

Are We About to Repeat the Events of World War II?

Tom Horn says Americans may be about to repeat the events of World War II, but not necessarily as expected.

Great awakenings and blessings can come off the heels of some of the greatest tragedies, and the end-times author used the war as a prime example.

By photographing the atrocities of Nazi Germany, reporters and media were able to inform the world about the devastation, and suddenly the globe was enraged on behalf of God's people.

"What happened was out of that terrible tragedy, sympathies went up for the Jews around the world," Horn says. "Suddenly pressure then was put on the United Nations, the United States, Britain ... and they started helping Zionism."

Now, Americans are once more at a place where technology can allow them to intervene.

Take a look.