

7 Ways to Bless Your Wife This Mother's Day—and Always

For those of us who are married, loving our wives is one of the most important things we can do for our children. In fact, this is the No. 1 point on our classic “10 Ways to Be an All Pro Dad” list.

It's foundational when it comes to your relationship with your kids, and it makes this time of year and Mother's Day even more important. Our kids are watching us and how we interact with their mothers. They remember when Daddy brings Mommy flowers or when Daddy kisses Mommy when he greets her or leaves for the day.

For most of you, Mother's Day and your marriage go hand in hand. Don't limit your appreciation of her to what she does with and for your kids, but also show your thankfulness for her as your wife. Make it a regular thing, not just during the holiday.

Here are seven ways to bless your wife this Mother's Day and throughout the year.

1. Surprise her. My wife absolutely loves surprises. Perhaps your wife does too. I've learned surprises don't have to be big, budget-busting or elaborate. Just do something for her when she isn't expecting it.
