

Prophetic Vision Sparking Concerns for Super Bowl in Las Vegas

Even in the midst of literal storms, God is there with us as trials and tribulation come our way.

He also sets in place ministries to help those affected by life's hardships, such as the Dream Center in Los Angeles, California.

Answering the call Jesus put forth, the Dream Center, helmed by founder Matthew Barnett, has opened its doors and hit the streets to assist those being affected by the threatening weather pattern and lack proper housing.

Posting to X (formerly Twitter), Barnett sounded the alarm about the approaching weather, and that the Dream Center had emergency housing on standby for those who needed it.

The @LADreamCenter is providing emergency housing for anyone in need of shelter as the rain and hurricane force winds about to land in a few hours.

According to the National Weather Service, the two-day period from Feb. 4 to Feb. 5 became the third wettest in the history of Los Angeles. The last time such a deluge occurred was on Jan. 25 and Jan. 26, 1956, as reported by the NWS.

Sunday stood out as the wettest February day in nearly 110 years for Los Angeles, making it the third wettest day overall since records began in 1877.

Hundreds of families gathered at a local library in Missouri for a BRAVE Books story hour, where professional surfer Bethany Hamilton and former University of Kentucky swimmer Riley Gaines shared their inspiring stories of overcoming obstacles in the face of transgender athletes competing in women's sports.

As Gaines and Hamilton recounted their athletic experiences, the event was marred by the presence of transgender activists draped in pride flags and themed clothing, causing disturbances from the crowd. One activist went to the extreme, dressing as a shark to mock Hamilton, who famously survived a shark attack in 2003.

CEO of BRAVE Books, Trent Talbot, expressed dismay at the disruptive behavior, stating, "The activist who showed up dressed as a shark to target Bethany Hamilton is a terrible person. Once again, those who claim they are most tolerant turn out to be the most callous."

The activists, who had made a "call to action" on social media urging supporters to "wear inclusive shirts" and to contact the library to cancel the event, were condemned for their disruptive tactics.

Despite the disruptions, Riley Gaines found inspiration in the support shown by a long line of young girls and swimmers who attended the story hour. "I'm so grateful for the people of Missouri who came out to the story hour. The presence of a group of confused people dressed as a shark and clothed in pride did nothing to stop hundreds of families and young girls from taking in messages of truth and faith at our BRAVE Books story hour," Gaines said.

How messed up is this? This protester brought a shark stuffed animal to mock Bethany Hamilton who lost her arm to a shark.

Miserable, insufferable people. But oh so "tolerant"

– Riley Gaines (@Riley_Gaines_) February 6, 2024

The Library Center event featured book readings of the new children's books "Happy No Snakes Day" by Gaines and "Surfing Past Fear" by Hamilton. Both books, published by the conservative Christian book publisher BRAVE Books, advocate standing up for truth despite fear and overcoming obstacles to achieve big dreams.

During the event, Gaines presented Hamilton with the Riley Gaines Center's 2023 "True Woman of the Year" award. Special attendees included Missouri Secretary of State John "Jay" Ashcroft and former Division I collegiate swimmer Valentina Gomez.

Hamilton, a survivor of a shark attack, recently criticized transgender athletes in women's sports, stating on social media, "Male-bodied athletes should not be competing in female sports. Period."

Gaines, who famously competed with transgender athlete Lia Thomas in the 2022 NCAA Championships, has become an outspoken defender of maintaining the integrity of women's sports. Reflecting on the disruption caused by activists, she said, "This is the tactic they use time and time again. They want so desperately to mock, intimidate and threaten those they don't agree with into silence, but this was a step too far."

Despite the challenges, Gaines concluded, "I have no words to describe how messed up it is to directly mock Bethany Hamilton and her traumatic experience that cost her arm by bringing a shark to a children's story hour. Dare I call this protester an ableist?" She emphasized the importance of sharing stories at the BRAVE Books story hour, noting, "They needed to hear the stories read even more than the kids."

Rome and America: The Decline of Empires

A recent police sting operation has exposed a disturbing sex-for-pay operation at the Ocean Spa Massage Parlor in San Diego, following numerous complaints from neighboring businesses and residents.

