President Donald Trump boarded Air Force One using a smaller staircase on Sunday after federal agents discovered a suspicious structure near Palm Beach International Airport prompting what officials called “increased security measures.”

According to law enforcement the structure described as an “elevated hunting stand” was found on Friday in a wooded area overlooking the airport’s runway. As reported by Daily Mail, FBI Director Kash Patel said the agency had “taken the investigatory lead, flying in resources to collect all evidence from the scene and deploying our cell phone analytics capabilities.” He added that the stand was located “within sight line of the Air Force One landing zone.”

Trump's son Eric praised the Secret Service for their vigilance writing on X "Ps the Secret Service did a GREAT job finding this."

Turkey's Power Play Over Israel Sparks New Gog-Magog Fears

Under President Recep Tayyip Erdoğan, Turkey is pursuing a bold and ideological plan that could reshape the Middle East and pose a serious challenge to Israel's security.

Israeli terrorism expert Dr. Ely Karmon of Reichman University warned that "if Erdoğan's plan to take over Syria in the military domain succeeds and he receives approval for a military force, legitimacy and Qatari money for construction in Gaza, Turkey will largely replace the Iranian dream of enclosing Israel in a more dangerous military and political ring."

Karmon said Erdoğan's anti-Israel stance is rooted in faith-based hostility, explaining, "Erdoğan has strong anti-Israel feelings, based on deep-rooted religious beliefs. Erdoğan simply despises Israel."

Supporting Hamas and Undermining Israel

Turkey's ties with Hamas date back to 2006, when Erdoğan invited its leaders to Ankara. That connection deepened after the Mavi Marmara flotilla incident in 2010, when Turkish militants attempted to breach Israel's blockade of Gaza.

Karmon added that Turkey has poured "about $63 million" into East Jerusalem groups that promote radical activism, including those who "harassed and physically attacked Jews visiting the Temple Mount."

Following the Oct. 7, 2023, Hamas massacre, Erdoğan called Israel's counterattack a "massacre" and refused to condemn Hamas. By March 2024, he declared, "No one can make us declare Hamas a terrorist organization," comparing Israel's leaders to "Hitler, Mussolini and Stalin." The next month, Turkey severed all economic ties with Israel.

A Neo-Ottoman Vision

With the fall of the Assad regime in Syria, Turkey has moved quickly to fill the power vacuum. Foreign Minister Hakan Fidan declared that in this "new era, Turkey is the shepherd and protector" of Syrian factions.

Former Mossad official Oded Ailam warned Erdoğan seeks to "resurrect the Ottoman empire and turn into a modern sultan." He cautioned, "If the Mediterranean Sea is a game board, Erdogan has already placed more than a queen on it. He placed a whole fleet."

Prophetic Implications

These moves echo the coming Gog-Magog war described in Ezekiel 38–39, when a coalition of nations from the north, including regions many scholars associate with modern Turkey, Iran and Russia, will gather against Israel in the last days.

Ezekiel foretold that "Gog of the land of Magog, the chief prince of Meshech and Tubal" will lead this invasion, only for God Himself to intervene and deliver Israel in a display of divine power. The ancient names Meshech and Tubal are traced to areas of modern Asia Minor, corresponding closely with Turkey's territory today.

As Erdoğan expands influence in Syria, allies with Hamas, and strengthens ties with Iran and Qatar, the framework of that prophecy appears to be taking shape. What once seemed distant now feels uncomfortably near.

Harvard Scientist Warns: 3I/ATLAS Is Doing Something Never Seen Before

An interstellar object roughly the size of Manhattan is baffling scientists as it passes through the solar system emitting materials never before observed in nature. Harvard astrophysicist Dr. Avi Loeb told The New York Post that the object known as 3I/ATLAS appears to be releasing a metal compound only known from industrial manufacturing.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

A Metal Never Seen in Nature

Recent images from the Keck II telescope in Hawaii revealed the object emitting “a plume which contains four grams of nickel per second with no evidence of iron – unheard of in comets.” According to Loeb the result is a refined compound called nickel tetracarbonyl which “has only ever been previously witnessed in human manufacturing.” He said, “There is only one place where that is known to exist and that is in industrially produced nickel alloys. This was never observed for any other object.”

