

21st-Century Esther Tells the World: We Need God in America Again

Karis Peters isn't afraid of politics or the leftist social mores that are beginning to govern the United States.

Instead, she's looking to history for context for the future, and through the written—and now spoken—word, she's chartering a new course for how America should be.

Check it out.