

Could This Be the Smoking Gun of Election Fraud?

A business owner was filling out her ballot to submit and happened to notice, as she sealed the envelope, that her brother's nearby ballot looked the same and had the same bar code numbers. But there was one significant difference: Her code contained an "R," and his had a "D."

"I was getting ready to seal my envelope and happened to look at my brother's ballot and suddenly realized that I am a Republican and he is a Democrat. I put two and two together and realized that now anyone, without opening my ballot, would know from the outside whether the voter was a Republican or a Democrat. All you have to do is lose the 'R's' and suddenly discover the 'D's,' and you can swing the election" said Christine Brown.

She continued, "I started calling around and posting and was shocked to discover that all kinds of people around me were getting the same thing."

A report by the Pew Charitable Trust concludes "1 in 8 voter registrations are significantly inaccurate or no longer valid. With 146 million Americans registered to vote, this translates to a stunning 18 million invalid voter registration on the books. Further, more than 1.8 million deceased individuals are listed as voters, and million people have registrations in more than one state."

Most recently, massive fraud took place in New York, New Jersey, Colorado, Virginia and Texas. And the bizarre concept of "vote harvesting," in which brokers are allowed to gather voter registration letters and vote in their name, is legal in a number of states. As Democratic political operative Scott Foval bragged on a Project Veritas undercover video, "We've been busing people for 50 years” as he described the process of transporting people by bus to multiple voting sites, where they vote multiple times with no need to show I.D.

There is a reason that you have to have I.D. to get on a plane, purchase something and for just about every part of life except to vote—precisely because there is massive, organized fraud done with deep technology and military precision. Most recently, this has occurred in massive amounts, overturning elections in Arizona and California, where the overturns have resulted in what is known as the “blue shift,” the bizarre phenomenon where after elections, there is a dribble of “suddenly discovered” votes that come out of nowhere and nearly always end up supporting Democratic candidates. In this way, the “red” (Republican) candidates are nearly always overturned by the late-arriving “blue” (Democratic) votes, which provide the magical margin of victory. Many credit this phenomenon for the loss of the U.S. House of Representatives to Democrats in 2018.

“When the righteous are in authority, the people rejoice; but when the wicked rule, the people mourn” (Prov. 29:2).

As Steve Strang, bestselling author of God, Trump and the 2020 Election puts it, “A passive church is part of the reason the country is in the mess it is in.” The real issue is that 37 million Christians did not vote in 2016. That year, the staff in Trump Tower was told to expect between 3 and 5 million fraudulent Democratic votes to be cast, so the campaign had to plan an extra 5 million votes to cover for the fraud.

Until now, it was always extreme cases that were discovered and produced examples of voter fraud, but until now, nobody has been able to explain how exactly the “ballot harvesting” and ballot fraud takes place.

Those perpetuating the fraud weren’t planning on anyone checking these bar codes before they reached their destination, but thanks to a regular business owner, Christine Brown, we have the smoking gun that explains the desperate efforts to make sure the post office is funded and properly arranged. The liberal left plans to swing the election using the very post office itself, and this is how they plan to do it. {eo}
