

Peace in the Middle East? What Prophecy Says Comes Next

A Difficult Conversation for Believers

For many Christians, conversations about fallen angels, hybrids and demonic entities walking among us sound too strange to take seriously. These subjects are often dismissed as sensational or speculative but author and researcher L.A. Marzulli argues that these phenomena are not science fiction but deeply biblical.

In a recent appearance on the Ninjas Are Butterflies podcast, Marzulli discussed how Satan is forming an end-times army that can “pass for humans” and warned believers not to ignore the spiritual reality unfolding around them. “The hybrids can pass now for humans,” he said. “How do we know this? Al Matthews talks about it. Other people have talked about it. In our film we sit down with four abductees ... [one] had this encounter with this woman who’s a hybrid.”

While this topic may make many uncomfortable, Marzulli insists it aligns with the biblical narrative and has eternal implications. “Some of you people watching this are going, you know, that’s just really too weird,” he said. “What does this have to do with salvation? Because it has everything to do with salvation.”

“The Eyes Are the Window to the Soul”

Marzulli’s claim is rooted in his research into alien abductions, cryptid sightings and ancient hybridization. He believes that fallen angels, just as in Genesis 6, are once again manipulating human DNA. “They can pass except for the eyes,” he explained. “She wears these dark glasses. Why? Because the eyes are the window to the soul. And these entities have no soul.”

These soulless hybrids, according to Marzulli, are spiritually dead beings, “reptilian,” “yellow,” and “black” in their true form, attempting to blend in with humanity. They are, he says, evidence of a supernatural deception foretold in Scripture.

The Biblical Framework

Marzulli draws from Daniel 2:43, which says, “Their seed will mingle with the seed of men, but they will not cleave to them.” He interprets this as a prophecy of hybridization in the last days, a return of the ancient corruption that provoked the Flood.

“We know from Daniel 2:43, their seed will mingle with the seed of men, but they will not cleave to them,” he said. “So, there it is. That’s what’s happening right now.”

Order L.A. Marzulli’s Groundbreaking Book, “The Rungs of Disclosure” on !

He also cites Revelation, where the “beasts of the earth” are unleashed in the tribulation. “They’re not hamsters and giraffes,” Marzulli said. “These are the beasts of the earth. Since 1966, Sasquatch sightings are through the roof. He’s breeding an army.”

To him, these sightings of Bigfoot and other cryptids are not random but evidence of demonic entities manifesting in physical form.

Israel and the Prophetic Time Clock

Marzulli connects this modern supernatural escalation to the rebirth of Israel in 1948. Quoting Amos 9:14–15, he says this event triggered the prophetic countdown and alerted Satan that his time is short.

“May 14th, 1948, Amos 9:14 and 15. For all you anti-Israelites out there, these are the Jews,” Marzulli said. “They are the prophetic time clock which everything starts and spins around. And this is why all this is happening.”

He points out that the UFO and abduction phenomena began shortly after Israel’s rebirth, Roswell in 1947, arguing that this timing is no coincidence.

The Coming Great Deception

Marzulli warns that the world is being conditioned to embrace the ultimate lie, that humanity was created by extraterrestrial beings. “That’s the coming great deception,” he said. “We were seated here by an advanced race of extraterrestrials ... now at this critical juncture in human history, they are back to usher mankind into a golden age.”

He calls this “the long game” of Satan, an elaborate plan to counterfeit creation and lead humanity away from God. “Stuff is being cooked up in hell’s kitchen,” Marzulli said. “The enemy, the dragon, knows his time is short.”

Confronting a Biblical Reality

Marzulli’s message challenges modern believers to face the uncomfortable truth that spiritual warfare is not abstract. The manipulation of flesh and spirit has always been part of Satan's strategy from Eden to Revelation. The difference today, Marzulli suggests, is that the deception now wears a human face.

Even if Christians differ on interpretations, Scripture repeatedly warns that deception in the last days will be so persuasive that even the elect could be led astray. In that light, Marzulli's theories are not mere speculation but a wake-up call.

