

Former MOD Head Reveals NASA's Secret Funding Over UFO-Demonic Fears

In recent days, General Kurt Fuller has found himself facing pressure from The Advocate Group for yet another independent investigation. The veteran military officer and newly appointed leader of IHOPKC is navigating turbulent waters as he addresses the demands for transparency and accountability.

After finding credible evidence against IHOPKC founder Mike Bickle and his removal from leadership, former Executive Director Stuart Greaves stepped down as well, and General Fuller was appointed the new Executive Director of IHOPKC.

In a video statement, Fuller revealed the challenges he has encountered in dealing with The Advocate Group's push for another investigation. He stated, "For the past several days, I've been under enormous pressure from The Advocate Group, their attorney and external leaders to immediately concede to their demands for yet another independent investigation."

Fuller acknowledges the importance of uncovering the truth, expressing his commitment to a fair and just process. He has sought to negotiate with The Advocate Group to obtain crucial information they claim to possess. Fuller remarked, "I have done everything in my power to negotiate with The Advocate Group, to convince them to tell me what they know. I believe that this information would be very important for me to learn.”

However, despite his efforts, The Advocate Group has not yet cooperated, “They have refused repeatedly. Instead, they have decided to post videos that contained some of the information that I was diligently and honestly seeking,” he said. These videos, according to Fuller, were created in December, even before he assumed leadership responsibilities.

This raises questions about the timing behind The Advocate Group’s actions. Fuller asserts, “I can’t understand why they would not have provided these videos to me to support their claims. I’m the one person who has both the authority and responsibility to properly adjudicate this case and hold people accountable. They haven’t even given me a chance to do that.”

As a seasoned military officer, General Fuller draws on his wealth of knowledge and experience in negotiating with various entities, “I work with truth and facts. Rumors and unsubstantiated claims have no place in these dealings. That is the way I’ve always operated and still do,” Fuller says.

Expressing disappointment in The Advocate Group, Fuller believes their actions have undermined the trust and integrity needed as both parties navigate this sensitive investigation. Despite the challenges, General Fuller remains steadfast in his commitment to a fair investigative process. He has handed over videos to an independent investigator, emphasizing the importance of a comprehensive and unbiased examination, “I remain open to any credible evidence that can illuminate this situation, and I’m dedicated to following through with this process until its rightful conclusion,” Fuller says.

Fuller plans to wait for the independent investigation’s results and then use those findings to hold people accountable and address organizational shortcomings. As the IHOPKC and larger Christian community watch closely, he remains resolute in his mission to ensure transparency and justice.

EU Unveils 10-Point Plan for Israel-Palestine Peace

What does it say about the state of the church today when pastors shy away from teaching on eschatology and the end times in the fear of scaring away parishioners?

Even more so, what does it say when the controversial host of “Info Wars” Alex Jones is openly declaring the truth in the Bible and that people need the Holy Spirit if they are going to survive the end times deception coming our way?

In a recent sit-down with Gerald Morgan Jr. on the podcast “Gerald Apologizes Apologetics,” part of the Steven Crowder network, the two discussed the events taking place that point to humanity being in the end times, as well as Jones opening up about his personal life and how he believes that without the power of the Holy Spirit, people will fall to the wiles of the devil.

"I'm a layperson when it comes to end of the world type stuff," says Jones. "But I did go to a lot of church, a lot of Sunday school, I have read the Bible quite a bit. I know there is massive amounts never know half of it.

"But my grandfather was really heavily into it. [He] studied the Bible, Daniel and Ezekiel and Revelation pretty much five hours a day. ...I remember him breaking down the New World Order and Global government. They'd have a computer and that would control everybody and you'd have to do what they said or you wouldn't get the Mark [of the Beast]. He would always explain you don't just take it and then it's because you've taken it that you're going to go to hell. It's that taking it you have to submit and worship and follow the whole system."

Jones, known for his effort to halt the growing globalists movement and shedding light on the schemes of the world's elite, does not often get into the matter of faith and the Bible itself.

While he does often discuss the "interdimensional demons" that he says are guiding world leaders today, Jones did a deep dive into the end times from a biblical perspective that left many wondering: is he becoming a leading voice for the return of Jesus?