Order Jonathan Cahn's Newest Book, "The Avatar" on Amazon.com!

While Keck Observatory researchers suggest the nickel-producing process could be natural Loeb disagrees. “This was a process that we can imagine only because it was used in industry,” he said calling the object’s behavior unprecedented.

A String of Anomalies

In addition to the New York Post article Loeb also discussed 3I/ATLAS with Glenn Beck explaining that the object may not behave like any known comet or asteroid. "It's the size of Manhattan Island," he said. "We expect many more small objects than big objects... but we found a giant one." Its orbit also "aligns within five degrees of the ecliptic plane of the planets" a one-in-500 chance and its arrival coincides with close passes by Mars, Venus and Jupiter – an improbable timing that Loeb said could suggest "fine-tuning."

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up-to-date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

Adding to the mystery the Hubble Space Telescope captured an image of a jet of material pointing toward the Sun instead of away from it the opposite of normal comet tails. Loeb asked, "Why are we seeing a jet pointed at the Sun? A stream of material in the direction of the Sun?"

Could It Be Artificial?

Loeb a longtime advocate of open inquiry into interstellar phenomena argues that science must remain open to the possibility of technological origins. "If it was designed by intelligence you wouldn't be able to forecast exactly what it would do," he told Beck. He compared it to "finding a visitor in your backyard" whose actions cannot be predicted by natural laws.

Awaiting New Data

The Mars Reconnaissance Orbiter's HiRISE camera captured images of 3I/ATLAS as it passed within 12 million miles of Mars but those images remain unreleased because of the ongoing U.S. government shutdown. "Who cares about the communication departments? We want to see the data from the scientists,” Loeb said.

For Loeb 3I/ATLAS represents more than just another cosmic rock. With its size trajectory and industrial-grade metal emissions it raises a profound question: Are we detecting evidence of alien technology drifting through our solar system, something worse or simply a type of comet that humanity has never seen before?

Hamas Breaks Ceasefire: Is Peace in the Middle East Even Possible?

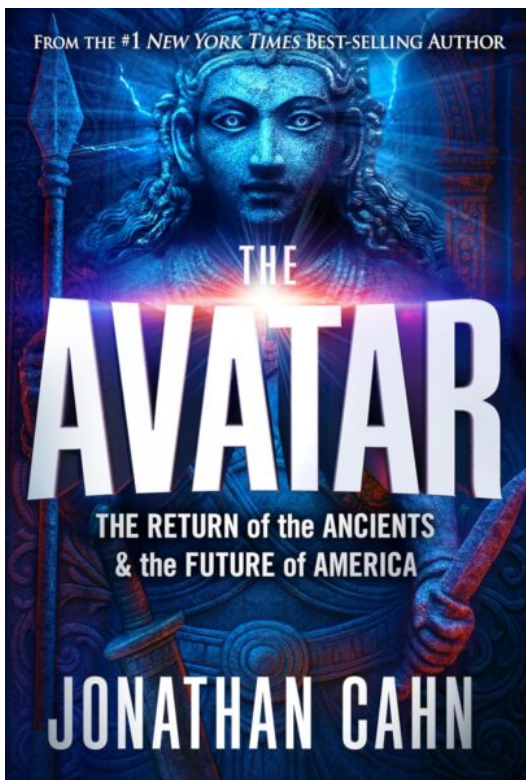

The fragile calm in southern Gaza shattered on Oct. 19 when Hamas launched a surprise anti-tank and sniper attack against Israeli forces near Rafah, killing two soldiers and wounding three others. Despite this, outlets such as Reuters, NBC and The New York Times framed the story as though Israel “broke the ceasefire.” The article states that “social media amplified the distortion,” fueling outrage over what was in reality a Hamas provocation.

“A ceasefire cannot only be upheld by one side,” the IDF said, stressing that its response targeted terror infrastructure, not civilians. Israel365 added that “when terrorists violate a ceasefire, Israel’s duty is not passivity; it’s protection.”

