

Bruce 'Caitlyn' Jenner Says Biological Boys Shouldn't Compete in Female Sports

Olympic gold medalist and California gubernatorial candidate Bruce "Caitlyn" Jenner, who is transgender, said over the weekend it would not be "fair" to allow biological males to compete on female sports teams.

"This is a question of fairness," the athlete turned reality TV star told TMZ when asked about state legislatures passing bills to block biological males who identify as female from competing in girls' sports. "That's why I oppose biological boys who are trans competing in girls' sports in school."

Jenner went on to say it "just isn't fair," adding, "We have to protect girls' sports in our schools." When the outlet asked the Olympian if such an opinion is "delegitimizing" to a person's gender identity, Jenner said, "Have a good day."

Trans woman and Olympic gold medalist @Caitlyn_Jenner has been cancelled for daring to argue that biological boys shouldn't be able to compete in female sports. That's how crazy the times we live in are.

– Darren Grimes (@darrengimes_) May 2, 2021

"I didn't expect to get asked this on my Saturday morning coffee run, but I'm clear about where I stand," Jenner tweeted after the encounter. "It's an issue of fairness and we need to protect girls' sports in our schools."

Jenner's comments to TMZ didn't sit well with several on the left.

Read the rest of the story and how Jenner came under attack for his stance from our content partners at Faithwire. {eo}

Read articles like this one and other Spirit-led content in our new platform, CHARISMA PLUS.