

28 Inmates Baptized at Georgia Jail Remind Us No One Is Beyond God's Redemption

God's grace reaches places the world often overlooks, including behind prison walls.

Twenty-eight inmates at the Grady County Detention Center in Georgia recently publicly professed their faith in Jesus Christ through baptism after faithfully attending Bible studies, offering a powerful reminder that no life is beyond God's ability to redeem, as reported by Breitbart News.

Hope behind prison walls

The Grady County Sheriff's Office described the baptism service as a joyful expression of genuine faith.

"This morning, the Grady County Sheriff's Office and Detention Center had the privilege of witnessing a truly meaningful moment as 28 inmates who have been faithfully attending Bible study throughout the week publicly declared their faith through baptism," the sheriff's office wrote on Facebook.
