

Surge in Jewish Visits to Temple Mount May Signal Prophetic Events

The number of Jewish visitors to the Temple Mount has reached an all-time high, exceeding previous records since Jerusalem came back under Israeli control in 1967. As of Sept. 6, a total of 51,672 Jews have visited the holy site since last Rosh Hashanah, according to the Beyadenu—Returning to the Temple Mount organization. This represents a significant increase compared to the 44,317 Jewish visitors throughout the previous year, reflecting a growing trend in the Jewish community's desire to connect with the site considered the holiest in Judaism.

A notable turning point occurred after the "Return of Israel to the Temple Mount" conference, held at the Knesset on July 24. National Security Minister Itamar Ben-Gvir announced a new prayer policy during this event, resulting in a 45% surge in visits compared to the same period last year. Ben-Gvir has been vocal about his stance, calling for an end to what he describes as "anti-Jewish racism" on the Temple Mount and advocating for the construction of a synagogue on the site.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

"The policies on the Temple Mount allow prayer, period," Ben-Gvir told Army Radio. "The premier knows that when I joined the government, I said in the simplest way that there will be no discrimination at the Temple Mount, just like Muslims can pray at the Western Wall."

However, despite these declarations, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has firmly stated that "there is no change to the status quo" that prohibits Jewish worship on the Temple Mount.

President Isaac Herzog echoed this sentiment, reaffirming Israel's "unequivocal commitment to preserving the status quo at the holy site in accordance with political agreements since 1967 and the spirit of rulings by leading rabbis and religious figures over the last 100 years."

Order Jonathan Cahn's "The Dragon's Prophecy" on !

Not all rabbis and religious leaders agree that the status quo should remain unchanged. Rabbi Steven Burg, CEO of Aish, a Jewish educational institution located near the Temple Mount, voiced his support for a more inclusive approach to worship. "It's almost surreal to hear people arguing so vehemently against people being able to pray in a holy site," he said in an interview with ILTV. He emphasized the need for a conversation about how Jews, Christians, and Muslims could all be allowed to pray at the site, stating, "The Temple Mount should be a place of unity, not a place of distrust."

Meanwhile, the Prime Minister's Office has continued to assert that policy on the Temple Mount is determined by the Cabinet and the prime minister. A recent statement from the office reinforced this, noting, "There is no change in the status quo, nor will there be."

The increasing number of Jewish visitors to the Temple Mount carries significant implications for biblical prophecy, particularly for Christians who view these events through the lens of the Bible's teachings on the end times. According to biblical prophecy, the return of Jews to Israel and their growing presence at sacred sites such as the Temple Mount is often interpreted as a sign of the approaching end days. The Bible mentions in several passages, including Isaiah 2:2-3 and Zechariah 8:3, that in the last days, Jews will return to Jerusalem, and the city will once again become a center for worship.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up-to-date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

The surge in Jewish visitors to the Temple Mount raises questions about whether these developments could be fulfilling prophecy before our very eyes. Some Christians believe that the increasing Jewish presence on the Temple Mount could be a precursor to the rebuilding of the Third Temple, a significant event in end-time prophecy. Others see it as a sign that God is gathering His people back to Israel, as foretold in Ezekiel 37:21-22, where it is written that God will gather the children of Israel from among the nations and bring them back to their own land.

While these developments may seem like a step toward the fulfillment of biblical prophecy, as Christians we are reminded to remain vigilant and prepared for Jesus' return, as He commanded. The Bible teaches us that no one knows the day or hour of Christ's return, but we are called to live in readiness, continually sharing the gospel and fulfilling the Great Commission.

So perhaps, the rising number of Jewish visitors to the Temple Mount could be seen as a sign of the times, a fulfillment of prophecy or simply a reflection of growing religious fervor among the Jewish community. Regardless, Christians are encouraged to remain focused on our mission, preparing for the return of Jesus while continuing to spread His message of hope and salvation to all nations.

Join Charisma Magazine Online to follow everything the Holy Spirit is doing around the world!

James Lasher is staff writer for Charisma Media.

---

Record Numbers of Jews Visiting the Temple Mount Carries Great Prophetic Implications

The number of Jewish visitors to the Temple Mount has reached an all-time high, exceeding previous records since Jerusalem came back under Israeli control in 1967. As of Sept. 6, a total of 51,672 Jews have visited the holy site since last Rosh Hashanah, according to the Beyadenu—Returning to the Temple Mount organization. This represents a significant increase compared to the 44,317 Jewish visitors throughout the previous year, reflecting a growing trend in the Jewish community's desire to connect with the site considered the holiest in Judaism.

A notable turning point occurred after the "Return of Israel to the Temple Mount" conference, held at the Knesset on July 24. National Security Minister Itamar Ben-Gvir announced a new prayer policy during this event, resulting in a 45% surge in visits compared to the same period last year. Ben-Gvir has been vocal about his stance, calling for an end to what he describes as "anti-Jewish racism" on the Temple Mount and advocating for the construction of a synagogue on the site.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

"The policies on the Temple Mount allow prayer, period," Ben-Gvir told Army Radio. "The premier knows that when I joined the government, I said in the simplest way that there will be no discrimination at the Temple Mount, just like Muslims can pray at the Western Wall.”

