

10-Year-Old Prophecy Driving Powerful New Mike Signorelli Film

As a deliverance minister and the senior pastor of V1 church in New York City, Pastor Mike Signorelli has seen a lot of wonderful things happen in the kingdom of God—both in the natural and the supernatural.

Signorelli says, however, his upcoming movie, “The Domino Revival,” will be “unlike any movie you’ve ever seen before.” For one night only, on October 24, filmgoers will see medically verifiable miracles, prophecies, deliverances and healings, all happening on film.

The film will take the audience on what he calls an extraordinary journey with himself and a group of revivalists during “a pivotal period in our nation’s history.” The movie, he says, unveils the awe-inspiring power of Jesus Christ, captures the essence of spiritual hunger, and will deliver a profound cinematic experience.

“Imagine some of your favorite revivalists and preachers and ministers from all over the United States all in one movie about revival,” Signorelli told Charisma News’ John Matarazzo in a recent interview. Revivalists included in the film include Mike’s wife, Julie Signorelli; Isaiah Saldivar, Alexander Pagani, Jenny Weaver, Mark Driscoll, Ryan LeStrange, Vlad Savchuk, Craig Brown, Andy Byrd, Jacob Coyne, Leon DePreez, Jessi Green, Parker Green, Jeremiah Johnson, Jonathan Stamper, Stephen Weaver and Shane Jennings.

On the heels of Christian films such as “Jesus Revolution” and “Come Out in Jesus Name,” “The Domino Revival” is a much-anticipated film among the American audience, Signorelli says. While the film “Sound of Freedom” has not been touted as a Christian movie, it is capturing the imagination of the nation, already earning over $100 million since its release on July 4.

"As soon as the trailer released, America started talking," Signorelli says. "'Jesus Revolution,' for example, was awesome. It totally broke the box office. But imagine Jesus Revolution part two, the documentary, because God's doing a new thing. He's doing another Jesus movement.

"This film is basically showing America, 'Hey, don't believe everything you see in the news.' It's not all darkness. God is also shining His light."

Being involved in the film industry was something Signorelli says he never imagined for himself. But once prophecy became involved, one that stunned the New York pastor, he was all in.

"A decade ago, I was standing in a parking lot in Northwest Indiana, and this guy randomly approached me and said, 'I have a prophetic word for you,'" Signorelli says. "I thought that was weird, to get approached in a parking lot like that. And he said, 'I saw a vision of you doing a film, and you're going to be known for the film.' At that point, I didn't even own a camera.

"Shortly after that, the Lord spoke to me and said that there is going to be a second Jesus movement in my generation, and that I'm going to be a significant player in that Jesus movement, round two. ... This was over a decade ago, but I started to call any figure from the first Jesus movement that was still alive and would give me the time and we would talk on the phone and I would have them download to me what it was like," Signorelli recalls.

"Coming into the pandemic, we couldn't physically meet at our three campuses for V1 Church, and so I immediately started shifting into another strategy, and that was reaching people online. I started going viral on almost a daily basis, and I was just prophesying and casting out demons and preaching the Scriptures. And that's when it hit me, 'Whoa, this is the beginning of the second Jesus movement.'"

To capitalize on the prophetic word that was given to him 10 years ago, Signorelli says he's been filming a documentary for the last several years with "Netflix-approved" cameras. He didn't tell anybody about what he was doing, but he felt it would be significant in the coming years.

But it wasn't until "Come Out in Jesus Name," in which he participated, that he discovered some CEOs in the movie industry were interested in Signorelli's ministry. His staff contacted these CEOs to confirm their interest and give the go-ahead for Signorelli to dive into this movie project.

It was a project, he says, that was an "apostolic movie that shows the diversity gifts in the body of Christ, and how revival is taking in many different forms." And with the finished project, "The Domino Revival," Signorelli says with these different gifts "you can make Jesus known." If it's anything like the latest Christian movies that have been released, then indeed audiences are in for an incredible kingdom experience.

"On October 24, it's going to be wild," Signorelli says.