Media Spin and Global Reactions

The U.S.-brokered truce required Hamas to halt attacks, release all hostages and withdraw beyond a security line. The group has broken all three conditions. "Hamas has already violated all three," Israel365 reported, noting that it continues to hold the bodies of slain Israeli hostages and has resumed direct attacks.

Fox News confirmed that Israel's strikes targeted "Hamas military infrastructure not civilian areas." The Jerusalem Post quoted Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's office saying crossings will reopen "once Hamas ceases its bombings and upholds its commitments." Even the U.S. State Department warned one day before the attack about "a planned operation by Hamas against Palestinian civilians," calling it a "direct and grave violation" of the ceasefire.

Former Jerusalem Post editor Avi Mayer called the media framing "journalistic malpractice," arguing that implying Israel broke the truce while two of its soldiers were killed "misleads the public and distorts the truth."

Prophecy and the Pursuit of Peace

For believers, the conflict reflects the ancient pattern foretold in Scripture. The Bible urges peace and justice yet foresees turmoil surrounding Israel before the return of Christ. Isaiah said, "Nation shall not lift up sword against nation neither shall they learn war anymore" (Isa. 2:4), pointing to a future of true peace. Zechariah wrote that a coming ruler "shall speak peace unto the nations and his dominion shall be from sea to sea" (Zech. 9:10).

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up-to-date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

Before that peace arrives, prophecy warns of renewed hostility. Joel wrote, "I will gather all nations and bring them down to the Valley of Jehoshaphat" (Joel 3:2) and Zechariah said "all the nations of the earth shall be gathered against" Jerusalem (Zech. 12:3). Yet the same chapter promises that "the Lord will go forth and fight against those nations" (Zech. 14:3). Revelation 19 reveals Christ returning as King of Kings to bring justice and restoration.

Peace Now and Peace to Come

Psalm 122:6 calls believers to "pray for the peace of Jerusalem." Working for peace remains a divine command, but Scripture teaches that lasting peace will come only when God Himself intervenes. The Israel365 report makes clear that Israel did not reignite this conflict. Hamas did.

Join Charisma Magazine Online to follow everything the Holy Spirit is doing around the world!

In the end times, the Bible shows Israel surrounded by nations before the Lord's return, not because peace is futile but because redemption is near. Until that day Christians are called to support peace, stand for truth and remain watchful. When all seems lost, God's covenant with Israel will stand and peace will one day prevail in His time.

Could the Amazon AWS Outage Be Part of a Growing Global Cyber War?

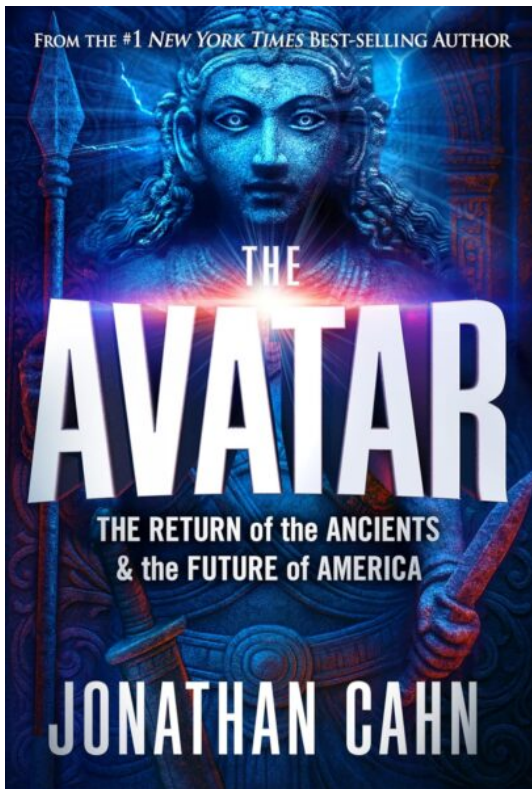

When “half the internet” went down early Monday morning, the world’s dependence on a few fragile digital backbones was exposed.

