

Christians Invade Extreme Sports Arena

A rising number of Christian competitors are making their presence felt in the dangerous arena of extreme sports.

[] To most, extreme sports conjure up images of young thrill-seekers with hedonistic lifestyles.

But a rising number of Christian competitors are making their presence felt in this dangerous arena the Denver Post reported.

At the recent Winter X games in Aspen, Colo., snowboards featured Jesus stickers and Christian competitors opted out of the party scene, hoping to inspire others with their example.

“Snowboarding can only take you so far,” said Tommy Czeschin, a 12-year pro boarder. “You can win lots of events but still be empty inside.”

Photo Credit: Benjamin Earwicker