for Christians to engage in spiritual warfare through prayer. "I'm giving the intercessors content to pray for," he said, urging believers to intercede for Canada and America. Reed's vision of revival is not limited to political change but includes an outpouring of the Holy Spirit across nations. He emphasized the necessity of prayer to see these transformations take place.

As Canada's political landscape shifts and spiritual implications unfold, Reed's prophetic insights remind believers of the importance of prayer and discernment in these critical times. For Christians, the need to stand firm in faith and intercede for awakening that transcends borders, bringing revival to Canada, America and beyond, has never been greater.

Pastor Troy Brewer Shares Prophetic Vision for 2025: A

Year of Contrasts

Tony Merkel, host of “The Confessionals” podcast, recently shared a cautionary spiritual perspective in an interview with Charisma Media. His personal experiences on the spiritual dangers of hunting for portals and investigating the occult serve as a sobering reminder of the risks inherent in engaging with the demonic realm.

Merkel, who described his initial fascination with portals as “unhealthy,” opened up about the spiritual warfare he has faced as a result of his explorations.

“Doing this stuff definitely gets a target on your back,” Merkel said, likening the experience to being an active player in a game. “If you’re a Christian and you’re just riding the bench, nobody’s going to guard you. But as soon as you start becoming a problem, that’s when the opponent pays attention to you.”

This acknowledgment of demonic attack exposes a spiritual reality often overlooked: engaging with supernatural topics, even out of curiosity, can attract unwelcome attention in the spiritual realm. Merkel’s experiences align with biblical warnings about avoiding practices rooted in the occult. Deuteronomy 18:10-12 states, “There must not be found among you anyone who makes his son or his daughter pass through the fire, or who uses divination, or an observer of times, or an enchanter, or a witch, or a charmer, or a consulter with familiar spirits, or a wizard, or a necromancer. For all that do these things are an abomination to the Lord.”

Merkel admitted that his obsession with portals would eventually lead him down a spiritually dangerous path.

Reflecting on his conversation with Dr. Laura Sanger, he shared, “She walked away from the interview thinking I had an unhealthy interest in the topic of portals. And I confirmed to her, ‘You’re absolutely right. I did.’” Merkel later realized he had overstepped spiritual boundaries, saying, “I felt like God gave me a lot to be trusted with, and I felt like I abused that at certain points.”

One particularly unsettling encounter involved visiting a property in Kentucky where a glowing portal had reportedly been photographed. “Hunting for portals—not a good idea,” Merkel warns. “It’s a doorway to another realm, and things go in and out of that. Trying to hunt down the doorway where things are coming in and out of...not a good idea.”

Merkel’s experiences with the supernatural reflect a broader biblical truth. The spiritual realm is real, and engaging with it outside of God’s guidance can have severe consequences. Ephesians 6:12 reminds us, “For our fight is not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, and against spiritual forces of evil in the heavenly places.”

Merkel also addressed the phenomenon of so-called “Dog Man” or upright walking canines, which he believes could be linked to dark rituals, ancient demonic entities or even government experiments. “We wonder if what people are seeing are projections during rituals,” he said. Despite the intrigue, Merkel’s approach remains grounded in faith. “We don’t need to conjure things. We just go out into the woods and exist in these environments to see what happens around us.”

His team’s prayerful approach—praying before, during and after investigations—is a stark contrast to the dangerous practices of seeking out the occult. Yet Merkel's journey has not been without missteps. "I've done things I've regretted over the years," he admitted. "I've walked in ignorance, thinking God will protect me."

Humility and willingness to learn from mistakes offer through Merkel's story a cautionary tale for those tempted to explore the supernatural without recognizing the spiritual risks. As Merkel put it, "When God calls you to do something, I firmly believe He's going to protect you and guide you through it. But that doesn't mean you should test the boundaries."

The Bible consistently warns against engaging with the occult, emphasizing the need for discernment and reliance on God's protection. Merkel's reflections echo these warnings, urging believers to avoid practices and pursuits that could lead to spiritual harm. His journey highlights the importance of staying within the boundaries of God's calling and resisting the temptation to delve into realms best left unexplored.

Greg Locke: A Biblical Blueprint for Your Best Year

Yet

In a world that often feels chaotic and uncertain, Pastor Todd Mullins, senior pastor of Christ Fellowship Church in Palm Beach Gardens, Florida, delivered a timely message titled “This is Your Year,” urging believers to embrace God’s purpose and promises with renewed faith and boldness. Mullins explains that 2025 is not just another year but a God-appointed season for breakthrough and transformation.