However, despite these declarations, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu has firmly stated that “there is no change to the status quo” that prohibits Jewish worship on the Temple Mount. President Isaac Herzog echoed this sentiment, reaffirming Israel’s “unequivocal commitment to preserving the status quo at the holy site in accordance with political agreements since 1967 and the spirit of rulings by leading rabbis and religious figures over the last 100 years.”

Order Jonathan Cahn’s “The Dragon’s Prophecy” on !

Not all rabbis and religious leaders agree that the status quo should remain unchanged. Rabbi Steven Burg, CEO of Aish, a Jewish educational institution located near the Temple Mount, voiced his support for a more inclusive approach to worship. “It’s almost surreal to hear people arguing so vehemently against people being able to pray in a holy site,” he said in an interview with ILTV. He emphasized the need for a conversation about how Jews, Christians, and Muslims could all be allowed to pray at the site, stating, “The Temple Mount should be a place of unity, not a place of distrust.”

Meanwhile, the Prime Minister’s Office has continued to assert that policy on the Temple Mount is determined by the Cabinet and the prime minister. A recent statement from the office reinforced this, noting, “There is no change in the status quo, nor will there be.”

The increasing number of Jewish visitors to the Temple Mount carries significant implications for biblical prophecy, particularly for Christians who view these events through the lens of the Bible’s teachings on the end times. According to biblical prophecy, the return of Jews to Israel and their growing presence at sacred sites such as the Temple Mount is often interpreted as a sign of the approaching end days. The Bible mentions in several passages, including Isaiah 2:2-3 and Zechariah 8:3, that in the last days, Jews will return to Jerusalem, and the city will once again become a center for worship.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up-to-date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

The surge in Jewish visitors to the Temple Mount raises questions about whether these developments could be fulfilling prophecy before our very eyes. Some Christians believe that the increasing Jewish presence on the Temple Mount could be a precursor to the rebuilding of the Third Temple, a significant event in end-time prophecy. Others see it as a sign that God is gathering His people back to Israel, as foretold in Ezekiel 37:21-22, where it is written that God will gather the children of Israel from among the nations and bring them back to their own land.

While these developments may seem like a step toward the fulfillment of biblical prophecy, as Christians we are reminded to remain vigilant and prepared for Jesus' return, as He commanded. The Bible teaches us that no one knows the day or hour of Christ's return, but we are called to live in readiness, continually sharing the gospel and fulfilling the Great Commission.

So perhaps, the rising number of Jewish visitors to the Temple Mount could be seen as a sign of the times, a fulfillment of prophecy or simply a reflection of growing religious fervor among the Jewish community. Regardless, Christians are encouraged to remain focused on our mission, preparing for the return of Jesus while continuing to spread His message of hope and salvation to all nations.

Join Charisma Magazine Online to follow everything the Holy Spirit is doing around the world!

James Lasher is staff writer for Charisma Media.

---

Melania Speaks on the Trump Assassination Attempt: 'We Need to Uncover the Truth'

Melania Trump released a video that went viral on X as she questioned the circumstances surrounding the assassination attempt against her husband, Donald Trump.

"The attempt to end my husband's life was a horrible, distressing experience. Now, the silence around it feels heavy," the former first lady says.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

"I can't help but wonder why didn't law enforcement officials arrest the shooter before the speech. There is definitely more to the story, and we need to uncover the truth," she concludes.

The day after the assassination attempt on Donald Trump, Melania came out with her initial statement to share her gratitude for those who put themselves at risk for his life. She also gave a heartfelt message to Corey Comperatore's family after he was tragically killed by the gunman, Thomas Matthew Crooks.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up to date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

View this post on Instagram

A post shared by Bridgette Morris (@psbridgettemorris)

As this couple launches a new church, keep them and their family in prayer, along with all of those who call Gateway their home church during this time of transition.

Join Charisma Magazine Online to follow everything the Holy Spirit is doing around the world!

Abby Trivett is content development editor for Charisma Media.

---

Tucker Carlson and Glenn Beck: End Times, AI and Fox News Secrets

During his Tucker Carlson Live Tour, Carlson had special guest Glenn Beck come to the stage and talk about his time with Fox News, good and evil in our world today and the signs of the end times.

In our especially crazy and upside-down world, Beck pointed out that it actually “feels” as though we are in a last days era.

To order Stephen Strang's "Spirit-Led Living in an Upside-Down World," visit .

“It feels like the end times,” Beck says. “Enough of the signs are here that it could happen quickly.”

One of the biggest signs of the end times that Carlson and Beck point to is the rapid growth of artificial intelligence.