The outage, traced to Amazon Web Services’ data center in Northern Virginia, disrupted everything from banking apps to social media and video streaming. It also raised a larger question: was this merely a technical failure or part of a deeper digital conflict now unfolding between global powers?

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

According to the Daily Mail, Amazon confirmed that “most operations are succeeding normally now” but millions continued to experience issues long after the company declared the problem “fully mitigated.” The disruption stemmed from “an operational issue” at its us-east-1 data center, a critical hub that supports much of the world’s online infrastructure.

Tech expert Jake Moore told the outlet, “While a cyberattack can’t be ruled out until AWS releases its full post-incident report, there’s no current evidence of hacking, data breaches or coordinated attacks.” Still, he warned that the event showed how “fragile infrastructures with very limited backup plans” could fail in a cascading manner across the web.

Order Jonathan Cahn's Newest Book, "The Avatar" on Amazon.com!

The outage also hit major British banks and government sites. Professor James Davenport of the University of Bath called it "worrying" that an issue in the United States could affect "UK banking apps including Lloyds and Halifax," suggesting unexpected dependencies in how global systems are interlinked.

Just a day before, a separate report from Reuters revealed that China accused the United States of conducting long-term cyber operations against its National Time Service Center, the institute that generates and maintains China's standard time.

The Chinese State Security Ministry alleged that the U.S. National Security Agency "stole secrets and infiltrated the country's national time centre," claiming the operation could have threatened "communication networks, financial systems, the power supply and the international standard time."

Beijing said it traced the breach back to 2022, adding that the NSA “exploited a vulnerability in the messaging service of a foreign smartphone brand” to spy on Chinese researchers. The U.S. embassy in Beijing declined to address the allegations directly but countered that “China is the most active and persistent cyber threat to U.S. government, private-sector and critical infrastructure networks.”

Both stories, reported within a day of each other, highlight the growing volatility of a world increasingly governed by code and cloud servers. Whether or not the Amazon outage was related to any state-sponsored activity remains unknown. Yet the timing and scope of both incidents point to a deeper reality: the digital realm has become the new front line of geopolitical power struggles.

Jesus warned that before the end, there would be “wars and rumors of wars.” Could those words now extend beyond the physical battlefield into cyberspace, where unseen conflicts rage for control, information and influence? Manipulated Faith: The Hidden Spirit Twisting Scripture and Controlling Believers

Legalism has quietly crept into the church, disguising itself as holiness while binding believers in fear and guilt. Apostle Alexander Pagani says this deceptive spirit twists Scripture and replaces grace with performance.

In a recent Charisma Media interview, he shared how this spirit operates and how believers can break free.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

