During her upcoming nationwide tour, gospel artist CeCe Winans plans to unite Christians across racial and denominational lines in prayer for the nation.

[] Gospel artist CeCe Winans will begin a free nationwide tour next month aimed at uniting Christians across racial and denominational lines in prayer for the nation.

Winans, whose Thy Kingdom Come CD project released in April, said the Kingdom Tour () will encourage Christians to not fear economic and political uncertainty but to “change the atmosphere in our country” through prayer.

“We must proclaim that ‘it ain’t over,’ no matter what we are going through and that God is working everything out for our good if we just believe,” she said.
