

Chris Reed on MorningStar Fallout: 'They Wanted to Bury Me'

Chris Reed is speaking out following Rick Joyner's message to MorningStar Ministries regarding Chris' resignation from the ministry.

After Chris Reed's departure from Morningstar, Joyner expressed frustration with Reed's absence from the ministry.

"I did not feel that there was a shepherd's heart revealed," Joyner said. "A shepherd lays down their life for the sheep and certainly has regard for them. I didn't quite feel like there was regard for me, for our board, any of this stuff that we had entrusted a lot to him. And I don't think to just quit like that is what we ever need to do with anyone, with no notice."

Since this statement, Reed has now posted a video called, "'You Need to Know What's Really Happening.'" In the nearly 40-minute-long video, Reed re-asserted that he left MorningStar because of the lawsuits that have come out about the minors from MorningStar who were sexually abused by a former volunteer at MorningStar. He also discussed Rick Joyner's comments about his departure from the ministry.

"I'm still kind of in shock. I'm heartbroken. It's unbelievable," Reed says. "I've been quiet since I resigned as the CEO and president of MorningStar 13 days ago."

For too long, too many in the American Christian church have remained silent as culture and society drifted away from God.

Content to preach uplifting sermons that ensure their congregants do not feel uncomfortable or convicted, depending on how you look at it, churches have focused on a “seeker-friendly” model to keep seats full and ensure tithes keep pouring in.

So what happens when God’s period of permissive patience runs out and those who were meant to fulfill the Great Commission and spread His Word refuse to do so in an increasingly dark and sinful world?

Hillsong Founder Brian Houston: Can He Make a Ministry Comeback?

After a string of legal problems, mysterious accusations and the stunning ouster from his own church in Sydney, Australia, Brian Houston, founder of global megachurch Hillsong, along with his wife, Bobbie, is in the process of making a comeback. In July, Houston launched a new online church called .

Is Houston simply misunderstood? Did he make a few errors in judgment while under immense stress over the serious allegations related to his father’s tenure? Can he be trusted in ministry leadership again? Despite the exercise of his faith and best intentions, will Houston’s past define his future in ministry?

“Don’t ever write off a comeback. God is good at those,” Houston posted earlier this year on X, soon after announcing the plan to launch their new online ministry.
