In

My Bangs Look Good &

Other Lies I Tell Myself,

Susanna Forth Aughtmon reflects on the lies she has believed that have hindered her spiritual walk. Geared toward young-adult women, the book shares the author's own journey of how she came to know the truth about God.

Aughtmon

examines many misunderstandings about God, such as the idea that He is vengeful, that He owes His children something or that He cannot hear those who cry out to Him.

Disputing these myths, she points to the truth, sharing many inspiring stories such as the story of Mary who was visited at a young age and told the most outlandish thing she had ever heard. In spite of how absurd the words of the angel seemed to be, Mary accepted them in obedience and faith.

This is an encouraging book for young women seeking to push past the myths that have bogged down their Christian walk and step into a faith-filled life.