"Maybe what was foretold is unfolding even as we speak," he said. "It's there. Wake up. It's happening."

Mel Gibson Sparks Controversy by Recasting Jesus and Mary Magdalene in 'Passion' Sequel

After more than 20 years Mel Gibson is returning to the story that shook the world. His long-awaited sequel to The Passion of the Christ, titled The Resurrection of the Christ, is officially moving forward but not without controversy.

According to the Daily Mail, the director has chosen to recast both Jesus and Mary Magdalene for the upcoming film, a move that has “sparked outrage from fans.”

In the original 2004 masterpiece Jim Caviezel’s portrayal of Christ left an unforgettable mark on audiences and has since become synonymous with the image of Jesus on film. Italian actress Monica Bellucci originally portrayed Mary Magdalene, delivering a performance that became one of her most recognized dramatic roles.

This time Finnish actor Jaakko Ohtonen will step into the role of Jesus while Cuban actress Mariela Garriga will portray Mary Magdalene. A source told Variety, “It made sense to recast the whole film. They would have had to do all this CGI stuff, all this digital stuff, de-aging and all that, that would have been very costly.”

The decision, while practical from a production standpoint, has left many viewers disappointed. For two decades Caviezel’s depiction of Jesus has defined the role for countless believers and moviegoers. He was more than an actor in a biblical drama. He embodied a spiritual connection to the story of Christ’s suffering making it deeply personal for fans.

Caviezel, now 57, has previously expressed his desire to return. As The Daily Mail noted, he recently shared on a podcast that he first learned of the sequel in 2013 and that he hoped to “really stay in this moment” if given the chance to portray Christ again. “I want to enjoy this one more than I did the other one,” he said.

Despite Caviezel's enthusiasm the passage of time appears to have dictated the casting choices. Mel Gibson, 69, told The Joe Rogan Experience earlier this year that the upcoming film will be "very ambitious," adding, "I think in order to really tell the story properly you have to start with the fall of the angels. You need to go to hell. You need to go to Sheol."

Those words have fueled both excitement and concern. The scale of Gibson's vision seems vast and cosmic, but with such ambition comes risk. Fans will remember that the original Passion succeeded not because of creative spectacle but because it stayed grounded in Scripture and the raw humanity of Christ's sacrifice.

Gibson admitted the project will not be easy. "It's not going to be easy and it's going to require a lot of planning and I'm not wholly sure I can pull it off," he said. "To tell you the truth it's super ambitious. But I'll take a crack at it because that's what you've got to do right, walk up to the plate?"

The first part of The Resurrection of the Christ is set to premiere on Good Friday, Mar. 26, 2027 followed by part two on Ascension Day, May 6, 2027.

Whether audiences embrace Ohtonen in the role remains to be seen. But beyond casting choices the heart of the matter lies in Gibson's handling of the story itself. Caviezel's legacy as Jesus may be impossible to replicate, but what truly matters is that Gibson continues to portray the Son of God faithfully without bending to cinematic impulse or emotional excess.

In the end fans may forgive a new face. What they cannot afford to lose is a film that drifts from the power and truth of the Gospel that made the first Passion so enduring.

From China to New York: What Chikungunya Reveals About Pestilence and Control

Jesus didn't come to make life easier; He came to make it meaningful. His teachings flipped cultural norms upside down, challenging everything from how we handle money to how we treat our enemies. The Sermon on the Mount remains one of the most radical and heart-transforming messages in history. It's not about religious performance or outward perfection but about living with a heart that mirrors the Father's love, generosity and humility.

Rabbi Kirt Schneider, teaching from the shores of the Sea of Galilee where Jesus first preached these truths, reminds us that these "radical rules" of the Kingdom are not about rules at all but about relationship. “Yeshua gave us principles as to how we should walk if we want to live according to the light and the Spirit of the Kingdom of Heaven,” Schneider said. In his latest message he broke down eight life-changing truths that define what it means to live like Jesus.

