

Grace So Amazing

Before he met Jesus in 1989, Zachery Tims was dealing drugs in a Baltimore neighborhood. Today he's helping thousands of people turn their lives around.

The Bishop's Campaign

Michigan pastor Keith Butler, a pro-life Republican, took a big risk when he decided to run for the U.S. Senate. He talked with Charisma about why he's the best man for the job.

Living Pure in an R-Rated Culture

What was once thought of as vulgar is now standard fare in Top 40 music and on TV, radio and film. HOW can we reverse the trend in modern media?

The Lady is a Prayer Warrior

She is known as the mentor of dynamic preacher Juanita Bynum. But pastor Veter Nichols is committed to training an army of intercessors for God.

God and the Gangstas

She's Got A Testimony

Some people may not like her forceful preaching style. But one thing is for sure: When Paula White found Jesus, her life was transformed

Soul Sister

When CeCe Winans auditioned in a talent search as a child, she never dreamed God would use her to sing the gospel. Yet today she's using her platform to preach, too.

Put On Some Clothes!

In an age of low-cut jeans and near-naked pop stars, Christians need to bring some sanity to the way America is dressing.

The Diva Is a Disciple

Seven years ago R&B recording artist Pebbles traded celebrity for a life dedicated to Christ. Today Perri Reid is leading sinners to Jesus from her ministry base in Atlanta.

Out of Black Islam

When Marie Muhammad-Vaughn rejected Islam, her life took a turn for the worse. Yet today, the great-granddaughter of the founder of the Nation of Islam says she has no regrets.