

Christian Mom Advances to American Idol Top 7: 'To God Be All the Glory'

A Christian stay-at-home mom is winning over the hearts of American Idol fans, not just for her strong vocal range, but also for her love for Jesus.

Breanna Nix is a strong competitor advancing on Monday night to the Top 7 of "American Idol."

NixNation, the community rallying behind her, applauds the 25-year-old for glorifying God before millions.

"So incredibly excited for you," said one fan. "May the Lord bless you and give exactly what you need to unleash your vocals and live in the moment glorifying Him with the talent He has blessed you with!"

Meanwhile, judges Carrie Underwood, Luke Bryan, and Lionel Richie are applauding the singer for her strong vocal range.

During her top eight performance, Nix sang Adele's "Water Under the Bridge," for "Iconic Women of Music" week.

"I feel like this was just a perfect moment for you," Underwood said after her performance. "You looked, and sounded, and played the part of a diva, and it was all working."

"When you got to the back half of that song," said Luke Bryan, "you just really have an incredible voice."

Bryan continued, "It was just really perfectly well done. I'm so glad you picked that song. It just felt like the right moment for you. It was great!"

"What I loved the most is you take something as iconic as an Adele song and turn it into your song," Lionel Richie agreed. "You know how to get to a note and choke it to death."

Nix, who broke into the competition by performing "Jesus, Take the Wheel," by Underwood, says she is surprised she has advanced this far in the show and told fans she thought she would never make it past her first audition.