"I want to be 100% clear: the New World Order has brought us the end times and has proven the Bible's right. So that's why I've gotten way more interested," reveals Jones.

"...he [his grandfather] was just constantly saying 'watch this is all going to be fulfilled.' He would get really upset when he would see these preachers on TV setting a date [saying] those people are deceived by setting a date. Then when it doesn't happen that's going to make people fall away, that's a tool of the devil."

Pointing to how these false teachers have been used by ungodly forces in the media and culture, Jones says this is nothing short of false doctrine disguised as the Bible. But the Bible in truth says something completely different.

“The Bible says no one knows, and if they tell you they know, that person’s bad,” says Jones. “So it’s all there, and the older you get, the more you know. You go, ‘This is incredible.’”

“I want to be clear. I’m not Mr. Preacher and I’m not holier than thou. I don’t tell lies on purpose and I don’t sell out to evil, ‘ve got my own issues I’m not perfect. I’m not on some high-horse. So many people are turned off by the church because it’s preaching a watered-down of showing them the big picture: the devil is real. God is real. You better pick a side. So, people ask why I’m so much into the end times, it’s here and it’s all being fulfilled,” Jones continues.

Pointing to the events going on in the world today and how mass communication has fundamentally altered the world as we know it, Jones says that the Bible has proven itself time and again as the truth of what is happening during the end of days.

“There’s no way John, on the island of Patmos almost 2,000 years ago, just made this up. There’s no way Daniel just made this up or Ezekiel. And it’s just all congruent proving itself, proving itself, proving itself, and so if someone doesn’t have the Holy Spirit of discernment, they read it [the Bible] and it’s a bunch of gibberish. ...We should be celebrating going ‘My gosh God is real. This is a warning.’ God gave us free will, but God also gave us a cheat sheet,” Jones says.

It is within this cheat sheet that the only way to eternal salvation is explained, and that is by grace through faith in Jesus Christ that He died on the cross for our sins and overcame sin and death to take hold of the authority granted to Him to act as the King of kings and Lord of lords.

Within the pages of the Bible is a road map of what is occurring in our day and age, and without this biblical lens over world events, people will not truly see what is taking place. But with biblical discernment and wisdom, the shaping of the world begins to make more sense and will hopefully encourage people to accept the one way to eternal life, which is Jesus Christ.

Paul Harvey's 1965 Prophecy Stuns Joe Rogan

Prophet Chuck Pierce recently delivered a powerful prophetic word, declaring that the year 2024 is ushering in a significant shift with the theme "New is Now." In his insightful message, Pierce emphasizes the transformative nature of this period, signifying a fresh beginning and divine acceleration.

According to Pierce, the Lord is orchestrating a profound renewal and breakthrough, urging believers to embrace the unprecedented opportunities and advancements that the "New is Now” brings.

As the President and Founder of Glory of Zion in Corinth, Texas, and the President of Global Spheres Ministries, Pierce is recognized for his expertise in the Hebraic calendar and his ability to bridge the gap between individuals with a Hebraic background and those from a Christian background. His message, delivered with an apostolic anointing, carries the power to establish new dimensions in the spiritual realm.

“The thing about new is: you don’t have it all defined yet because you’re walking in a path or you’re walking in something that has never come into the quality that God is going to bring it into. That’s what the word ‘new’ means. It means something that’s never been before or something that will be a better quality in days ahead, and yet I think we have to step forward by faith into it and then we begin to see clearly,” shares Pierce.

The central theme of Pierce’s message revolves around embracing the new and stepping into uncharted territories with faith. Drawing inspiration from a vision shared by his son Isaac, where the sky resembled a new blanket, Pierce encourages believers to declare, “The new is now,” over their lives. He emphasizes that the concept of “new” entails something undefined yet promises a better quality in the days ahead.

“At the beginning of the year the Lord of hosts will triumph because we have to know we’ve got to understand the triumphant of the Lord this season. Triumph means that you play the trump card. Now, I’m a card player from way back, and you always have to know the timing when to play that trump card, and you always have to watch [what is] being played around you. And I decree over you right now, that no matter what you’re doing you will triumph within it," declares Pierce.

