

Connect With Other Abolitionists on Twitter

Around the world and around the corner, ordinary people are helping to abolish this form of modern-day slavery. You can be one of them.

“I’ve found Twitter to be a surprisingly helpful tool in connecting with other human rights advocates,” noted Stephanie Hamilton of Nowhere2Hide. “Most of the networking I’ve done has originated through Twitter. Phone calls, emails, [and] face-to-face meetings have all been arranged through this social networking tool that many people have deemed fun but without much merit.”

If you’re on Twitter, you can find fellow abolitionists to follow here and here.