The complaints ranged from "sexual noises" disrupting a church service to reports of people engaging in sexual activities in parked cars near the parlor. The gravity of the situation prompted the San Diego Police Department to launch an extensive investigation, leading to shocking revelations.

According to CBS8, a youth group had previously held their Bible studies next to the parlor.

San Diego Police Chief Nisleit emphasized the seriousness of addressing neighborhood concerns, stating, "Our Vice Unit's thorough investigation into the operation at businesses like Ocean Spa brings peace and civility back to San Diego neighborhoods."

The investigation resulted in four individuals arrested for prostitution, and legal action is being taken to shut down the parlor, with the City Attorney's Office seeking over $100,000 in civil penalties and reimbursement for attorney fees and law enforcement costs.

City Attorney Mara Elliott asserted, "The owners of Ocean Spa have been masquerading as a legitimate business for far too long. Ocean Spa is a sex shop—not a massage parlor—and it has no place in our community or anywhere else."

Amid the ongoing battle against illicit activities, concerns have been raised about the impact of recent legislative changes in California. Governor Gavin Newsom signed Senate Bill 357 in July 2022, repealing a law that banned loitering with the intent to engage in prostitution. Although it was framed that it would be protecting vulnerable communities, the new law has faced criticism for instead emboldening sex workers and their handlers.

A local San Diego business owner, speaking anonymously to Fox News Digital, highlighted the perceived consequences of SB 357, stating, "It's always been pretty common with massage parlors to offer more than massages, but with [SB] 357 the whole industry is emboldened because they know nothing will happen."

Residents and business owners are grappling with the fallout, with reports of prostitutes becoming more confrontational, even threatening business owners and disrupting public spaces. The situation extends beyond San Diego, with other areas in California witnessing a surge in street-level prostitution and related challenges.

The unsettling rise of lawlessness in the United States, exemplified by incidents such as the sex-for-pay operation in San Diego, highlights the correlation between societal decay and a turning away from God. As the fabric of moral values seems to unravel, parallels can be drawn to biblical wisdom that emphasizes the consequences of forsaking God's guidance and righteousness. The book of Judges vividly illustrates a cycle of disobedience, moral decline and societal chaos when Israel turned away from God's commands. The recurring phrase "everyone did what was right in his own eyes" (Judg. 17:6) echoes the contemporary narrative of a society drifting towards self-indulgence and moral relativism.

Jonathan Cahn Reveals Reality

of Today's Spiritual Warfare to World Leaders

Many people today are unaware of the significance of the red heifer in both Judaism and Christianity. This symbol of purification is deeply rooted in Scripture, including in the book of Numbers (Num. 19:2-10) where God instructs Moses and Aaron about the ritual purification involving a red heifer.

That is why the work of American farmer Byron Stinson, an evangelical Christian from Texas, and Rabbi Ytshak Mamo, an official from the Temple Institute in Jerusalem, Israel, is so important.

Speaking at the 2024 National Gathering for Prayer & Repentance in Washington D.C., the two shared the importance of the red heifer and the ceremony that must take place for ritual sacrifice and worship to resume in the eventual Third Temple.

Finding these unique cattle was no small feat, but once Stinson and Mamo formulated their plan to send the red heifers to Israel, they need to acquire a unique license to do so.

Discussing this symbol of great importance to the Jewish and Christian communities, Rabbi Mamo explained that the heifer must be in its third year of life to be used in the ceremony, and that time is swiftly drawing near.

"If there is any [mathematicians] here, so you can understand that we are very close to the third year of these cows," reveals Mamo. "Which means that with the help of God, we will get permission from God and from the people to make the ceremony. And then we can be pure.”

The ashes of the red heifer are used as a unique purifying agent demanded by the Lord, essential for cleansing those who had come into contact with death.

In Judaism, the red heifer’s ashes played a crucial role in the process of ritual purity, particularly for those involved in Temple service. The rarity of finding a red heifer without blemish added to its mystique and the meticulous observance of the prescribed rituals surrounding its sacrifice.