“We think we’re God. And what’s really bad is we’re about to create ‘god’: AI,” Beck says. “We are about to create a being. These scientists think they can handle have to understand that is an alien life. They don’t even know how it comes up with answers.”

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

“We create this new life form; we don’t even know how it thinks or comes up with its answers,” he continues. “It is an alien life form.”

Carlson makes the point that we do not know when the end will come, wondering why we should be afraid. Beck believes the book of Revelation is meant to provide us with the information we need so we can clearly see when the end is coming near.

“That’s the point of the book of Revelation. That’s the point of prophecy,” says Beck.

Beck and Carlson are both former media personalities for Fox News. Beck says he knew that working for Fox was taking a toll on the well-being of his soul.

“My prompting was, ‘if you don’t leave now, you won’t leave with your soul,’” Beck says. “I want my soul.”

One story Beck shared with Carlson was how he was asked to stop telling people to pray while he was on air, and to quit using the name of God. He claims that former Fox CEO Roger Ailes told him that God had bigger problems to worry about than the viewers’ prayers.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up to date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

“He said, ‘And another thing: God’s got wars and big issues to deal with. He doesn’t want to hear from all of these people.’ I looked at him and I thought he was joking at first, and he didn’t crack a smile. And I said, ‘I don’t think you understand how that works.’ And he said, ‘Well, here’s how it works here: Stop saying God. Stop saying God,’” Beck recounts.

A month after this, Beck says Ailes called him into his office for continuing to speak about God.

“‘Do you realize how many times you’ve said the word ‘God’ since we last talked?’ And I said, ‘You counted?’ ‘Ninety-one.

Ninety-one times,'" he continues.

Beck and Carlson's discussion is a reminder that the days are getting shorter and closer to the return of Christ, and in this world we will face trials and tribulations. However, we can take heart and remember that Jesus overcame the grave and we have victory through His name.

Join Charisma Magazine Online to follow everything the Holy Spirit is doing around the world!

Abby Trivett is content development editor for Charisma Media.

---

Taylor Swift Tries to Put Her Finger on the Electoral Scale, Picks Between Trump and Kamala

If you're one of those hardcore Democrats who rage against NFL fans who are irked by cutaways to Taylor Swift taking away attention from Kansas City Chiefs games, all I have to say is this: Now you know how they feel.

On Tuesday night, Vice President Kamala Harris and former President Donald Trump met for the first presidential debate. I say first because things went well enough for Harris that, almost immediately following the match-up, her campaign said they were up for a rematch – something they hadn't agreed to.

Breaking News. Spirit-Filled Stories. Subscribe to Charisma on YouTube now!

Like it or not, Trump fans, but Tuesday wasn't an unalloyed victory – nor, in fact, was anyone spinning it that way. After a strong start, the debate turned into a three-on-one in which both moderators repeatedly rebuked Trump for virtually every breath of air he took.

It didn't help matters any, either, that the former president managed to take the bait on a Harris dig about crowd sizes that literally nobody should have cared about – but that, unfortunately, Trump did, very much.

Trump regained his footing later in the debate, especially delivering a strong closing statement – but, by that point, the headlines had already written themselves.

Here are just a few from the front splash page of The New York Times, pretty much the official party organ of the Democratic establishment: “Harris Puts Trump on Defensive in Fierce Debate.” “Donald Trump Made a Raving, Rambling Fool of Himself in That Debate.” “Over 90 Minutes, Trump Descended to His True Self.”

It was nowhere near that bad, of course, but Tuesday night was going to be Kamala's night in establishment media-land. Or it was going to be her night, except for a scene-stealer and attention sponge that we've come to know (bad pun incoming) all too well.

Yes, on a night where the import thing should have been Americans deciding who they would vote for as the leader of the free world, Taylor Swift decided it was high time make America know who she was voting for to be said leader.

Get your FREE CHARISMA NEWSLETTERS today! Stay up-to-date with current issues, Holy Spirit news, Christian teachings, Charisma videos & more!

“Like many of you, I watched the debate tonight. If you haven't already, now is a great time to do your research on the issues at hand and the stances these candidates take on the topics that matter to you the most. As a voter, I make sure to watch and read everything I can about their proposed policies and plans for this country," she said on Instagram.

"I will be casting my vote for Kamala Harris and Tim Walz in the 2024 Presidential Election. I'm voting for @kamalaharris because she fights for the rights and causes I believe need a warrior to champion them. I think she is a steady-handed, gifted leader and I believe we can accomplish so much more in this country if we are led by calm and not chaos. I was so heartened and impressed by her selection of running mate @timwalz, who has been standing up for LGBTQ+ rights, IVF, and a woman's right to her own body for decades," she continued.

"I've done my research, and I've made my choice. Your research is all yours to do, and the choice is yours to make. I also want to say, especially to first time voters: Remember that in order to vote, you have to be registered! I also find it's much easier to vote early. I'll link where to register and find early voting dates and info in my story."

She signed off as "Taylor Swift, Childless Cat Lady." Sigh.