In his address, Pierce alludes to a vision during the Feast of Tabernacles, where believers are depicted as wearing shoes resembling swords. This imagery signifies that the upcoming year will not be one of peace until individuals walk with the sword to bring about peace. It sets the tone for a year that requires a proactive and assertive approach to navigate challenges and establish peace.

"The Lord has shown me several things this year. One thing that He showed me, first of all at Feast of Tabernacles was He caught me up and He showed me our shoes were like swords, and He said this won't be a year of peace until you walk with the sword to bring the peace. So that gave me an indicator of what the year was going to be like ahead as we go into 2024," Pierce reveals.

As part of the interactive aspect of Pierce's message, he urges believers to recognize themselves as part of the identified remnant. This remnant, emerging since September 2019, signifies a new order tasked with enforcing justice against the prevailing evil in the earthly realm. Pierce underscores the significance of acknowledging one's role in this new historical era and the responsibility to answer the call to enforce justice.

"This new, historical time we're living in has been identified in a new believe it started in September of 2019 and now the Lord has a new order to enforce justice against the evil that has formed in the earth realm. And one of the things I want you to know is that you're going to have to answer this question probably every morning when you get up, because war is going to be on every front and you have to say, 'Where is my real war?’ You don’t want to get into war that you’re not supposed to be in. War means conflict. You you don’t want to seek after conflict, but when conflict is in your path or in your promise, you’re going to have to have a responsibility to rule within it,” Pierce warns.

Pierce’s 2024 prophetic message serves as a guide for believers, urging them to embrace the new and navigate the upcoming year with faith, courage and a proactive spirit. The vivid visions and insights shared by Pierce offer a glimpse into the spiritual realm and provide valuable wisdom for those seeking divine direction in their lives. As believers stand on the threshold of the new, Pierce’s message serves as a beacon of hope, encouraging them to speak life, embrace change and contend for authority through the supernatural.

Online Pastor Charged in $1.3 Million Cryptocurrency Scandal

House Speaker Mike Johnson, a prominent Louisiana Republican and Evangelical, shared insights on God’s sovereignty and his perspective on the 2020 election during a recent GOP media briefing.

The 51-year-old leader, who assumed the role of Speaker last fall with the backing of former President Donald Trump, emphasized his faith and adherence to biblical principles in understanding political events.

At the GOP leadership's weekly press conference Jan. 17, Johnson responded to a question about President Joe Biden's victory, stating, "I'm a Bible-believing Christian, right? The Bible says that God is the one who raises up people in authority." Expressing his personal faith in the Scriptures, Johnson affirmed that Biden's election "must have been God's will."

Johnson drew parallels between his beliefs and those of America's Founding Fathers, referencing the Declaration of Independence. He emphasized that the Founding Fathers acknowledged that our rights are not bestowed by the government but by God, emphasizing the equality and inherent value of all individuals.

According to Johnson, understanding God's sovereignty leads to the belief that God allows individuals to rise to positions of authority. He reiterated, "[Biden's election] must've been God's will then. That's my belief."

Looking ahead to the 2024 election, Johnson expressed optimism about a potential "regime change" for the Biden administration. He believes that collective decisions made by the nation, guided by free will, will result in a better choice in the upcoming election cycle.

In his previous remarks in October, after being elected as Speaker amidst internal turmoil, Johnson stressed his belief in Scripture, and called on lawmakers to recognize their responsibility and use their gifts to serve the American people.

House Speaker Johnson's election as Speaker received support not only from former President Trump but also from influential Evangelicals, including Ronnie Floyd, Tony Perkins and Franklin Graham.

Importance of Christians Putting God First in Election Season

Johnson's perspective highlights the significance of Christians prioritizing God and His principles during election seasons. Christians are called to seek God's guidance and align our choices with biblical values when participating in the democratic process.

Proverbs 3:5-6: "Trust in the Lord with all your heart, and lean not on your own understanding; in all your ways acknowledge Him, and He will direct your paths."

Colossians 3:17: "And whatever you do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through Him."

1 Timothy 2:1-2: "Therefore I exhort first of all that you make supplications, prayers, intercessions and thanksgivings for everyone, for kings and for all who are in authority, that we may lead a quiet and peaceful life in all godliness and honesty."