1. Give Generously Without Expecting Anything in Return

Jesus said, “Give to him who asks of you.” Rabbi Schneider explained that this doesn’t mean living without boundaries but cultivating a spirit of generosity that reflects God’s heart. He reminds believers that giving isn’t just about money but about our attitude toward people.

“I think the concept that Yeshua’s teaching here that we need to take seriously and take to heart is that we need to be generous to people,” Schneider said. “We should live as generous people.”

2. Love Your Enemies and Pray for Them

This command might be the most radical of all. Jesus calls us to love even those who mistreat us. Schneider said this kind of love makes us children of our Heavenly Father who “causes His sun to rise on the evil and the good.”

“Be a giving person. Be a generous person,” Schneider said. “Love not just your friends but love your enemies.”

3. Live Big: Take Out the Decimal Point

In a vision, Schneider heard an angel sing the phrase “Take out the decimal point.” He understood it as a divine challenge to stop thinking small in love, generosity and faith. “Give big. Love big. Live big. Believe big,” he said, explaining that we serve a God of abundance, not limitation.

“What he was conveying to me was, listen, give big. Love big. Live big. Believe big. Lead a big life because God is big.”

4. Do Good in Secret, Not for Show

Jesus warned against practicing righteousness to be seen by others. Schneider used this example to call out religious showmanship, people who “sound the trumpet” when they give or pray so others will notice.

“If you do something to benefit somebody financially or if you pray, don't go in the streets so you can look righteous,” Schneider said. “Do it in secret. Don't tell people about it.”

5. Pray with Sincerity, Not for Attention

Jesus told His followers to pray in secret focusing on connecting with the Father, not impressing others. Schneider pointed out that many people pray publicly to appear spiritual, forgetting that prayer is meant for God's ears alone.

“Sometimes people are praying and their focus is not on reaching out and connecting with God,” Schneider said. “They're not really praying to God. They're praying to the people around them.”

6. Pursue Perfection Through Love and Humility

When Jesus said, “Be perfect as your Heavenly Father is perfect,” He wasn't demanding flawlessness but calling believers to rise above natural reactions. Schneider explained that this means treating people with grace even when they don't deserve it.

"It's easy to treat people according to how they treat us," he said. "Jesus said I'm causing you to rise above it and to live in such a way that your goodness is coming out upon the good and the bad alike."

7. Stay Rooted in God's Word

During one of his encounters with an angel Schneider said the messenger placed a green-covered Bible beside him, symbolizing spiritual growth through Scripture. The message was simple: stay grounded in the Word; it's life-giving and keeps us aligned with God's will.

"The angel was telling me, 'Stay in God's Word,'" Schneider said. "'It'll keep you moving forward. It will keep you on the right path.'"

8. Avoid Spiritual Pride and Hypocrisy

Jesus condemned hypocrisy, doing good to be seen rather than to serve. Schneider shared how easily believers can fall into this trap, warning that real spirituality is measured by humility, not visibility.

"Let's not try to impress others," Schneider said. "Let's let our walk be done with God no matter what other people think of us."

Living the Radical Life

Rabbi Schneider's reminder is simple but piercing: following Jesus isn't about comfort; it's about character. Living out these radical rules means choosing love over revenge, humility over attention and generosity over self-protection.

When we live this way we become reflections of our Father's heart in a world starving for authenticity. As Schneider concluded, "If we humble ourselves before God, He's gonna reward us. He's a rewarder of those that diligently seek Him and He draws near to the humble."

Vatican Shock: Christians Stunned as Muslim Worship Allowed in Sacred Halls

It's one of those headlines that makes you read it twice to be sure you saw it right: the Vatican Apostolic Library, one of the most sacred centers of Christian learning, now provides a prayer room for Muslim visitors.

Rev. Giacomo Cardinali, Vice Prefect of the library, told La Repubblica, "Of course, some Muslim scholars have asked us for a room with a carpet for praying and we have given it to them."

At first glance, it sounds like courtesy. But the Bible tells a different story. "You shall have no other gods before Me" (Ex. 20:3). God is a jealous God who commands His people to tear down altars to false gods, not make room for them.

