

Cindy Jacobs: 'I Had a Vision of a Swamp Being Drained'

As I was praying for the nation today, I had a vision of a swamp being drained. However, as it was emptying, there were a number of "swamp creatures" that became visible. There were alligators and poisonous snakes, among others.

Suddenly, a big war began over the remaining "swamp water." The creatures began to turn on each other for territory.

Then, I saw swamp hunters aggressively wade into the mix. The battle was horrific and the hunters suffered injury, but they continued fighting on.

The interpretation of this is that the situation in Washington is going to heat up even more! It is going to get vicious. It will heat up until it will seem difficult to see what is really happening.

I realized this vision was given to me to encourage us, as intercessors for the nation, to have the courage to aggressively fight for righteousness. More things that are hidden are going to come to light. Some of the "swamp creatures" are going to turn on each other.

More exposures are coming. We need to pray for those who are fighting for what is right in Washington. When you see the swamp war getting more vicious, press in deeper in intercession—it is a sign that progress is being made. {eoa}
