

Confronting the Marxist Transformation of America

Nations derive their sense of identity from their history. If you want to fundamentally transform a nation, rewrite its history. Eliminate everything good and wholesome, and highlight everything ugly and abhorrent.

Destroy its heritage. Demonize its founders and remove their monuments.

Once the citizens have come to abhor their nation's past, they will be ready to accept a new and different form of society and government. This is what Karl Marx was referring to when he said, "People without a heritage are easily persuaded."

This is happening now in America. Schoolchildren are being taught that America's founders were evil slaveowners who founded this country to protect their wealth and power. Statues of America's founders are being toppled and their names removed from schools and other public buildings. This is a vital part of the Marxist plan to transform America into a godless, socialist society.

We are, however, fighting back.

In a 7-hour visitation of God in 2010, He assured me that He is not through with America, and that we "could" see another Great Awakening. Interestingly, He directed me to America's past as the key to her future.

I saw, for the first time, that the First Great Awakening had a direct bearing on the founding of this nation. Revival is in our national DNA. This same awakening unleashed the moral and spiritual forces that eventually ended slavery on this continent.

The following books are the fruit of that encounter. Although there are similarities in all the books, each one is unique in that it focuses on a particular area of America's history that undermines the modern, Marxist revisions. They can be used by pastors, by teachers in Christian and public schools and by citizens in general who can gather friends and family in their homes to study America's true past.

I invite you to join me in taking control of our future by educating this generation about what Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. called our nation's "sacred heritage." This is vital, for as George Orwell said, "Whoever controls the past, controls the future." {eoa}
