

Did Jonathan Cahn's Prophetic Warnings to Biden Come to Pass?

Did Jonathan Cahn's prophetic warnings to Joe Biden come to pass?

The president's bombshell decision to drop out of the presidential race for re-election comes after he vehemently told ABC's George Stephanopoulos that he wouldn't leave the race unless the Lord Almighty Himself came down and spoke to him. That bold statement after a disastrous debate performance against Donald Trump was followed by even more blunders that called Democrats and Republicans alike to ask the current president to exit the race.

What seemed like a provoke to God on Biden's end, however, did not come without warning. Since his inauguration, prophetic voice Jonathan Cahn has been issuing Biden warnings not to go against the one, true, living God or else face the consequences.

"Choose true greatness, and lead in that return or continue in this departure from God to destruction and judgment," Cahn warned in his inauguration prophetic message to Joe Biden.

"Mr. President, President Biden, you have called for unity and peace. But how can a nation have unity and peace when it wars against the very foundation on which it stands. How could a nation have unity and peace when it turns against the God who brought it into existence?" Cahn asked.

In a second prophetic message to the president, Cahn once again addresses the president's stance on abortion and laws that would put Christianity at stake here in America.

"You have called yourself a Christian, but how can you in reality be a Christian if you wage war against the ways and the Word of God? Your actions are not that of Peter and Paul but of those who persecuted them and put them to death...you have fallen away from the stand which you once upheld," Cahn warned.

And once more, Cahn gave another warning to the president to turn back to the Lord and follow in His ways. After signing the Respect for Marriage Act and lighting up the White House in pride rainbow colors, Cahn addressed this massive decision and how the president celebrated sin.

"Mr. President, you call yourself a Christian. You were raised to say prayers to the God of the Bible, but do you actually have any real fear of God?" Cahn asked. "You have to know that God's Word clearly identifies this as sin and transgression against Him, yet you enshrined it. You hallowed it, you held a celebration in its honor...do you not fear judgement? Or do you think that God is silent and not able to act?"

These prophetic warnings from Cahn telling Biden the importance of turning away from sin and toward the cross are the kind of warnings that should be taken seriously. God is not to be mocked, but rather revered and praised.
