

Are You Rushing Ahead of God?

Some people want to get ahead of God. He is praying for you so much more than you can think of in the present moment.

The way I see it or the best way I can describe it is like this: I see a pot of stew being prepared, like a soup with various vegetables in it, cooking. The Lord is preparing this stew, lovingly stirring it. As He is preparing the ingredients, some things in the stew are ready while others are not.

I could see it as being similar to when a child would ask, "Is this ready yet?" "Is it time to move on? "Can we go now?" This could be related to the process of growth you might be currently experiencing in your life. Perhaps your calling or the destiny the Lord has specifically for you is related to the process you are in right now with your fellowship with the Lord. Maybe it is just you and God. Perhaps you are looking for a breakthrough in your life. Maybe you are feeling dry and stagnant and stale, and the Lord would then say to you that He is preparing and stirring. He is stirring the ingredients of the plans He has for you.

Your job is to simply be patient. He is the one who pours, mixes and adds the necessary ingredients. Not you. He is the one who is preparing the timing and the unfolding of all things concerning you. Your job is to simply sit still, be still and let Him work the processes out for you.
