Riley Sinclair's new position as director of guest relations at a five-star resort in Paradise, Bahamas, seems to symbolize that her life is finally turning around. But in this new role interacting with guests, Riley soon realizes that resort visitors aren't always as carefree as they seem to be. They travel with baggage—not only suitcases but also worries, fears and even secrets. Riley befriends three women guests in particular, unaware of how much they need each other. And when a hurricane heads toward the island, the four gals begin a journey filled with humor, heartbreak and healing.