A False Holiness Rooted in Fear

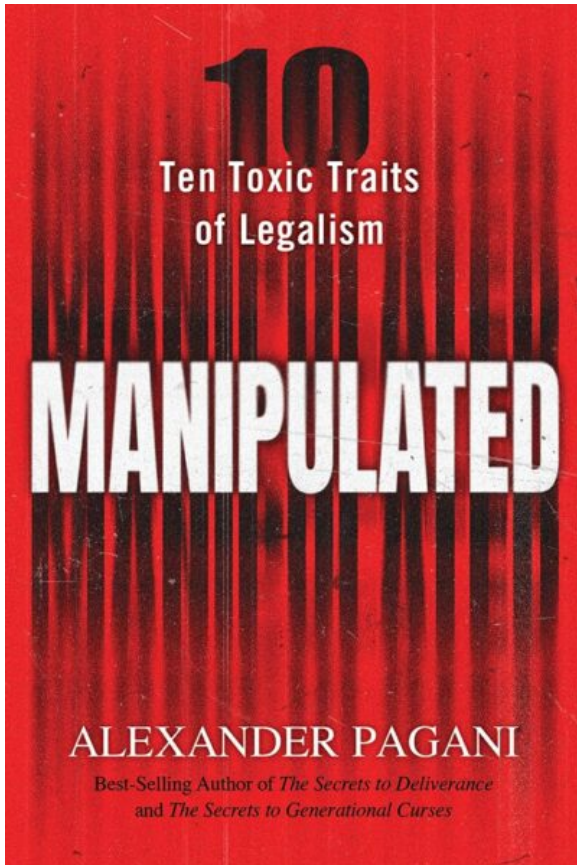

Pagani warns that legalism looks holy but is rooted in control. He recalls his early years after finding faith in prison when he became consumed with fear of sinning. One day he dropped a gum wrapper and panicked, believing he had lost his salvation. "I spent 20 minutes searching for that wrapper," he said. "That's how deep the fear had gripped me."

By the time he left prison, he had turned faith into rules. "I was a full-blown Pharisee internally," Pagani said. "I tried to add things to my faith to make sure I wouldn't backslide."

Wrong Theology Leads to Bondage

According to Pagani, legalism begins with wrong theology. "Our theology shapes our beliefs, and our beliefs shape our actions," he said. He cites 1 Timothy 4:1, explaining that doctrines of demons are false teachings and traditions that bind people instead of freeing them. This mindset spreads not only through religion but also through culture and ideology.

Order Alexander Pagani's New Book, "Manipulated" On Amazon.com!

Unregulated Zeal That Misses God

Pagani warns that legalism fuels unregulated zeal. "We're called to be led by the Spirit, not driven by the Spirit," he said. He described how acting on impulse once led him into dangerous street evangelism that God never told him to do. "Zeal without self-control is legalism in disguise," he said.

He believes many believers today are more eager to imitate Elijah than Jesus. "The greatest prophet we should emulate is Jesus," he said. "The fruit of the Spirit will always glorify Christ, not us."

The Anger Legalism Produces

Legalism, Pagani admits, filled him with frustration and rage.

“Because I couldn’t be radical enough, I got angry,” he said. He recalled punching walls after church and arguing with his wife using Scripture to prove his point. “Legalism doesn’t care about the internal as long as you look the part,” he said.

Distorting Scripture and Losing Sight of Jesus

Pagani warns that legalism distorts Scripture and shifts focus from Jesus to performance. “If it doesn’t produce the fruit of the Spirit or glorify Christ, then it’s not the Holy Spirit,” he said. He added that social media has become a breeding ground for false teaching and radicalized thinking. “We’re not called to follow Moses or Elijah. God said, ‘This is My beloved Son. Hear Him.’”

Breaking Free from Legalism

Pagani offers a clear path to freedom:

1. Self-reflection: Ask honestly, “Am I legalistic?”
2. Repentance: Return to the Word and allow God to reprogram your thinking.
3. Deliverance: Seek prayer and accountability from trusted believers.
4. Restitution: Make things right with those you hurt through legalism.

“You can’t just move on,” Pagani said. “If you hurt people, repent. If you taught wrong, correct it publicly. That’s part of deliverance too.”

Christ at the Center

Pagani's message ends with a call to return to grace. "If people see you instead of Christ, something is wrong," he said. "We're not called to be on fire for God. We're called to be like Christ."

Do Nephilim Still Walk the Earth? The Truth About the Kandahar Giant

Few stories have captivated the imagination of believers and skeptics alike like the mysterious account of the Giant of Kandahar. In a recent appearance on the Ninjas Are Butterflies podcast, author and researcher L.A. Marzulli stunned listeners by revisiting his original investigation into what he believes was a real encounter between U.S. soldiers and a towering giant during the war in Afghanistan.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

Marzulli explained that his team was the first to break the story through his Watchers documentary series after interviewing a soldier who claimed to have witnessed and killed the creature. The man, according to Marzulli, described a 12 to 14 foot tall humanoid with fiery red hair, six fingers on each hand and a spear large enough to impale a man.

Marzulli said the witness broke down multiple times while recounting the event, describing a gruesome battle that left one soldier dead and the giant decapitated after heavy gunfire. He claimed the military later ordered the patrol to rewrite their report removing all mention of the creature before a massive transport helicopter carried the body away.