Background of the Decision

The interview, first reported by La Repubblica and later highlighted by Novus Ordo Watch, confirmed that Muslim visitors to the Vatican Library requested a space to pray, and the request was granted. The library, which houses centuries-old manuscripts including ancient Qurans, now accommodates Islamic prayer within its walls.

This development comes at a time when the Vatican has restricted traditional Latin Mass celebrations while simultaneously expanding interfaith gestures. This contrast represents a troubling shift away from biblical separation and toward religious compromise.

Trading Conviction for Convenience

It's troubling that a place dedicated to preserving Christian truth would facilitate worship to a god who denies Christ. Islam rejects that Jesus is the Son of God, yet the Vatican is making space for those prayers inside its walls.

Scripture warns, "What fellowship has righteousness with lawlessness? And what communion has light with darkness?" (2 Cor. 6:14). The Church is called to love its neighbor, but love does not mean compromise.

God's Word is clear. When Israel tolerated idols, judgment followed. The Lord said, "You shall destroy their altars, break their sacred pillars, and cut down their wooden images" (Ex. 34:13). He never told His people to share His house with other gods.

A Call Back to Holiness

This isn't about denying kindness. It's about keeping the sacred sacred. The Church should welcome people, not false worship. Holiness requires separation from what denies the truth of Jesus Christ.

God said, "My glory I will not give to another, nor My praise to carved images" (Isa. 42:8). The Church must remember that hospitality should never come at the expense of obedience.

Frontline IDF Soldier Hints at Prophetic Timing Behind Israel's Latest Breakthrough

A prophecy that once seemed unthinkable is now capturing national attention. Oklahoma pastor Brandon Biggs, who accurately described the attempt on President Donald Trump's life months before it happened, is warning of something far greater: a catastrophic earthquake that could split the heart of America wide open.

Biggs says the vision came to him in 2024. In it, God showed him a "ten-magnitude" earthquake along the New Madrid fault line which runs through Missouri, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky and Illinois. He claims the event would unfold three days after world leaders attempt to divide Jerusalem through a two-state peace deal.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

"The Lord told me... You will see a three-day window. That's the time for people to flee," Biggs said in a video. He described scenes of devastation so severe that it left the land unrecognizable. Entire neighborhoods were reduced to rubble and houses "fell to their foundations."

Biggs went on to describe a chain reaction of destruction. A powerful aftershock rippled through the southern states, hitting areas from Texarkana, Texas to Oklahoma. Bridges collapsed, roads split and nothing moved on land. "They were not able to bring in supply trucks from east to west," he said.

In the vision he saw military helicopters flying low to deliver aid to survivors. "They were flying so low that they were shaking the houses," Biggs recalled. He said that all supplies had to come through the Mississippi River because every bridge had been destroyed. "It was so bad, I remember it lasted for months," he said.

The Warning and Its Biblical Connection

Now, as President Trump has finalized a peace plan between Israel and Hamas after the release of the remaining hostages from Gaza, Biggs' words are being revisited. During his speech before Israel's parliament Trump said, "You've won. Now it is time to translate these victories against terrorists on the battlefield into the ultimate prize of peace and prosperity for the entire Middle East."

Whether this prophecy will come to pass is something no one can know for sure but to outright dismiss it would be unwise. Scripture calls believers to "test the spirits to see whether they are from God" (1 John 4:1), not to scoff at prophecy but to weigh it in prayer and through the Word of God.

Earthquakes have long been seen as signs of divine movement and warning. Jesus said in Matthew 24:7 that in the last days "there will be famines and earthquakes in various places," calling these "the beginning of birth pains." Such events are meant to stir hearts toward repentance, preparation and spiritual alertness.

The timing of Biggs' warning is also striking given its connection to the division of Jerusalem. The Bible is clear that God gave the Land of Israel including Jerusalem to the descendants of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob as an everlasting covenant. In Genesis 17 the Lord told Abraham, "The whole land of Canaan, where you now reside as a foreigner, I will give as an everlasting possession to you and your descendants after you."