“This is your year to step into all that God has for you,” Mullins declared to the congregation. “God’s plans for your life haven’t changed, even if your circumstances have. You need to hold onto His promises and step out in faith.”

Drawing inspiration from the story of Joshua leading the Israelites into the Promised Land, Mullins emphasized the importance of taking action. “God told Joshua, ‘Be strong and courageous. Do not be afraid; do not be discouraged, for the Lord your God will be with you wherever you go’ (Josh. 1:9). That promise is not just for Joshua; it’s for you too. God’s presence is with you as you face the challenges ahead.”

Mullins highlighted three key steps to make 2025 a year of spiritual and personal growth:

1. Claim God’s Promises: “There are over 7,000 promises in the Bible,” Mullins reminded his audience. “But a promise is only as powerful as your willingness to believe it and act on it. Are you willing to take God at His word this year?”

2. Take Bold Steps of Faith: Reflecting on the Israelites crossing the Jordan River, Mullins explained, “The waters didn’t part until the priests stepped into the river. Some of you are waiting for the waters to part, but God is waiting for you to take the first step.”

3. Rely on God’s Strength: “Life’s challenges can feel overwhelming, but remember what Paul wrote in Philippians 4:13: ‘I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me.’ Your strength comes from Him, not your own abilities.”

The sermon also touched on the power of surrendering our will to God. “Sometimes, we’re holding onto things that keep us from stepping into God’s best,” Mullins said. “This is your year to let go of fear, doubt and anything that’s holding you back.”

Pastor Mullins closed his message with an invitation for Christians to take some time for personal reflection and commitment. “What if this year wasn’t just about surviving but thriving? What if you decided to trust God fully, to walk by faith and to embrace the future He has for you? This is your year to see His faithfulness like never before.”

Christians around the world can be inspired by this call to action and reassured by the reminder of God’s unwavering presence. For those yearning for renewal and purpose, it is essential that we remember God’s promises are steadfast, and this year could indeed be the year of transformation if we dare to believe and take that first step of faith.

Gospel Artist Kirk Franklin Addresses Backlash, Offers Apology

As we step into 2025, Rick Renner of Renner Ministries delivers a prophetic word brimming with both challenge and hope. He speaks to the body of Christ with clarity, urging us to brace for a season of intense warfare but also to rise in faith, equipped with God's promises.

Renner begins with a reminder of the apostle Paul's instruction to Timothy in 1 Timothy 1:18: "Remember the prophecies which went before on thee, that thou by them mightest wage a good warfare." He emphasizes that prophetic words are tools for spiritual battle, declaring, "God has given you everything you need to walk in victory in 2025."

A Season of Intense Warfare

Renner's word warns of battles on three key fronts: economic, political and spiritual. He describes these challenges but assures us that we can navigate them with God's help.

- Economic Battles:

Renner foresees economic shakings in various parts of the world and calls believers to prepare by continuing to sow seeds of generosity. He cites Ecclesiastes 11:6, saying, "Sow your seed right now and don't stop. You do not know precisely what the future holds economically, but if you keep sowing, it means you'll be in good shape regardless of what happens."

▪ Political Battles:

Highlighting the current climate of political incivility, Renner likens it to Jesus' words in Matthew 24:7, describing "kingdom rising against kingdom." He notes, "The public behavior of politicians and political parties has departed from the days of respectful disagreement into an ugly mess of intolerance and mudslinging."

▪ Spiritual Battles:

The church faces division, with some embracing compromise while others hold fast to biblical truths. Renner foresees three types of churches emerging:

1. A church that holds to the truth and experiences the power of the Holy Spirit.
2. A compromising church that seeks to avoid conflict.
3. A lukewarm church, devoid of God's power and leaving Christ outside its doors.

Renner warns, "Unless a major revival occurs, this rift will only grow deeper and wider."

Battening Down the Hatches

Renner uses the imagery of preparing for a storm, urging believers to be mentally and spiritually ready. He reminds us that we are not alone, saying, "With the grace of God, the power of the Holy Spirit, the promises of God's Word and the weaponry He has given, we can move forward step by step."

Renner encourages us to rely on these resources, assuring us that “God will triumphantly lead His people forward and carry out His plans for this end-time age.”

