

4 Hollywood Actors Who Are Raising Their Kids With Biblical Values

It is so encouraging to see families training up children in the way they should go, especially in the entertainment industry. With so much controversy and vitriol that comes from Hollywood, it's refreshing to see these parents taking a stand for righteousness as they raise their children with biblical values.

1. Candace Cameron Bure

Candace Cameron Bure is well-known for her role as DJ Tanner on Full House and Netflix's Fuller House. The actress has been outspoken about her Christian faith in Hollywood, despite any pushback. Bure and her husband, Valeri Bure, have raised their children in a Christian household and have attended church together as a family since their children were infants.

In an interview with The Courage, Bure's daughter, Natasha, spoke about her Christian faith and what it means to her. Although Natasha was introduced to Christianity at a young age, she goes on to say that "knowing Jesus as your Savior and having a personal relationship with Him is a different story."

Additionally, Natasha believes that her faith was strengthened by the "ability to ask questions and talk about it with her parents."

View this post on Instagram

Me and my boy!! 🐶🐶🐶

A post shared by Mark Wahlberg (@markwahlberg) on Feb 2, 2020 at 6:48pm PST

Read the rest of this article at Movieguide®. Find out what God is doing in Hollywood!