Christians can impact society positively by aligning their votes with principles grounded in their faith. By seeking God's wisdom and adhering to biblical values, we contribute to the promotion of justice, righteousness and the well-being of our nation

Sen. Tim Scott Excited to Announce Engagement

Mountain Gateway, operating as Puerta de la Montaña in Nicaragua, is currently facing a challenging situation as the Attorney General of Nicaragua moves forward with charges against three U.S. citizens associated with the organization and 11 Nicaraguan pastors. The allegations include money laundering and organized crime.

In response, Mountain Gateway released a statement vehemently denying these accusations and expressing deep sadness over the situation. The organization asserts that it has diligently followed all legal requirements in both the U.S. and Nicaragua for non-profit and faith-based organizations.

Mountain Gateway has provided documentation demonstrating that the Nicaraguan government reviewed and approved all funds entering the country. The organization operated under the government's oversight to ensure the appropriate use and management of funds. In 2023, Mountain Gateway conducted eight mass evangelistic gospel campaigns in collaboration with the Nicaraguan government, operating under strict accounting and budget reviews. The organization emphasizes that no members of Mountain Gateway personally profited from funds sent to Nicaragua for ministry functions.

Nicaragua has recently revoked the registration of numerous non-profit and faith-based organizations, including members of the Catholic Church, citing charges such as money laundering as reasons for revocation. Mountain Gateway, having retained Nicaraguan legal counsel, trusts the judicial process, considering these proceedings normal for an investigation of this nature.

However, the organization's U.S. pastors, Jon Britton Hancock, Jacob Britton Hancock and Cassandra Mae Hancock, express confusion over the situation, emphasizing their love for Nicaragua and their commitment to abide by government regulations and laws. They have requested legal representation and appointed attorneys to represent them in the legal process. Mountain Gateway questions whether the charges are politically motivated rather than legally justified.

Since 2013, Mountain Gateway has been actively involved in serving the citizens of Nicaragua through various initiatives, including discipleship, church planting, humanitarian aid, disaster relief and mass evangelistic campaigns. The organization's primary motivation has been to share the love and hope of Jesus Christ with the people of Nicaragua.

Despite the legal advice to trust the legal system, Mountain Gateway raises concerns about the situation's complexity and potential political motivations. The Nicaraguan government has imprisoned nine evangelical pastors associated with Mountain Gateway, claiming they were under the control and direction of U.S. citizens and Nicaraguans. The government's latest press release states the innocence of these pastors, but they remain imprisoned with no legal representation or contact with their families.

The government has set a criminal hearing date for these pastors for Jan. 26, 2024, yet has not provided their legal counsel with charging documents or files to prepare a defense. Mountain Gateway expresses its commitment to resolving the situation through diplomatic channels, claiming the charges are based on erroneous information.

In times of persecution, Christians will find guidance in the Bible, where several passages offer wisdom on how to navigate adversity. One such source of solace is found in Matthew 5:10, a part of the Beatitudes. In these verses, Jesus declares, "Blessed are those who are persecuted for righteousness' sake, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." The message encourages believers to endure persecution with a spirit of endurance, understanding that their faithfulness to righteousness is recognized in heaven. Additionally, 1 Peter 4:12-13 advises Christians not to be surprised by trials but to rejoice in sharing Christ's sufferings, reinforcing the fact that facing persecution is part of a Christian's journey.

Furthermore, Romans 12:14 implores Christians to respond to persecution with love, instructing them to "bless those who persecute you; bless and do not curse." This counterintuitive approach emphasizes the transformative power of love and forgiveness even in the face of adversity. These biblical teachings underscore the resilience of the Christian faith in the midst of challenges, providing a moral compass for believers navigating persecution. By adhering to these principles, Christians aspire to reflect the enduring love and grace of Christ in the face of opposition.

As Mountain Gateway faces these challenges, the dangers of being a Christian and fulfilling the Great Commission become evident, both physically and spiritually. The organization's commitment to serving others and sharing the gospel has brought them into the midst of a legal and political storm, highlighting the potential risks associated with such endeavors. Mountain Gateway remains steadfast in its pursuit of resolving the situation while trusting in the promises of Jesus Christ and the rewards that await them in heaven.
