

NFL Players Voice Disapproval of Controversial Olympic Opening Ceremony

While the NFL corporate structure has welcomed left-wing politics into the organization with open arms, many of the players continue to stand up for God and His biblical values.

This is especially the case when the Olympic Opening Ceremony, dubbed by many to be a demonic perversion, offended Christians and non-Christians alike around the world.

Kansas City Chiefs placekicker Harrison Butker, known for speaking up for traditional, biblical values, was having none of it and confronted the sexually perverse performance with Scripture.

He posted to social media with a video of the event saying:

“Be not deceived, God is not mocked. For what things a man shall sow, those also shall he reap. For he that soweth in his flesh, of the flesh also shall reap corruption. But he that soweth in the spirit, of the spirit shall reap life everlasting.”

Galatians 6:7-8

Butker was joined by former quarterback Luke McCown, who refused to repost the Olympic “filth” and condemned the portrayal of Jesus the risen Lord in a lengthy social media post:

Won't repost the filth from the Olympics..

Disappointed but not sure why it's a part of the event..

But know this..

There was a last supper that led to an empty tomb.

A tomb that for three days held the body of the God-man Jesus who just prior to the tomb, indeed had a last supper with his disciples before he willingly climbed on a cross...

carrying with him, in a selfless act of grace, all the sins of all the world, past, present and future sins...

and bore the wrath and judgement of a righteous and holy God so that we..

me, you, them, all of us.. would no longer be bound by the sins that entangle us..

but be set free from its grip on our minds, hearts, bodies and souls.. even free from the grip of death itself.

There was a last supper, that led to a blood covered cross, that led to an empty tomb. Proclaiming victory over sin, death, and hell.

So that we might be invited to an eternal banquet!

The last supper led to the 1st empty tomb.

A victory won. Thank you Jesus for the last supper.

Go read about in the Bible starting in Matthew 26:17.

While the brains behind the ceremony have tried to deflect any wrongdoing as an act of unity and love, along with the Olympic committee's apology that wasn't really an apology, few are taking the bait and instead are calling out the atrocious performance for what it was: anti-God.

Heartbreak as Gospel Hall of Fame Quartet Faces Tragic Loss

Tragedy struck as three members of the award-winning gospel quartet The Nelons were killed in a plane crash.

The victims included Jason Clark and his wife, Kelly Nelon Clark, along with their daughter, Amber Kistler, and her husband, Nathan Kistler. Also on board were Melodi Hodges, pilot Larry Haynie, and his wife, Melissa. There were no survivors. The group was en route to the Gaither Homecoming Cruise to Alaska when the crash occurred.

The youngest daughter of the Clarks, Autumn Nelon Streetman, released a statement following the news of the crash.

"As many of you have heard by now, my father and mother, Jason and Kelly Nelon Clark, along with my sister, Amber, and brother-in-law, Nathan, as well as our dear friends Melodi Hodges, Larry and Melissa Haynie, were involved in a tragic plane crash on Friday," she said. "Thank you for the prayers that have been extended already to me, my husband, Jamie, and our soon-to-be-born baby boy, as well as Jason's parents, Dan and Linda Clark. We appreciate your continued prayers, love and support as we navigate the coming days."

As reported by Fox News, "The crash occurred about 1 p.m. in Campbell County, Wyoming, north of Gillette and about 250 miles north of Cheyenne, according to a statement from Campbell County spokesperson Leslie Perkins."

Ancient Fort Found in

Jerusalem, Unraveling 3,000-Year-Old Enigma

Archaeologists have unearthed a massive fortification in Jerusalem, believed to have protected the city's biblical kings some 3,000 years ago. This discovery, hailed as "monumental" and "dramatic," resolves a long-standing mystery regarding the City of David's ancient defenses.

The excavation, ongoing since 2007 near the Givati Parking Lot—the largest active archaeological site in Jerusalem—has revealed a variety of historical layers, spanning from the Middle Ages back to ancient times. The latest find is a remnant of a moat that once bisected the City of David, separating the royal palace and Temple Mount from the rest of the city, including the Ophel.

This fortification corresponds with the city's division mentioned in the Bible as Ophel and Millo. A biblical reference of the discovery can be found in 1 Kings 11:27, where it is stated, "And this was the cause that he lifted up his hand against the king: Solomon built Millo, and repaired the breaches of the City of David his father." The identification of this moat, which features sheer, unclimbable cliffs on both sides, marks the resolution of a 150-year-old archaeological puzzle concerning Jerusalem's northern defenses.

The origins of the moat remain unclear, but it is evident that it was utilized during the time when Jerusalem served as the capital of the Kingdom of Judah, starting nearly 3,000 years ago. Tel Aviv University's Professor Yuval Gadot and Dr. Yiftach Shalu from the Israel Antiquities Authority note that during this period, the moat delineated the city's expansion to the south, where the general populace resided, from the Acropolis—the upper city, which housed the palace and temple on the Temple Mount.

The moat's discovery, which spans at least 70 meters from west to east, has prompted a reexamination of past excavation reports, particularly those by British archaeologist Kathleen Kenyon in the 1960s. This discovery also rekindles discussions about biblical terms related to Jerusalem's topography, specifically Ophel and Millo.

Eli Escusido, Director of the Israel Antiquities Authority, expressed his awe at the discovery, noting that the excavations in the City of David continue to reveal new insights into biblical literature. "When you stand at the bottom of this giant excavation, surrounded by enormous hewn walls, it is impossible not to be filled with wonder and appreciation for those ancient people who, about 3,800 years ago, literally moved mountains and hills," he remarked.

