

Case Closed on Daystar: Joni Lamb Speaks Through the Media Storm

Daystar president and co-founder Joni Lamb is no stranger to the storms of life. This includes controversial media coverage revolving around claims of alleged abuse of a child in her family by another Lamb relative. In an exclusive interview with Charisma Media CEO and founder, Stephen Strang, Lamb explains how she is clinging to Christ right now in the middle of these storms.

In the official statement from Daystar about the closing of the investigation surrounding these alleged events, the ministry said that: "...there was never any mishandling—as falsely argued by some on social media—on the part of Daystar and its leadership," and "Although saddened by those who were led to believe the gossip, rumors and false accusations promulgated on social media, Daystar appreciates the love and support it has received from countless viewers and ministry partners and will continue in its mission to spread the Good News of Jesus Christ around the world."