Adding to the mystery, Marzulli said other soldiers later confirmed they were told during cave combat training to “aim high” around nine or ten feet if they ever encountered something unusual. He also recounted claims from an alleged government insider who said multiple giant bodies were shipped to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base for genetic testing and possible military research.

Marzulli believes these accounts may be evidence of modern day Nephilim, the giants mentioned in Genesis 6 that lived on the earth both before and after the Flood. Scripture records that the Nephilim were the offspring of the “sons of God” and the “daughters of men,” and that giants like the Anakim and Rephaim appeared again in the Old Testament. Whether viewed as myth, cover up or biblical revelation, the story of the Kandahar Giant continues to raise unsettling questions about what lies buried in the shadows of human history.

A Historic Meeting Between King Charles and Pope Leo: Prophetic Unity or Dangerous Deception?

When King Charles III and Pope Leo XIV gather inside the Sistine Chapel on Oct. 23 to pray together, the world will witness a moment that has not happened since the Protestant Reformation. Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

To many, this appears as a hopeful sign of reconciliation and unity. But to those who read Scripture through a prophetic lens, it may signal something far more consequential, the slow but steady march toward the one-world religious system foretold in Revelation.

When Unity Crosses Into Compromise

Throughout history unity has been one of the enemy's most effective disguises. What begins as dialogue for peace can quietly evolve into doctrinal compromise. The apostle Paul warned that in the last days many would "depart from the faith" and give heed to "deceiving spirits and doctrines of demons" (1 Tim. 4:1).

While Scripture calls for believers to be one in Christ (John 17:21), it never calls for unity at the expense of truth. When unity becomes the highest goal truth is often the first casualty. Both the Roman Catholic Church and the Church of England have in recent decades faced accusations of abandoning biblical convictions to align with cultural currents. When the two most powerful Western Christian institutions come together to pray beneath one roof the world applauds but heaven may weep.

The Spirit of the Age

The prophetic warnings of 2 Thessalonians 2 and Revelation 13 describe an age in which religious and political powers converge under deception. The Antichrist's rise is not only marked by political dominance but also by spiritual seduction, a counterfeit faith system that unites the world under false peace.

Could this meeting be another brick laid in that foundation? A monarch known for championing global environmentalism often couched in spiritual language joins hands with a pontiff calling for ecological repentance. Together they will host business leaders in the Vatican to discuss "care for creation," echoing themes increasingly central to globalist agendas.

In the name of stewardship a new faith narrative is forming, one centered not on the cross but on the planet, not on redemption but on preservation, not on the Creator but on creation itself.

A Step Toward the Beast System?

Revelation warns of a time when the nations will follow a single authority that blurs the line between faith and governance. The "beast" and the "false prophet" operate in tandem, one ruling the political sphere the other captivating the spiritual (Rev. 13).

Is this moment part of that prophetic foreshadowing? The king and the pope represent not only two global institutions but also two of the most visible moral voices on earth. When their platforms merge the influence could shape billions. Whether by design or by deception their partnership might lay the groundwork for what Scripture calls the "mystery of lawlessness" already at work.

The Call to Discernment

None of this is to say the event itself fulfills prophecy. But it should awaken the Church to discern the times (Matt. 16:3). Every step toward religious consolidation, every move that places unity over truth, deserves careful examination through the lens of Scripture.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up-to-date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

Christ warned that false prophets would arise and “deceive many” (Matt. 24:11). Discernment not cynicism is the call of the hour. What looks like progress in the natural could be preparation in the spiritual.

Watch and Pray

For believers the response is not fear but faith. Jesus told His followers to “watch and pray” (Luke 21:36) so they would be ready for what is coming upon the earth.

Join Charisma Magazine Online to follow everything the Holy Spirit is doing around the world!

Whether this meeting between King Charles and Pope Leo XIV proves to be a genuine step toward unity or a subtle advance toward the one-world religion foretold in prophecy only time will tell. But one truth remains unshakable: the true Church must remain rooted in the Word of God, unmoved by spectacle and unwavering in its allegiance to Christ alone.