The continuous uncovering of archaeological treasures in Jerusalem showcases the historical and spiritual significance of Israel and Jerusalem as the Jewish homeland. As Psalm 122:3-4 states, "Jerusalem is built as a city that is designed for a multitude, where the tribes go up, the tribes of the Lord, as a decree of Israel, to give thanks unto the name of the Lord."

Glenn Beck Warns of Chaos for Kamala Harris at the DNC

Narcissism can be challenging to identify, especially when cloaked in Christian language and behaviors.

Kris Reece, a Christian life coach and author, recently shared insights into identifying “Christian narcissists,” individuals who use their faith to manipulate and control others. In one of her recent videos, Reece outlines five key traits to watch for, offering guidance rooted in biblical teachings.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

1. Lack of True Emotional Intimacy

Reece warns that Christian narcissists struggle with genuine emotional connections. “Trying to connect emotionally with a narcissist is like watering a plastic plant; no matter how much you pour, it’ll never grow,” she says. This mirrors the Bible’s call for genuine love, as seen in Romans 12:9, “Love must be sincere. Hate what is evil; cling to what is good.”

2. Defensive and Aggressive Responses to Criticism

According to Reece, these individuals react negatively to any form of feedback. “You could think that you’re offering constructive feedback to someone who appreciates your advice, but in reality, you’re dealing with a narcissist who perceives anything and everything as an attack,” she explains. In contrast, Proverbs 12:1 emphasizes the value of correction: “Whoever loves discipline loves knowledge, but whoever hates correction is stupid.”

3. Excessive Pride and Self-Focus

Christian narcissists often dominate conversations and seek constant admiration. Reece notes, “Conversations with them will always be filled with ‘me’s and ‘I’s.” This behavior contradicts Philippians 2:3, which advises, “Do nothing out of selfish ambition or vain conceit. Rather, in humility value others above yourselves.”

4. Manipulative Use of Scripture

Reece cautions against those who misuse Scripture for personal gain. “Even the devil knows Scripture, how they use it,” she advises. This warning aligns with 2 Timothy 3:5, which describes individuals who have “a form of godliness but denying its power.”

5. Instability and Inconsistency

Reece also highlights the unpredictable nature of Christian narcissists. “Their attitude, mood, and behavior can change like the wind,” she says, leaving others feeling off-balance. James 1:8 warns against such instability: “A double-minded man is unstable in all his ways.”

For those navigating relationships with potential Christian narcissists, Reece’s insights provide valuable guidance. By recognizing these traits and seeking relationships based on genuine, biblical love, believers can protect their hearts and spiritual well-being.

Was A Kamala Harris Presidency Foretold by an 81-Year-Old Prophecy?

In a recent video on his YouTube channel, evangelist Perry Stone presented a prophetic message drawing parallels between former President Donald Trump and the biblical figure King Nebuchadnezzar.

Stone claims that Trump's experiences and potential future mirror the ancient king's journey, emphasizing God's divine plan at work.

The key comparison revolves around Nebuchadnezzar's dream of a great tree that was cut down but a stump was left, symbolizing his temporary downfall and eventual restoration. Stone suggests that Trump's election loss and subsequent legal challenges represent a similar period of humbling. "My prediction was this: that the Lord had allowed President Trump to be removed, and there was going to be a great humbling of him, as there was with Nebuchadnezzar," Stone explains.

Stone highlighted the parallels between the two leaders. Nebuchadnezzar, known for his grand empire and powerful rule, surrounded himself with strong Jewish advisors, much like Trump's close relationship with his Jewish son-in-law, Jared Kushner. "Both men built an empire before becoming president... Jared Kushner is Jewish and sat with Trump during closed-door meetings as an advisor," Stone notes.

According to Stone, the seven years Nebuchadnezzar spent in exile are echoed in Trump's numerous legal battles. "If you begin to think about all of the legal problems that he's had, you can count seven of them," he pointed out. This period of trials is seen as a test designed to bring Trump to a state of humility before a potential return to power.

Stone is confident that Trump's experiences will lead to a spiritual transformation in the former president, as well as a humbling before God not least after surviving the assassination attempt July 13. "He will be a much more humbled man and a man that understands God preserved me for a purpose," he asserted. Stone continues with a direct message to Trump, urging him to "stay very humble before the almighty God but stay strong before men.

"Never, never give up what God Himself has put in your heart, and understand that there was a purpose and a reason that your life was spared."

Kimberly Cheatle Resigns as Secret Service Director

It took 10 days before the head of the Secret Service, Kimberly Cheatle, made the decision to resign from her position over what some are calling the greatest lapse in Secret Service history.

Following her grilling from congressional members in front of the House Oversight Committee over the failures that led to former President Donald Trump being a fraction of an inch from being killed, Cheatle was confronted with bi-partisan support for her removal.

Democratic Rep. Ro Khanna (CA) called for her resignation during the congressional hearing while Rep. Nancy Mace (R-SC) introduced a “privileged motion to impeach Secret Service Director Kim Cheatle.”

Cheatle appears to have been left with no other option as she no longer had the backing of the Democratic party.

The Biden administration released a statement shortly after Cheatle’s resignation announcement.

There are other voices, such as investigative journalist and perhaps Donald Trump’s most loyal supporter Laura Loomer, who believes criminal charges should be filed against Cheatle due to her belief that the attempted assassination of Donald Trump was a set up.

“Resigning isn’t enough. Kim Cheatle needs to be criminally charged. She is an accessory to attempted murder and an accessory to murder. They let Trump take the stage at his rally while knowing about the shooter,” Loomer wrote on X.

In this time of chaos, there is only one source of hope for the nation and that is in Jesus Christ. The lies and deceptions of the days we live in are never ending, but we can equip ourselves appropriately to deal with such falsehood by digging deep into the Word of God and engaging in the spiritual warfare necessary to save America from the grasp of evil.