Throughout Scripture dividing what God has set apart always carries consequences. Joel 3:2 warns that judgment comes upon those who "divide up My land."

Bob Jones and the Vision of a Great Shaking

Long before recent prophetic warnings began circulating, the late prophetic voice Bob Jones shared a sobering vision that echoes what others are now describing. In his vision, Jones saw a massive earthquake along the New Madrid Fault line, one so devastating that it would alter the landscape of the United States.

According to Jones, a mighty angel has been holding this fault line together, preventing catastrophe until an appointed time. When that restraint is lifted, he said, the shaking will be unlike anything the nation has ever known.

"There will be an enormous earthquake somewhere along the New Madrid Fault line," Jones once said. "Six great cities will be destroyed. Among them are Chicago, Morgan City, St. Louis and Memphis."

Jones described the destruction in vivid, geographical detail. He said Memphis would become a lake, and that the Mississippi River would widen to 35 miles when the disaster was over. The quake's reach, he warned, would extend far beyond the fault line itself, with tremors felt all the way to Charlotte, North Carolina. He also said water from the Great Lakes would flow south into the Mississippi River and then into the Gulf of Mexico, dramatically reshaping the heart of America.

If such a shaking were to occur, it would fulfill not only Jones' decades-old vision but also confirm warnings given by other prophetic voices since his passing.

Faith, Wisdom and Preparedness

So where does that leave us today? Somewhere with both faith and wisdom. We do not panic or sensationalize but neither do we ignore when a watchman sounds the alarm. We are called to discern the times, to pray over prophetic warnings and to let them draw us closer to the Lord, not deeper into fear.

Preparing for natural disasters like earthquakes, floods or storms is simply wisdom. Proverbs 22:3 reminds us that "the prudent see danger and take refuge, but the simple keep going and pay the penalty." Preparation both spiritual and practical is a biblical virtue.

Whether this earthquake comes or not the greater shaking has already begun, one of hearts, nations and faith. The Church's task is the same as it has always been: to preach the gospel, to make disciples and to remain steadfast as the world trembles.

The time to pray, discern and prepare is now, not in fear but in faith.

Shock at the Vatican: Man Desecrates St. Peter's Altar During Mass

A man desecrated the altar at St. Peter's Basilica in Vatican City by urinating on it during a Friday morning Holy Mass as hundreds of horrified tourists and worshipers looked on, according to local reports.

The unidentified man climbed the steps of the Altar of Confession, the sacred place where the pope himself often celebrates Mass, and dropped his pants before committing the vile act. Authorities swiftly intervened, pulling him away from the altar as shocked onlookers filmed the scene.

According to Corriere della Sera, the man briefly exposed himself before police escorted him from the basilica. The Vatican has not released an official statement and it remains unclear if the suspect was charged or arrested.

Pope Leo XIV was reportedly "shocked" when he learned of the desecration. The Altar of Confession, located beneath Michelangelo's majestic dome, is considered one of the most sacred spaces in the Catholic faith and symbolizes the unity between heaven and earth.

This latest incident marks yet another attack on one of the world's holiest sites. In February a man climbed onto the same altar and destroyed six candelabras. In June 2023 a nude Polish man leapt onto the altar with the words "Save children of Ukraine" scrawled on his back. After that incident the Vatican performed a penitential rite to cleanse the holy ground.

But what happened inside St. Peter's is not an isolated act. Attacks on houses of worship are becoming increasingly common around the world. Even the Associated Press acknowledged the trend, reporting:

A worldwide problem: In various forms, attacks on houses of worship have occurred through history. At present, attacks on individual houses of worship in places like the United States and Western Europe tend to draw the international spotlight more than attacks that are part of broader ongoing conflicts such as Christian churches burned by Islamic militants in parts of Africa.

Events like this should not come as a surprise to Christians. Scripture tells us that lawlessness will grow as the world drifts further from God. Yet even as these acts of desecration multiply, we are called to stand firm in prayer, asking the Lord to intervene, to convict those who commit such offenses and to preach the Gospel with boldness and love until His return.