Rejoice, Not Fear

In a world filled with uncertainty, Renner challenges us to choose joy over fear. “This is not a time to fear, moan, or cry, but a time to rejoice, for God is strategically at work even in ways you do not see,” he says.

Citing Psalm 2:4, Renner reminds us that God laughs at the plans of those who oppose Him, declaring, “The one who sits in the heavens laughs... and He will ultimately have them in derision.”

Faith That Overcomes

Renner leaves us with an empowering message rooted in 1 John 5:4: “This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.” He explains that our faith enables us to rise above every challenge, likening it to Noah’s ark floating on waters that destroyed the world.

He urges believers to stand firm on biblical truth, warning that without it, the church risks becoming “a spiritually weak humanitarian organization with a Christian philosophy that lacks the power of God.” But for those who remain steadfast, Renner prophesies “a visitation of God’s glory.”

The Call to Stand Firm

As we navigate 2025, Renner’s word is both a warning and a rallying cry. The battles ahead are real, but so is God’s provision. “The Lord is a man of war,” Renner proclaims. “He knows exactly how to strategize against and overcome every assault against His people and His truth.”

Now is the time to prepare, to rejoice and to walk in the victory God has promised. By faith, we can overcome.

Unlocking the Language of Heaven: The Mystery of Angelic Tongues

In a recent teaching, evangelist Perry Stone delved into a fascinating topic in the Bible—the “tongue of angels” mentioned in 1 Corinthians 13:1.

“Though I speak with the tongues of men and of angels and have not love, I am a sounding brass or a tinkling cymbal,” Stone quotes, pointing to the apostle Paul’s declaration. According to Stone, this verse opens a line of discussion not only on the necessity of love but also on the spiritual dimensions of language.

A Heavenly Language Rooted in Scripture

Stone contextualizes his teaching by revisiting the origins of language as portrayed in the Bible. From Adam and Eve’s unbroken communication with God to the singular language spoken before the Tower of Babel, he highlights the possibility of a heavenly tongue preserved through history. “Paul said in Acts, ‘I heard the Lord speak to me out of Heaven in the Hebrew tongue.’ This raises the question: Is there a form of Hebrew or a divine language spoken in heaven?” Stone asks.

While acknowledging scholarly debates, Stone points to the role of the Holy Spirit in bridging earthly and heavenly communication. Near-death experiences and spiritual encounters often reveal languages understood supernaturally, further supporting this idea.

Practical Wisdom and Preparedness

Jacobs advises Christians to take practical steps in uncertain times. “If you feel like you should have emergency supplies... this is just a word of wisdom, not fear,” she says, emphasizing faith over fear. “Mike and I have emergency water, emergency flashlights... It’s just wisdom.” She also highlights the possibility of local economic shifts, such as barter systems and gold- or silver-backed currencies in small cities. “I know I heard that 28 states are looking into being on the silver and gold backup current deposits as opposed to the fiat or paperless. I think those are great ideas.”

Praying Against War and Pandemic

Jacobs reveals a long-standing prophetic insight: “For about 15 years, we’ve known Satan wanted to use a regional war to start a world war.” She calls for sustained prayer against global conflict and for the mitigation of severe pandemics. “What about the word about the pandemic coming with millions of people dying?” she asks. “I believe God is not willing that any should perish... We want to pray to stop that pandemic.”

Jacobs also reflects on past intercessory efforts during the COVID-19 crisis: “A lot of people criticized us because we had meetings to try to stop COVID, and it didn't completely stop it. But I believe it does mitigate, especially regionally, against severe pandemics."

Personal Encouragement for a Frustrated Season

In a poignant moment, Jacobs shares a vision of individuals struggling with closed doors. "You are in a season where you feel frustrated because you can't seem to just get that door open," she says. "But on the other side of the door, God is moving things around... Your prayers are causing all of these things to happen." She encourages believers: "Will you trust [God] and not lean to your own understanding?"

A Call to Action

Jacobs finalizes her message with a rallying cry for prayer. "Let's not get into fear; let's pray and intercede," she urges. Her words echo 2 Chronicles 7:14, reminding believers that God's promise to heal the land hinges on humble, repentant prayer. "In judgment, remember mercy. We do have a merciful God."

This prophetic word is both a sobering warning and a spur to activity. It challenges Christians to rise above worldly fear, align with the purposes of God and pray with fervency for the economic, spiritual and global stability of our time. As Jacobs declares, "When you knocked, when you prayed, [God is] going to open a door that no man can shut."