For Christians, the bovine holds a slightly different meaning as the red heifer is often seen as a prefiguration of Christ’s sacrificial atonement. The red heifer’s sin-cleansing symbolism aligns the redemptive power of Jesus’ blood. Although not as explicitly emphasized in the New Testament, the red heifer serves as a symbolic link between the Old and New Covenants, reflecting themes of purification, sacrifice and spiritual cleansing in both religious traditions.

Additionally, the red heifer plays an important part of Christian eschatology. When the Third Temple is restored and sacrifices resume, it is because a red heifer, without blemish, has been found and allowed the resumption of temple services. This is a qualifying marker of the end times and the eventual rise to power of the Antichrist, a precursor to the return of Jesus Christ.

Radical Islamists take this biblical prophecy very seriously as well.

As Charisma News reported, the spokesman for the military wing of Hamas, Abu Obeida, revealed that the red heifers were targets in the Oct. 7 massacre that saw over 1,200 Israeli’s murdered.

"We look back 100 days to remember the educated, the complicit and the incapacitated among the world powers governed by the law of the jungle, reminding them of an aggression that reached its peak against our path (Al-Quds) and Al-Aqsa, with the start of its actual temporal and spatial division, and the 'bringing of red cows' as an application of a detestable religious myth designed for aggression against the feelings of an entire nation in the heart of its Arab identity, and the path of its prophet (the Night Journey) and ascension to heaven," read Abu Obeida.

The entire process of establishing the Third Temple, and the Holy of Holies where the ceremony of the red heifer must take place in front of, is an international diplomatic level perhaps never seen before.

Since the Dome of the Rock sits atop where many believe the Holy of Holies to be on the Temple Mount, many Muslims fear that the Al Aqsa Mosque will be destroyed. If this were the case, which Rabbi Mamo says they are not trying to do, it would embroil the entire world in mass protests and violence from the followers of Islam.

To be clear: no one knows how the Lord will orchestrate these events to unfold, only that they will unfold as biblical prophecy declares.

In the meantime, Christians can continue praying for the peace of Israel in these volatile days, and for wisdom, discernment and strength to navigate the end times.

Pennsylvania Man Beheads Father in Demonic Rage

If you want to see the direction society is heading, look no further than the media being pushed onto it.

With satanically focused, animated shows grabbing headlines over the past year, Amazon figured they would throw their hat in the hellish ring and see if it would pay off.

Sadly, it appears it has.

The new animated series on Amazon, "Hazbin Hotel," focuses on a corrupt version of the creation story from the Bible. One where Satan is the good guy, but misunderstood in heaven. Lilith was actually Adam's first wife, but was too independent and free-spirited to accept his tyrannical rule, and thus she fled the Garden of Eden.

Depicting Satan and the demon Lilith as tragic characters, the show tries to create a warped semblance of love between the two and focuses the storyline on their daughter: Charlie Morningstar, who is a lesbian.

In the intro to the series alone viewers are pelted with a barrage of radical feminism, demon worship, sexual immorality and much more. The language is so foul in this show it makes other adult animated shows like "South Park" seem tame by comparison.

There is an abundance of immoral and depraved schtick on offer in this show. Yet young girls are being seduced by the show in droves. There is merchandise with the cartoony animation style that draws in young eyes, not to mention attempts at “cutesy” nicknames to the show that are beyond vulgar.

Depictions of sexual violence, all different variants of sexual immorality and heretical storylines that seek to undermine the Bible make this one of the most evil shows ever created for media.

And people are loving it.

On the movie and television recommendation and ratings site Rotten Tomatoes, the critics and audience scores are sitting at 85% and 86% respectively, making the show “fresh.”

An entire generation of youth are being bought with shows depicting satanic imagery and warped versions of God on a scale never seen before. This constant exposure to such spiritually destructive content will desensitize people to the very real and destructive powers of the devil. Not to mention corrupting who God really is and that Jesus Christ is real and loves them so much He died for them.

In the meantime, Christians may or may not be able to stop this content from coming out, but they can show the world who God is. By living a life pleasing to God, and declaring the truth of the gospel of Jesus Christ, we can put our faith, hope and trust in God and His power, knowing that through Him, anything is possible.
